Opera for Everybody,
Wall St. Feels Dizzy,
Religion's Power.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

CONGRATULATIONS TO the Metropolitan Grand Opera in New York, including Mr. Kahn and Mr. Cravath, and especially to Mr. Aylesworth, president of National Broadcasting.

Beginning on Christmas with the performance of "Hansel and Gretel," Mr. Aylesworth will broadcast grand opera, so that a man fishing through the ice in far off Alaska, or getting a sun bath in Florida, will have all the advantages of magnificent grand opera, without the disadvantage of high prices and heartburnings that sometimes come from looking at so many diamond dogcollars and stomachers gathered in one place.

AN EXPERIENCED police official says:

"One of the big bootleggers, who is a pretty tough racketeer when protecting his business, is a Santa Claus to certain men out of work."

The official went on to say that the bootlegger knows by bitter experience that Lovelace talked nonsense when he said: "Stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage," having been in prison.

He sympathizes with ex-convicts and puts many to work, not on mean pay, but with earnings that any Congressman would be glad to make.

Their business is to do what they are told, and they do so. They are convinced that anybody interfering with their generous patron deserves death. They are ready to inflict it and they do inflict it. Nobody annoys that friend of man.

WALL STREET had another fainting spell yesterday. "Big Steel," big no longer, alas, dropped as low as 36. The day is coming when those that now sell it will feel foolish. But its drop was inevitable. When it was selling about 150 this writer told Bernard F. Gimbel, of the big Gimbel stores:

"Steel will drop to 50, or lower."

There is always a certain satisfaction in "I told you so."

IN ROME, yesterday, 12 professors in Catholic colleges sacrificed their positions, and the opportunity to make a living, by refusing to take the Fascist oath, of allegiance to the Fascist state, and fealty to King Victor Emanuel and the royal family.

This they did because their consciences demanded it, in spite of the fact that Pope Pius has recently approved the oath, because "Fascism is not a political party, but the government of the nation."

FOR RELIGIOUS conviction men will endure anything. The courage of these men, giving up their livelihood, is admirable, but does not compare with past sacrifices, as described in the stories of martyrdom among early Christians.

For instance, in Strasburg at one time 600 Jews that were burned alive could have aved themselves by denying their religion.

And one plucky Englishman that had signed a religious statement against his conscience, and was subsequently burned alive, first held his hand in the fire, and burned it off, to punish himself for having been false to his own faith saying:

"This unworthy hand hath offended."

STEAMSHIP LINES, British, French, German and American, are arranging for a meeting to cut down the number of ships, arrange about rates, etc.

People in other countries know enough to make sensible agreements. They haven't any grandfatherly, out of date dodo Sherman act that says:

"You must continue losing or I will put you in jail."

Let us hope the American lines will be allowed to go outside the 12-mile limit and join this arrangement.

THE PRESIDENT of the United States would help recovery and promote business, if he could persuade Congress to get rid of foolish restrictions that forbid businessmen to make sensible arrangements to produce economy and end wasteful over-production.

MILLIONS WILL regret the dangerous condition of Pola Negri, brilliant moving picture actress. Blood transfusions are resorted to, but, perhaps, unfortunately, too late.

Many lives will be saved when transfusions are given early, before the patient's condition becomes almost hopeless.

Repeated transfusions, in small quantities, are particularly efficient. They make the transfusions much safer, less of a strain on the one that gives and the one that receives the new blood.

Schools Accused of Faking to Hold Athletes

SEES SCHOOL FAKES FOR ATHLETES

Personal and Class Records Altered to Hold Stars, County Directors Told

School officials have become so enthusiastic over having winning athletic teams that they wil alter players' records to permit them to participate, W. W. Lantz, principal of the Union High School, Turtle Creek, charged today before the forty-third annual meeting of School Directors of Allegheny County in the Chamber of Commerce rooms. He said:

"Sometimes school authorities will alter the records of players as to age, weight and scholastic standing, so they can continue on the school teams."

Another evil of school sports, Principal Lantz asserted, was that enough care is not given to the dangers of overexertion among the players. He added:

"The individual player does not get enough attention and care as to his physical condition with the result that he often burns out and dies before the age of 40 or 50."

Dr. James N. Rule, state superintendent of public instruction, addressing the meeting this afternoon, said 100 school districts could not meet Christmas payrolls this year because of money tied up in closed banks and poor tax collections.

Judge Sara M. Soffel, of County Court, was to talk on "Juvenile Delinquency." The convention, attended by directors of township and borough schools throughout the county, concludes tomorrow.

CHICAGO, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—Federal agents today confiscated $20,000 worth of morphine and arrested George Vunak when he arrived here from Pittsburgh.

Vunak, taken into custody as he stepped from the train, would not reveal the source nor the intended destination of the drugs.

Grid Player, 'Tired,' Dies From Injury

MRS. NELLY DONNELLY . . . . KIDNAPERS DIDN'T BLIND HER!

Mrs. Paul Donnelly, wealthy Kansas City manufacturer, held for 36 hours by kidnapers who asked $75,000 ransom on the threat of blinding her with acid, killing her kidnaped Negro chauffeur.

PFARR PROBES HOME FIRE

County Fire Marshal Thomas L. Pfarr today is investigating a fire and explosion which damaged the two-story frame dwelling of Mrs. Frieda Yost, 38, and her daughter, Miss Clara Yost, 19, Thom's Run road, Federal, near Carnegie, late last night.

According to neighbors the Yost automobile had been driven away 20 minutes before the fire was discovered. Mrs. Yost and her daughter were not at home this morning.

Volunteer fire companies from Oakdale, Bridgeville and Kirwan Heights fought the blaze for more than an hour.

The postoffice, general store and home of Postmaster J. A. Diehl was threatened by the fire. Mr. and Mrs. Diehl and their six children fleeing hastily.

Band Loses Nerve, Fails to Act on Acid Threat

KANSAS CITY, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Nervous but unharmed after almost 36 hours in the "filthy rendezvous of three kidnapers, Mrs. Nelly Donnelly, wealthy founder of a Kansas City garment company, and George Blair, her Negro chauffeur, were freed by their captors early today.

They were released from a motor car near the Kansas Avenue Bridge, on the Kansas side of the city, and soon were back at the Donnelly home. Their return marked the end of a period of anxious waiting by her husband, Paul Donnelly, and his attorneys, who were at a loss as to how to get in touch with the abductors for the delivery of $75,000 in ran-

Dogs and Birds Gandhi's 'Friends' on Steamer

S. S. PILSNA, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—This steamer, carrying Mahatma Gandhi, his odd assortment of disciples and his pots, pans, spinning wheels and milk cans back to India from Europe, looks like Noah's Ark.

Almost any kind of beast, bird or human may be found aboard.

Some of the Indian princes are bringing back pedigreed dogs from Europe, and the princesses are bringing pedigreed cats. But the oddest collection is found in the steerage part of the ship, which has earned the title of "floating menagerie."

Here the Mahatma himself sits among dogs, falcons, pigeons and chickens which he proudly describes as his "friends."

The falcons and dogs belong to a retired colonel of the British army. Every day, in Gandhi's presence, the colonel kills a few pigeons and feeds them to the tame falcons while the latter perch upon his hand.

Gandhi had arranged to go to Cairo, Egypt, and rejoin the ship later, but the British authorities blocked his plan on the ground that his presence in Egypt might be made the occasion for disturbances by disaffected Egyptian groups.

GERMANY TO PAY LOANS —LAMONT

Partner of Morgan Admits Public Bore Losses in Foreign Bond Flotations

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—While administration leaders were applying pressure in the House for early approval of the Hoover moratorium on European war debts, the Senate finance committee today heard Thomas W. Lamont, a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., declare his firm conviction that private German loans and debts were sound and would "ultimately be paid."

At the same time, the battle over ratification of the one-year moratorium—transformed into a historic fight against revision or cancellation of billions owed to America—flared forth in all its fury on the floor of the House.

DISCREDITS "MENACE"

Lamont, veteran partner of the great international banking firm, appearing as the first witness in the Senate committee's investigation into foreign security sales in the United States in the past decade, declared that popular belief regarding the extent of German short term credits held by American banks was "largely exaggerated" and that such loans were not a menace to the "American banking community." His testimony that the banks were not "overloaded" with the bonds led the blind Senator Gore to remark:

"Yes, it is Tom, Dick and Harry who have taken the losses."

Lamont replied:

"It is true that upon the great investing public has fallen the brunt of the declines and not upon the banks."

Lamont's confident statement that American banks were not in jeopardy because of frozen assets

POLA SUFFERS 'REACTION'

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—A rising temperature marked the condition of Pola Negri, film actress, today, but her physicians said they were not alarmed.

They said it was a reaction to an operation for the removal of an intestinal obstruction she underwent Wednesday. A crisis is expected within the next 72 hours.

The Polish actress was reported today to have a temperature of 102 degrees, as compared with 99.6 degrees yesterday.

One blood transfusion has been resorted to in an effort to save the life of the actress, and it is likely, her physicians stated, that another may be made.

Congress Checking Hoover Dictatorial Policy on Debt Cuts

Points of the President's Message—Number 8.

"Upon the initiative of this government," said President Hoover, in his annual message to Congress, "a year's postponement of reparations and other governmental debts was brought about."

Mr. Hoover does not tell the American people how it was brought about, but their Senators and Representatives in Congress are telling them in language so plain that this country and the world can understand.

Speaking as the new Democratic chairman of the House Committee on the Judiciary, Representative Sumners, of Texas, says of this extraordinary proceeding:

"When the President undertook to negotiate with foreign nations on this matter, he did so WITHOUT AUTHORITY.

"He took upon his OWN RESPONSIBILITY a duty to change an arrangement MADE BY CONGRESS.

"He sent telegrams to members of Congress. You can not run the affairs of the government by parcel post.

"The regular and constitutional way for the President to have done would have been TO HAVE CALLED CONGRESS INTO EXTRA SESSION, AND AFTER CONGRESS GAVE HIM AUTHORITY TO NEGOTIATE, TO DO SO."

Not only was this whole transaction unconstitutional, but it was entirely unnecessary, and Senator Johnson, of California, who, like Congressman Sumners, is an able constitutional lawyer, tells you why it was unnecessary:

"If the Constitution had been followed, if Congress had been called in session, as it could have been in four days, the whole matter would have been disposed of in a reasonable time.

"Why wasn't Congress called together, if the plan were necessary and if it possessed the virtue claimed for it?

"Why were not all the members of Congress permitted to consider it and KNOW ALL ABOUT WHAT SO GREATLY CONCERNED THE AMERICAN PEOPLE?

"FRANCE delayed the marvelous scheme for a considerable period and finally agreed to something QUITE DIFFERENT from that to which the administration consented—something that even our 'leaders' had not agreed to that fateful June evening at the White House."

It is fortunate for the future of the republic that Congress has at last taken cognizance of the ABSOLUTE UNCONSTITUTIONALITY of Mr. Hoover's moratorium agreement.

He entered into it WITHOUT the consent of Congress. He entered into it WITHOUT ANY AUTHORITY OF LAW. He did not act under the authority of the CONSTITUTION. That fundamental law of the land makes no provision for the delegation to a White House conference, made up of hand-picked Senators and Representatives, OF THE POWER THAT BELONGS TO CONGRESS.

Senator Johnson was not consulted and has never consented to this agreement.

No Senator and no Representative in Congress ought to have consented to this agreement.

They had no RIGHT to consent to it because they CAN NOT SPEAK FOR CONGRESS.

What all the leaders summoned to the White House or "consulted" by telephone and telegraph should have replied, was that if the President desired the consent of Congress to make this agreement, he should call Congress in extra session and lay the matter before that body IN THE WAY THAT THE CONSTITUTION DIRECTS.

RACKETEER SHOT BY 2 GUNMEN

Marion Roberts Vanishes After Rendezvous With Victim; Wife Hysterical

International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 18.—Jack (Legs) Diamond, gangster and racketeer, believed immune to bullets and the law alike, was "rubbed out" by underworld enemies in a rooming house here early today.

A fusillade of revolver shots climaxed a gay party in celebration of Diamond's latest acquittal on a kidnaping charge, and when the smoke had cleared, "Legs" lay dead, punctured in the head, neck and body, beyond the reach of the law for the last time.

It was the fourth attempt on Diamond's life that finally succeeded. "Legs" was shot three times when rivals killed "Little Augie" Orgen in 1927. In 1930, he was shot down in his New York hotel room, when he was in hiding. Last April gunners gave him the contents of a shotgun near a Catskill roadhouse.

Slain "Legs"

In common with most gang killings, the events immediately preceding Diamond's departure via the lead route were shrouded in mystery. Whether the shooting occurred while the riotous celebration was at its heighth, or whether "Legs" met his end alone and unguarded, could not be learned.

PROTEST INNOCENCE

The few gathered into the police net spread when word of the killing became known protested that ignorance and innocence which are the code words of gangdom.

Miss Roberts

Mrs. Alice Diamond, widow of the sleek, slim beer baron, was held for questioning. So were two girls and the landlady, who apparently were in on the gay party.

Special orders were sent out to police of the entire state to apprehend Marion (Kiki) Roberts, reputed sweetheart of Diamond, who had been with him a short time before assassins made an unsuccessful attempt to kill him in a New York hotel room last year.

Several rooming houses in which it was reported Diamond's show girl "moll" had been staying were searched by the police, but no trace of her was uncovered.

About three weeks ago when the police raided a rooming house near thecapitol in search of two New York City gunmen they discovered the Roberts girls and Diamond together.

Word came from District Attorney John T. Delaney that he had learned Diamond spent several hours last night in a Ten Broeck street rooming house with the show girl. When police went to

U. S. AGAIN WARNS JAPAN OF CONCERN OVER MANCHURIA

STIMSON HINT FIRM, BUT FRIENDLY

Ambassador Forbes Tells Nipponese Once More of Its Treaty Obligations

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—A new expression of concern over the Manchurian situation, in friendly but positive terms, has been communicated to Japan by the American government.

Ambassador Forbes, in Tokio on instructions of Secretary Stimson, has again emphasized to the Japanese Foreign Office American solicitude that obligations under the Nine Power and Kellogg-Briand treaties be respected.

President Hoover, in his message to Congress on foreign affairs, pointed out that the United States as a party to the two pacts had a "responsibility in maintaining the integrity of China and a direct interest with other nations in maintaining peace."

No formal communication was delivered to the foreign office by the ambassador, but the American attitude was re-expressed verbally to the Japanese.

Machine Guns Quell Nanking Rioting

NANKING, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—Students who had terrorized for four days were subdued today with a display of machine guns and threats of violence by acting President Lin Sen of the new Chinese government.

A group of Peiping students, even more militant than the others, barricaded themselves in the Central University and surrendered only after scores of troops had laid a siege around the buildings for several hours.

Students from other cities throughout China, numbering about 40,000, were marched under arms to various railroad stations and held under strong guards until trains could be ordered to transport them home.

One of the first acts of the Cantonese delegates after their arrival here was to go into conference with Chiang Kai Shek, who returned here after having left ostensibly to retire to his native home.

Tsang Believed New Manchuria Dictator

MUKDEN, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—Further weight today was given to the rumors that Gov. Tsang Hsih-Yi has become the first head of an independent Manchuria, when he granted his first interview to world newspaper correspondents and outlined the policy to be pursued in the war-torn territory.

The new Chinese governor, who was installed with apparent satisfaction to the Japanese following the capitulation of former Gov. Chang Hsueh-Liang, staunch Nationalist, called the correspondents into his office at noon. Many Japanese aides were to be seen about the office.

American Newspaper Suppressed in Tokio

TOKIO, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—Police ordered the suppression of today's issue of the "Japan Advertiser," American publication and leading English newspaper of the capital, describing the latest movement of troops to Manchuria.

The accounts to which objection was raised brought out that yesterday's sanction of sending more troops to Manchuria would raise the total forces there to 20,000 men. This figure was given out by the foreign office.

With the complete approval of Emperor Hirohito, a mixed brigade of nearly 5,000 Japanese troops were bound today for Manchuria.

The dispatch of the fresh forces will raise Japanese troops in China above the number allowed under existing treaties.

COUNCIL PLANS TO MODIFY JOB BAN ON WIVES

Married Women in 'Frugal' Positions to Stay; Action On Tax Levy Delayed

Members of Council today agreed to modify the edit barring married women whose husbands are employed from the city payroll as action on the 1932 tax levy went over until Monday.

Twenty-five women employes of the City Home and Hospital at Mayview protested the order. They informed Council that yesterday, when they drew their pay, they were required to sign resignations to be effective within from three to six months. They receive about $65 a month.

President John S. Herron and Councilman M. J. Muldowney took the stand that the order was not intended to apply to those holding "frugal" positions and said they would present a resolution late today exempting the Mayview women. Its adoption was anticipated.

Prospect of setting the tax rate this week faded at today's sessions, as payroll information received from department heads had not been scanned.

A cut of 2½ to 3 mills is anticipated, according to members of the committee. None will be quoted as to the possibility of the millage rate, except Councilman Robert Garland. Garland has announced his intention of demanding a 3-mill reduction, "no matter whom it hurts." Other members hope to effect a compromise cut of possibly 2½ mills.

The Pittsburgh Real Estate Board and the Building Owners and Managers Association have demanded a 5-mill slash, but it was indicated last night that the Board—after scrutinizing Councilmanic cuts in appropriations so far—would be satisfied with 3½ mills.

'LEGS' DIAMOND FOUND SLAIN IN ROOM

the Ten Broeck street place there was no trace of her.

None of the women held knew anything. Mrs. Diamond, hysterical, protested her own innocence to detectives, crying amid sobs:

WIFE NOT THERE

Police said they were convinced that Mrs. Diamond was not in the rooming house when Diamond was killed today. She said she was at a friend's home in another part of the city.

Definite information that Mrs. Diamond was not present when Diamond was slain came from Mrs. Wood. The landlady said as soon as she discovered Diamond's body she called Mrs. Diamond on the telephone in a Broadway speakeasy.

From the scanty information available during the first hour after Diamond's lifeless body was found in the bottle-strewn murder room, it appeared that two men entered the place stealthily in the early hours of the morning.

With or without warning, they poured their bullets into Diamond's body, fled down the back stairs of the place and escaped in a waiting automobile.

As the two gunmen ran down stairs, one said:

"Oh, hell, that's enough."

The other commented:

"Yeah, we got him that time."

Police announced this afternoon that the gun, believed to have been the weapon which sent Diamond to his death, had been found in the gutter of Lancaster street, a short distance from the Dove street rooming house.

MYSTERIOUS TIP

Shortly before 6 o'clock this morning, Dr. Thomas Holmes, of Delmar, a suburb of Albany, Diamond's personal physician, received a mysterious telephone call. The voice said:

"Come immediately. Something has happened to Jack Diamond."

The telephone clicked. Dr. Holmes tried to learn the identity of his informer. The answer to his questions was perfect silence. He told detectives later the voice was not familiar, but that it was that of a man.

The physician hastily donned some clothing and sped to the rooming house at 67 Dove street, in the shadow of the state capitol building.

When he arrived, Diamond's body had been discovered by Mrs. Laura M. Wood, keeper of the rooming-house where the shooting occurred. She was placed under arrest as a material witness and taken to the police station.

The three slugs which ended the life of Diamond brought to a spectacular finish the charmed life of one of America's most publicized gangsters and hoodlums.

Born in Philadelphia, he went to New York as a boy with his family and there began his rise to prominence in the underworld. A lieutenant of the slain Arnold Rothstein, he attempted to succeed the notorious gambler as king of the underworld, but he never succeeded.

He was arrested 22 times and always acquitted. Seven of the charges involved homicides.

ELECTION CASES CLOG COURTS

The District Attorney's office is pushing steadily the prosecution of election fraud cases, and already more than 300 indictments have been recorded in connection with the fall elections.

That the large number of violations makes it impossible to prosecute them all was pointed out by Judge James H. Gray in his address to the Minor Judiciary Association at the William Penn Hotel. Judge Gray said:

"We can't bring every one before the court for minor infractions. If we do we would have to use this and every other hotel for jails. Election cases, for example, are numerous. I sentence severely in election cases, but in the last election we had more than 10,000 violations of the election laws and we can't prosecute all of them. We'll have to pick out the most flagrant cases."

A mass of election evidence is being examined at the District Attorney's office, and every case which has any strength is being prosecuted.

DIES ON BEACH, BROTHER HERE

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 18.—The body found clad in a bathing suit in the surf at Miami Beach was identified today as that of R. M. Donahey, 62, brother of W. A. Donahey, of Wilkinsburg, Pa. The right temple was powder burned.

Police here say they believe he shot and killed himself. The body will be sent to Wilkinsburg.

Wallace Beery Will Adopt Baby Girl

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Wallace Beery, screen star, who has no children of his own, will adopt Carol Ann Priester, 18 months old, and rear her two brothers, he said last night.

Carol Ann and her brothers, George, 9, and William, 4, are the children of the late Mrs. Irving Priester, an aunt of Mrs. Beery. Their father said he did not want to separate them and when the Beerys decided to adopt the girl, they agreed to rear the two boys.

Auto Driver Held In Death of Girl

A coroner's jury today recommended that Frank Ball, of Monongahela, be held for the grand jury on a manslaughter charge in connection with the death of Lois Irene Lauderbagh, 20, of Monongahela.

Ball admitted he had been drinking when his automobile, in which Miss Lauderbagh was riding, plunged down an embankment last November 11.

SCHOOLEY AIDE'S FATE DELAYED

Charles Solomon, of Bedford avenue, former clerk in the City Treasurer's office, will not be sentenced today for the embezzlement of $3,000 from the Treasurer's office last April, to which he had pleaded guilty. The sentence was to have been meted out by Judge George V. Moore, but Solomon's attorney, Harry Bluestone, asked the court to postpone it on account of the death yesterday of Bluestone's father.

Sentence was postponed at the time Solomon pleaded guilty, so he could try to make restitution. Again in September he asked further postponement on the grounds that he had not yet been able to restore the money. The final date was set last Friday.

Former Treasurer Roy D. Schooley and his private investigator, Arthur G. Burgoyne, were witnesses before the grand jury against Solomon, charging that he took tax payments from people waiting in line, and gave them forged tax receipts.

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Maj. James H. Doolittle, speed flier, will fly to Havana, Cuba, January 3 on a business trip, he said last night. He will make no attempt to break any records, and may take two days for the flight, depending on weather conditions.

BARCROFT DEAD; CARNEGIE AIDE

BRADFORD, Pa., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Samuel R. Barcroft, 87, one of the pioneers of the oil industry, died today of infirmities of age.

Barcroft, associated with Andrew Carnegie in the founding of the old Hazelwood Oil Company, also was interested in the oil fields of Oklahoma, Texas, Illinois, Ohio and Kentucky.

He had charge of the first well drilled in Greene County, Pa., in 1866. The next year found him in Oil Creek, now Oil City. He remained at Oil Creek until 1876 when the Hazelwood Company came into being. He was a director and general superintendent of that firm until 1925, when it was acquired by the South Penn Oil Company, Pittsburgh.

Amsterdam Police Fire on Jobless

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Police fired on a crowd of unemployed persons today, injuring one man, when they threw stones and refused to disperse. Some of the ringleaders were arrested.

The trouble, reported to have been incited by Communists, was believed to be due to dissatisfaction with regulations obliging the jobless to call at exchanges twice daily and have their cards stamped.

CHECKING WORK OF PAYROLLERS

City Controller James P. Kerr has two men at work checking the city's payroll of 6,000 employes, to ascertain how many are performing the specific services for which the taxpayers pay them about $10,000,000 annually.

The Controller said probers have been employed for the last few weeks. The inquiry is an outgrowth of an audit of the Department of Supplies and the City Treasurer's office.

Asked about disclosures, Dr. Kerr said:

"I have not received a report."

When it was suggested politics might be mixed up in the outcome, the Controller added:

"After all, the best politics to play would be an efficient and honest government."

Several months ago a delegation representing the Citizens Committee and the League of Women Voters requested the Controller to make a payroll survey. Controller Kerr would not admit that the checkup is a result of that request.

France Orders Start On New Naval Ships

PARIS, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—The Chamber of Deputies today authorized the Ministry of Marine to begin work on the 1932 portion of the naval program which calls for the construction of four cruisers of 7,000 and 8,000 tons, one torpedo boat destroyer, one torpedo boat and one river gunboat.

The total construction cost, including equipment, is $49,500,000. The work is to begin between January 4 and March 31, 1932.

2 GUNMEN ROB COUPLES IN CAR

Two young couples were harmonizing "Many Happy Returns of the Day" as they drove along Rodi road near Turtle Creek last night when two armed highwaymen who seemed drunk hopped on the running board.

The thugs ordered the four to leave the car. Catherine Montgomery, 17, of 609 Windsor avenue, Forest Hills, screamed.

A thug grabbed her scarf and pulled her to the road.

From the driver, John Mertaland, of Larimer avenue, Turtle Creek, they took a $70 watch and 18 cents, then returned 16 cents; from Raymond Chase, Cedar avenue, Turtle Creek, they took $1. Neither Catherine nor the second girl, her sister, Ruth, 18, were molested further, although the bandits criticized all four for not having more money and some liquor.

Two other holdups were reported. A "customer" with a shotgun held up Verner Arend, 206 Chester avenue, in his taxicab in Riverview Park and took the cab and $2.75. Later the cab was found.

Three bandits slugged John Blythe, 22, the attendant, over the head, then took $7 from the register of the Gulf gas station in Atlantic avenue, at the Dravosburg bridge, McKeesport.

Fake Dealers Sought In Chair Thefts

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—Two fake furniture dealers were sought by police today, as members of the socially prominent Pastorius family of this city mourned the loss of three valuable chairs which had been in the possession of the family since the Revolutionary War. The chairs, two chippendales and a sheradon armchair were valued at $1,100.

DOG PATIENTS SAVED AT FIRE IN HOSPITAL

Dozen Assorted Canines and Pet Parrot Carried to Safety; Cat Rescues Self

A dozen or more assorted dogs and a parrot were carried to safety last night when fire damaged Dr. C. W. Cangi's dog and cat hospital, 2217 Fifth avenue. The damage was $50.

The yips and growls from the dozen canine throats brought police and pedestrian to the smoke-filled building before the arrival of firemen.

The animals were carried out one by one, willing or otherwise. On the sidewalk in front of the kennels water and sedatives restored the animals.

Above the din in the kennels could be heard the scolding and screechings of Dr. Gangi's pet parrot, Peter, who submitted to rescue after digging his beak into assisting hands.

Missing, but accounted for, is one gray cat of the alley variety. It was reported seen in a dash for safety, and it failed to show up when the other patients were returned to the quarters after the fire was out.

The cause of the fire was not established.

RISING FLOODS GRIP SOUTH

JACKSON, Miss., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—High water in Mississippi, Arkansas and Alabama blocked highway traffic, flooded farm lands and drove Negroes from their homes.

Streams were rising rapidly from rains during 48 hours and heavy downpours continued last night in parts of Mississippi. The main force of the storms was felt in North Mississippi, but around Camden, Ark., the Ouachita River had reached a 30-foot stage. Smaller streams out of their banks have closed highways to traffic.

All highways out of Camden, except the Little Rock road, were reported blocked and unharvested crops inundated.

In the midst of the downpour North and Central Mississippi were shaken by an earthquake that was felt in Alabama, Tennessee and Arkansas. The weather forecast was for more rain.

AUTO 'PETTING' DENIED BY BROWNING

Neither His Car Nor His Mind 'Built That Way,' 'Daddy' Says on Stand

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Edward (Daddy) Browning took the stand at today's session of the divorce action brought against him by Frances (Peaches) Browning, to deny that either his automobile or his mind were "built for petting."

Previous witnesses had told of seeing Browning riding in his car with Marion and Evelyn Jenis. It was said that one of the girls sat in his lap.

Counsel for Mrs. Browning asked today if Browning thought it would be possible to see from the outside whether any lap sitting was going on in the car. He replied:

"I am not a good authority on sitting on laps."

"Is the car built for petting?"

"Absolutely not. My mind is not built that way."

Browning testified that he talked with the Jenis sisters about books and music and dancing—"all nice clean topics that nice clean young ladies like to discuss"—but that their charm and beauty was never the subject of conversation. Leaning forward, he declared:

"They were as good as my mother, and neither you nor anyone else will dispute my mother with me."

ATTACKS SPUR CULBERTSON, LEAD GROWS

Takes 5 Out of 6 Rubbers; Sees Lenz and Jacoby as 'World's Worst Losers'

The analysis of last night's bridge match by Mrs. Culbertson appears on Page 17.

By J. C. OESTREICHER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Apparently thriving under criticism and attack, Ely Culbertson today held a lead of 4,965 points over Sidney Lenz, his opponent in the marathon contract bridge tournament.

Dismissing with a few words the onslaught of F. D. Courtenay, president of Bridge Headquarters, who charged the whole tournament was a "publicity" stunt and that the principals were playing like "monkeys," Culbertson went into last night's session against Lenz and Oswald Jacoby, partnered by Theodore A. Lightner.

NEW PARTNER STARS

Lightner, who replaced Mrs. Josephine Culbertson when the wife of the "approach forcing" master decided it was time to give some Christmas attention to her children, grabbed the spotlight on the very first hand dealt by bidding game in no trump and making three overtricks.

It gave the Culbertson team a helpful start, and with the aid of powerful cards and ultra-conservative bidding on the part of Lenz and Jacoby they raced through five straight rubbers. The Lenz-Jacoby outfit had to be content with taking the last rubber of the evening.

Experts who again thronged the hotel where the match is in progress were at a loss to understand the pall that fell over the usual brilliant playing of Lenz and Jacoby. Numerous instances were cited where good hands were hopelessly underbid or passed, while bickering marred the hitherto perfect relationship between the pair who are pitting Lenz's 1-2-3 system against that of Culbertson.

ASSAILS OPPONENTS

On one occasion, Lenz called Jacoby into an ante-room and for 10 minutes they remained closeted in secret. What transpired no one knows, but Jacoby came out with his usual flashing smile conspicuously absent.

Culbertson peppered last night's session with a statement accusing his opponents of being "bad losers." He said:

"Another session like last night and Mr. Lenz and Mr. Jacoby will acquire a reputation of being the world's worst losers. I have yet to see so much petty squabbling, unknowing gestures and petty despair as was in their game. They are showing all the symptoms of bad losers. Perhaps they are only human, but I wish they wouldn't be so abominably human."

The Gulf states' low pressure area remained nearly stationary during the last 24 hours and diminished considerably in intensity. It produced light rain over practically the same area that rain occurred in the preceding 24 hours, but there was no further northward development of the rain area. The northern disturbances moved rapidly eastward north of the border. The southeastern high increased in area and in pressure. There is not much cloudiness over the country this morning, but much of the Lower Ohio Valley and eastward over Kentucky and Tennessee is covered with dense fog. Temperature changes east of the Mississippi were slight, but mostly towards warmer. Over the plains states there was a rather marked rise in temperature.

ACTRESS WEDS ENGLISH DUKE

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—In a brief and simple ceremony climaxing legal delays, the Duke of Manchester was married yesterday to Miss Kathleen Dawes, London actress.

While a half dozen close friends looked on, the Duke was wed to the woman he had known and admired for 15 years.

The couple motored here from New York, satisfied a legal technicality, heard themselves pronounced husband and wife by Surrogate William C. Rungee, and then sped back to New York, where they will stay until they leave December 26 for Cuba.

The Duke accompanied Miss Dawes to the town hall, where she signed the marriage license application. The Duke had signed it Saturday with the one word, "Manchester," then scrawled above it, "William Angus Drogo Montagu."

The Duke's first wife was the former Helena Zimmerman, of Cincinnati.

W. VA. DENTIST ACCUSED BY RIVAL

By MILLER HOLLAND
International News Service.

RENO, Nev., Dec. 18.—The state neared the end of its case today against Dr. Carl Pierre Andre, young West Virginia dentist on trial for the murder of his pretty young sweetheart, Mrs. Martha Hutchinson, a West Virginia widow.

Bernard Underwood, a former student at the University of Nevada, who was a friend of Mrs. Hutchinson, caused a sensation in court when he testified that Dr. Andre had said to Mrs. Hutchinson about Underwood:

"You'll never see him again."

CO-ED TELLS OF PARTIES

That pretty co-eds and young men at the University of Nevada, located here, mingled with gay members of Reno's divorce colony at cocktail parties at the dude ranch of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., was testified by Miss Mary Ruth Seamon, a senior at the university.

The state charged Dr. Andre struck Mrs. Hutchinson and pushed her from his speeding automobile. Dr. Andre said that Mrs. Hutchinson fell out.

FEAR OF BEATING

Shortly before Underwood's testimony, a statement that Mrs. Hutchinson feared she would be beaten by Dr. Andre was read into the evidence. Testimony given by Maxwell R. McMillan, at the Fairmont, W. Va., dentist's preliminary hearing, was entered over the protests of defense attorneys.

McMillan, former San Francisco newspaperman, and later an employe of the Lazy Me Ranch of Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., in Reno, is missing. He had testified that Dr. Andre entered a room of the dude ranch, seized Mrs. Hutchinson by the arm, and forced her to leave in the dentist's automobile.

Before she departed McMillan said she shouted:

"If he beats me up tonight I'll telephone and you can come and get me."

DENIES DRINKING

Underwood testified he did not see Mrs. Hutchinson again after the meeting at the apartment and that the next time he saw Dr. Andre was in the Sheriff's office at the County Jail.

Underwood was under direct examination for nearly an hour, and during that time testified that never once had he seen Martha Hutchinson intoxicated. Mrs. Claire Stott, a divorcee who had been termed "the woman in the case" by the prosecution, had testified on cross-examination that both Underwood and Mrs. Hutchinson were "frequently under the influence of liquor," and that only two nights before the young widow's death she and Underwood were "very much intoxicated" at Belle Livingston's night club.

EX-CARDINAL DIES RECLUSE

ARICCIA, Italy, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—One of the most vivid careers in the Roman Catholic Church came to an end today with the death of former Cardinal Louis Billot, at the age of 85.

The man who several years ago was the center of a bitter fight between the Holy See and the Action Francaise movement died in a humble cell at the Jesuit Monastery here. He had resigned his cardinalate in 1927, supposedly in remonstrance against the severity of the Pope's campaign which ended with placing L'Action Francaise, French royalist newspaper, on the index expurgatorius.

Pope Pius X made him a cardinal in 1911 and it was he who crowned the present Pope on December 2, 1922. He was the first cardinal to resign in many generations.

After he put away the red hat he became a simple priest, but his name was stricken from the Pontifical Annual.

Two alternatives to closing the schools were proposed at the meeting. The one was a request to the teachers to take a voluntary cut in pay and other to appeal to delinquent taxpayers to pay their last years assessments.

Bankrupt Duncan Sisters Draw Crowds—Creditors

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—The sisters Duncan came into Bankruptcy Court yesterday with liabilities of about $50,000 and visible assets of two grins, cheerful under the circumstances.

First Rosetta and then Vivian of the stage and screen pair, worth more than $1,000,000 three years ago, they said recently, took the stand and answered questions about where the money went.

Rosetta admitted she made personal loans of thousands of dollars to friends in the theatrical profession that she did not expect ever to collect. She said she financed her brother in a cafe venture and lost a lot of money. The sisters bought a $40,000 house in White Plains (N. Y.), and deeded a third of it to a sister in Detroit in 1928, "just as a gift."

Now they have a Hollywood stage contract, Rosetta observed.

Vivian suggested:

"Maybe all the creditors came out to see how business is."

The hearing was mainly on the question of whether a receiver should be appointed.

M'FADDEN SEEN AS CANDIDATE FOR SENATE

Hoover Critic, Disciplined By Reed and Davis, May Seek Seat Held By Latter

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—Stripped of his patronage and rebuked by his Pennsylvania colleagues for his attack upon President Hoover's foreign debt moratorium which brought mention of the word "impeachment" on the House floor, Representative Louis T. McFadden of Canton, Pa., loomed today as a possible opponent of Senator James J. Davis in the Republican primaries of the state next spring.

LOSES PATRONAGE

Representative McFadden, retiring Republican chairman of the powerful Banking and Currency Committee, was divested of further patronage control in his Congressional District by Senator David A. Reed and Senator Davis, who served notice of their action in a joint statement issued last night after a visit of Senator Reed to the White House.

Pennsylvania circles of the national capital were stirred today by the drastic disciplinary action taken against McFadden. On all sides it was agreed that the effect of the Reed-Davis edict will be to thrust the Canton Congressman forward as a potential opponent of Senator Davis, who comes up for re-election next year. Some of his friends are known to be urging him already to enter the field a vindication campaign.

NOTIFIED

Representative McFadden had to...ment to make this morning on ...e punitive measures.

The decision of Senators Reed and Davis to take over all federal patronage in the McFadden district was reached after a conference at the Capitol. Later Reed notified Postmaster General Walter F. Brown that hereafter he was not to consider any recommendations by McFadden for postmastership appointments.

Still later Senator Reed went to the White House, where he held a brief conference with President Hoover. Leaving, he remarked, referring to McFadden:

"There is a primary election coming in Pennsylvania this spring and I do not believe he will be with us thereafter."

One effect of the developments is to place McFadden in the same political camp with Gov. Gifford Pinchot, one of the Hoover administration's biggest critics almost from the start.

REPRESENTATIVE LOUIS T. McFADDEN SPEAKING IN CONGRESS

RAIL OFFICIALS IN PAY PARLEY

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Executives of eastern, southern and western railroads were in conference today on the question of appointing a national committee to negotiate with the labor unions for a wage cut of probably 10 per cent.

The presidents' conferences representing the eastern and southern roads have already named committees to meet with the labor chiefs for the purpose of carrying "to a conclusion," as the unions requested, the problems of wage and employment which have also been subjects of extensive negotiation.

Western railroads failed to name a group to meet with the unions and some of their executives, it was believed, would urge immediate service of notices cancelling in 30 days all contracts with labor. There was a feeling, however, that efforts would be made toward a compromise and that there would be no necessity for contract abrogations.

in Germany was enthusiastically received by many leaders in Congress. They expressed the view that his assurance would go far in restoring public confidence in the banking situation.

CONTRAST EVIDENT

On the other hand, foes of debt cancellation were prompt to point out the sharp contrast that Lamont's testimony afforded regarding the administration's solicitude, as they expressed it, for private debts and the willingness to forego government debts.

They stressed the fact that at a time when the President was calling for a suspension of government debt payments in order to save Germany from "collapse" that she was paying her private obligations and the international bankers had every confidence she would continue to do so.

Lamont disclosed that the house of Morgan has floated in the United States since 1920 a total of $1,636,398,000 in foreign securities. This was divided as follows:

Argentine	$139,800,000
Australia	$165,000,000
Austria	$ 50,000,000
Belgium	$260,000,000
Canada	$105,348,000
Manitoba	$ 5,000,000
Chile	$ 24,000,000
Cuba	$ 59,000,000
France	$300,000,000
Germany	$208,250,000

The "spread" for handling these vast sums of securities, Lamont testified, varied from a fraction of 1 per cent to 5 and 6 per cent. He denied that this was a "profit," explaining it covered the cost of floating the issues.

DENIES 'COERCION'

He emphatically denied that "coercion" was used to distribute the bonds among smaller banks and said New York bankers have been submitting foreign loans to the State Department for approval since 1920, when they were requested to do so by President Harding.

Lamont could not estimate the amount of German short-term credits held in this country, as Morgan has not dealt in this financing. He suggested this information could be obtained from Charles E. Mitchell, head of the National City Bank of New York, who has been summoned as a witness.

Lamont was asked:

"Do you think that the American investment public is unduly alarmed about the stability of German securities?"

He replied:

"Undoubtedly, I think so."

Morgan & Co. handled no German bonds other than the two national government issues. The company still has a few of these bonds, but Lamont was unable to say how many. He was directed to submit a statement of the bank's holdings.

Objections to the publication of this list was raised by Senator Reed (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, who, throughout the hearing, took an attitude of a friendly aid to the witness. The question went over for the time being.

Lamont said he was "a little mortified" to tell of the small commission the Morgan firm had received from floating foreign bonds in this country, explaining:

"I am afraid it will make the sympathy and pity of the committee too much."

Under questioning, the banker denied that Morgan and Co., had a "permanent" loan-handling agreement with Great Britain or any other foreign country. He declared each government "was free to deal with anyone."

Regarding the French loan, made in three separate issues of $100,000,000, Lamont said the first has been completely retired, the second has been reduced to below $60,000,000, and the third to under $71,000,000.

Senator Harrison (Dem.), of Mississippi, said:

"We settled the French debt in 1926 at 51 cents on the dollar. They made a very good bargain, didn't they?"

"I think the United States government treated the debtor nations very fairly. It's not for me to pass judgment."

Harrison replied:

"But we were very generous."

Under questioning from Senator Johnson, Lamont disclosed that all the French loans were purchased outright by Morgan & Co. at a price of 94, 90 and 89. Lamont said:

"They were ultimately sold to investors at 100, 95 and 94 and bearing interest of 6 and 5 per cent."

PUBLIC LOSES

These issues were handled by Morgan & Co. and three associates and syndicated through distributing syndicates. The first syndicate was charged 1 per cent. The last syndicate was charged 3 and 4 per cent.

Lamont told the committee the larger "spread" on loans in early years after the World War was due to unstable condition of the money market. He denied that the "spread" is a "profit." He declared it was chiefly to pay for the cost of distribution and handling of bonds.

Meanwhile, in the House, the resolution approving the moratorium negotiated by President Hoover itself faced determined opposition.

Congress Checking Hoover Dictatorial Policy on Debt Cuts

his opinion as to what reservations to the treaty of Versailles the Senate would approve.

"No Senator can speak for the Senate. If the President wishes the views of the Senate in regard to reservations he should convene the Senate in extra session and request its views in the regular way."

That is what President Wilson was finally compelled to do and the Senate rejected the treaty of Versailles.

That is what President Hoover should have been compelled to do, regardless of whether the Congress approved or rejected his moratorium agreement.

By refusing to ratify this agreement without debate, however, Congress, under the leadership of the Democratic Speaker, is belatedly but finally calling a halt upon the attempt of Mr. Hoover TO EXERCISE DICTATORIAL POWER, UNAUTHORIZED BY THE CONSTITUTION AND UNJUSTIFIED BY ANY CONDITION EXISTING AT THE TIME HE MADE HIS MORATORIUM AGREEMENT.

It is high time for the Congress to reassure the country that the government of the Constitution still lives.

It is high time, also, for foreign governments to be put on notice that the government at Washington IS A CONSTITUTIONAL GOVERNMENT AND NOT A DICTATORSHIP.

BAN ON COLLEGE BALL REFUSED

John C. Bair, of Trafford, and Jane Zacharias, of 5816 Wayne road, will conduct the intercollegiate ball in the William Penn Hotel Christmas night. Judge James R. Macfarlane, in Common Pleas Court today, refused without going into a hearing, the injunction sought by Robert M. Gordon, of Carnegie, to enjoin the couple from holding the ball.

After reading the bill and without testimony, Judge Macfarlane said:

"The bill on its face does not merit an injunction."

The ball, an annual affair staged by Gordon and Bair since 1926 when the initial event had a mailing list of 200, has grown each year until the list numbers many thousands. Gordon in his bill said he and his partner split $1,000 profit on the first ball and last year Miss Zacharias shared in the receipts to the extent of $900. Gordon said that this year he had been ignored in the arrangements and brought the injunction suit.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS UP IN COUNCIL

Circumstances under which the traffic engineer should be consulted before turning out traffic lights were outlined by the Better Traffic Committee yesterday in reply to an inquiry from City Council following the turning off of lights the day of the Army-Pitt football game.

The committee declared the turning off of lights in unforeseen emergency conditions is a matter which must be handled by the police, and that provisions for unusual traffic conditions which can be foreseen should be planned in advance by the Bureau of Police and the Bureau of Traffic Planning.

Policies recommended by the committee at its meeting yesterday included the confining of downtown bus routes to streets outside of the Triangle or as near to the edge thereof as possible, in view of the many applications for bus routes traversing the downtown district.

EXPERTS BACK MORATORIUM

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT

BASEL, Switzerland, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—A moratorium on German reparations during the world crisis will probably be recommended by the advistory committee of the Bank for International Settlements.

At the same time the committee, which has been examining the Reich's ability to meet its obligations abroad, is expected to advise against cancelation of them.

The experts' examination of the finances of the German state railways upon the receipts of which Germany's uncondition reparations are a first lien, has convinced them that the railroads' embarrassment is only temporary.

PERIL IN U. S. PAY CUT SEEN

That the much-talked-of wage reduction for federal employes would afford little relief in the present government budget deficiency, and would serve to lower the present economic standard of living, in the opinion of S. J. Parsons, of 7711 Snowden street, employe of the Bureau of Animal Industry.

Mr. Parsons said he believed the reduction would further weaken the position of farmers and business and professional men in places where government activities are located. In many places, he believes, a real hardship would be imposed.

Reed 'Same Jackass,' Ex-Judge Declares

READING, Pa., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Former Judge Robert Grey Bushong last night replied to Senator Reed, who recalled Bushong's assertion in 1928 that William Vare and Senator Reed were "crooks." Bushong said:

"All I have to say is this: Senator Reed is the same jackass in 1931 that he was in 1928."

WOMAN FREED BY KIDNAPERS UNHARMED

RANSOM NOT PAID

Former Senator James A. Reed, neighbor and attorney for the Donnellys, who rushed here yesterday from Jefferson City to negotiate with the kidnapers for Mrs. Donnelly's release, stated today that the $75,000 ransom had not been paid.

Police squad cars and deputy sheriffs set out at once in a renewed search for the gang.

Mrs. Donnelly said she and Blair were taken from the rendezvous about 30 minutes before they were put out of a motor car. She quoted one of the men as saying:

"Another car will be along soon to pick you up in a little bit."

In the meantime Police Chief I. M. Siegfried had received an anonymous telephone call, which instructed him where to find the victims. Accompanied by other officers, he drove down Kansas avenue to the designated place.

HAILED BY WOMAN

They failed to find the victims, but after cruising around a woman stepped out and asked:

"Is this the car that came for me?"

The woman was Mrs. Donnelly. Blair was with her.

Mrs. Donnelly was hysterical when she first entered the police car, but soon recovered her composure sufficient to tell a connected story of the abduction.

The kidnaping occurred at her home late Wednesday as she was returning from her downtown office. As Blair drove into the driveway another machine pulled in. Three men got out.

Blair was forced to move over from the wheel and two of the men got into the rear seat with Mrs. Donnelly. As the car moved away the men started to blindfold her. She said:

"That got my Irish up and I fought. But they finally got the sack over my head."

BOTH BLINDFOLDED

Blair also was blindfolded and, after a 20-minute drive, they were transferred to another car. Mrs. Donnelly related:

"We went out Brookside boulevard to Huntington road. I was kicking and screaming all the way, trying to attract the attention from the stream of motorists. The chauffeur was on the floor between the driver of the kidnapers' car and another of the captors. The driver drove carefully and pressed a revolver into the side of my chauffeur."

She said that once when the car slowed down she was tempted to make a leap. She said she was afraid to jump for fear of being run over by another car. She continued:

"It was 6 o'clock when they captured me. We drove for a long time and then we were taken into a dark house. I was seated without delay and they immediately told me they wanted money.

"'We took you because we want money,' they told me. 'We are not going to hurt you if you will do as we tell you. We will treat you all right, but we want $75,000.'

"I said, 'Oh, my land! I haven't that much money.'"

DICTATES LETTER

After some discussion as to whom the ransom demand should be delivered, she decided to write her attorney, James E. Taylor. She said one of the men stood near her with a flashlight and dictated the demand. She smiled:

"The young man who dictated that letter should be in some legitimate business. He certainly was clever about it."

She said the captives were tied hand and foot. The abductors had provided a bed for her and a cot for the chauffeur.

She said they were fed milk and crackers, and that only one of the men was discourteous. She described the house as "filthy."

"Then the thing got out (referring to the news of the abduction), and they came to me and told me they realized they never should have taken a woman and that they were going to release us. They told me to get up and they put the sack over my head again. They put another over Blair's head and took us out to the car."

Less than an hour later the two were released.

HORSE THROWS MAN TO DEATH

Lawrence P. Haverty, 27, a city dairy inspector, of 5641 Second avenue, was killed late yesterday when he was thrown from a horse near the Parkview Riding Academy, near South Park.

Haverty had gone to the riding school yesterday afternoon to consider the purchase of the horse.

Haverty's head struck a stone, and his death was caused by a fractured skull, Dr. H. S. Lake, of Coverdale, said.

Search for Child, 6, Lured Away by Man

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—A widespread search throughout the city was being made today for Marion McLean, 6, lured from her play late yesterday by a man who had been molesting children in the neighborhood for several months.

JUGGLE FUNDS FOR PHILA. PAYROLL

Two Millions 'Borrowed' From Other Accounts to Meet Overdue Salaries

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18.—The spirit of Christmas is abroad in the land after all, 25,000 municipal employes here decided today as they were notified their December 15 pay will be issued in currency starting tomorrow. Up until late last night, it appeared as if the city workers would be paid in scrip and left to their own devices as to cashing it.

After long deliberation, however, E. R. Cox, president of City Council, came to the rescue with a plan for filling the treasury by juggling other funds so tomorrow there will be $2,000,000 available to meet the overdue payroll.

Cox's plan calls for immediate payment of $2,000,000 from tax funds to the sinking fund, which will in turn loan the money to the city to meet the payroll due three days ago. Council will approve the plan at its session this afternoon.

Leaders, however, still faced the problem of meeting the payroll due December 31—and so far they haven't worked out a plan to take care of it.

Wales Hears Tales Of Flier, Explorers

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Three men who have adventured at the opposite end of the earth shook hands today with the Prince of Wales and told him of their experiences.

Bert Hinkler, the Australian who recently flew from South America to Africa, told his story, and Augustine Courtauld, who was lost for weeks in Greenland, recounted his experiences with S. G. Watkins, the man who rescued him.

Only His Marital Papers in Star's Deposit Box

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Rex Lease, motion picture cowboy described himself in Municipal Court as sans job, money and automobile.

He was examined as a judgment debtor for failure to pay a $53 judgment on a clothes cleaning bill against him and his former wife, Eleanor Hunt. Lease said he earned $28,000 last year and $2,000 this year and now is without funds. He said:

"I have a safe deposit box, though."

The court queried hopefully:

"Anything in it?"

"Yes, two used marriage licenses and two divorce decrees—that's all."

PARIS DEPUTIES IN FIST FIGHT

PARIS, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—A pitched battle was fought in the corridors of the French Chamber of Deputies today as the forenoon session recessed, with a hundred deputies swinging wildly at each other.

The trouble started when Frederic Brunet, former vice-president of the chamber, and one of his friends, pounced upon Deputy Basset as the latter left the amphitheater.

Basset, during a discussion of the unemployment situation, had accused Brunet of being a friend of Banker Oustric, indicted in a grave financial scandal.

Deputies came running from all sides as Brunet struck Basset and a general melee ensued. Basset was badly beaten.

Gunmen Get $2,500 In Payroll Holdup

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Dec. 18.—Two gunmen today held up the paymaster of the American Stores Company in the warehouse in the Woodville section and escaped with $2,500. After getting the money they fled to an automobile parked nearby, in which a confederate drove them away.

SEES BOY CLUBS AS CRIME CURE

Boys' clubs to compete with street gangs were advocated as the most effective deterrent of crime by Joe Mason, of Philadelphia, former Boy Scout leader and student of criminology in Pittsburgh, today. He said:

"An investigation of the principal penal institutions of the country shows that a majority of habitual criminals were delinquent before they were 16. Most of them could have been saved from a career of crime had their energies and activities as boys been rightly directed. Boys must have wholesome pursuits in their spare time."

Mason urged merger of the various boys' organizations in the interest of efficiency, followed by country-wide expansion of the boy club program.

Youthful Cynics Put 'Santa' to Flight

CLEVELAND, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—What! No Santa Claus?

Santa (believe it or not) toured the East Side aboard a holly-festooned truck yesterday. He stopped before a small crowd of schoolboys and began benignly:

"Well, my little men—"

One interrupted:

"Aw, you ain't Santa Claus; you just gotta beard."

CRASH DAMAGES 2 SUBMARINES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Two submarines of the United States fleet, the S-14 and S-16, must go into drydock as the result of a collision during tactical exercises yesterday in the Gulf of Panama.

The S-16 struck the S-14, flagship of submarine division 6, while making a submerged approach to the latter ship. There were no injuries to personnel.

The Navy Department was informed by Lieut. Com. G. C. Hitchcock, commander of the division, that both vessels were returning under their own power to Balboa.

The S-14 was reported to have a hole two by three feet in her outer hull near the stern. The stem of the S-16 was folded back a foot to a height of six feet by the impact. The inner hulls apparently were undamaged.

'AUCTION BRIDE' GETS BIG GIFT

Mary H. Clowes, 21, former Monongahela waitress who won first to place herself as a $10,000 "auction bride," today received a Christmas present.

It was a check for $10,000 from a Wilkinsburg man, who said he had no matrimonial intentions, but had given her the check to aid her parents, whose illness and poverty, according to Miss Clowes, who now lives at New Eagle, prompted her offer.

Mindful of a $10,000 check—which a Buffalo suitor sent last week and which returned from a Buffalo bank marked "N. G. Account"—Miss Clowes deposited the Wilkinsburger's check and sat back to await developments.

'GUESS' COSTS COUNTY $7,000

County Engineers guessed wrong when they built the Shaler-Fair bridge, according to V. R. Cover, of the Department of Public Works, in explaining why an additional $7,000 above the original price for the bridge had to be spent.

The bridge cost $247,000.

14 Held Here Under Compensation Laws

Fourteen Pittsburgh employers have been arrested during the past week for violation of the compensation insurance laws, T. A. Smith, Department of Labor and Industry representative here, said today. There are 90 other cases now being investigated, Smith said, under orders from Harrisburg.

Conviction carries a fine of from $100 to $500 or six months in jail, or both at discretion of the trial judge.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

Retribution

I'VE HAD this story on my desk for almost a year. It's a good yarn, but I didn't want to print it because it seemed to me to be too gruesome. After seeing some of the pictures around town and reading some of the latest novels, however, I have changed my mind.

My story, then—and every word of it is true—concerns two actors who were very good pals. For the sake of simplicity, let's tag them Eddie and George. Neither man was even close to being a star. As a matter of fact, when Eddie finally reached $100 a week, that was the highest either he or George had ever gone.

George was married. Eddie was single. If you met them with George's wife, though, you'd have a tough job deciding which man she was married to. She was their constant companion, and she saw almost as much of Eddie as she did of her husband. She knew their hopes, their plans and their desires. The three of them were just so many pals.

Things went along this way for about two years. Then one day it happened.

George had gone to his theater to give a regular performance in a tiny role. On the way to his dressing room, he had been taken suddenly ill. The stage manager took one look at him and told him to go right back home.

He did—and when he entered his own apartment there was the man he loved and the wife he adored. He didn't say a word. Finally his fists clenched tightly. He turned about — and he left.

About four hours later they brought George home again. He was dead.

An automobile had done the trick. It was a rainy night and the police determined that the accident was nobody's fault. George had stepped from the curb just as a bus machine was about to flash by. He walked directly into the path of the auto.

"It's a terrible shame, lady," sympathized a policeman. "And him so young, too. Ah, well, that's the way of the world. I always say that if it had to happen, it had to happen. It makes you feel better."

It didn't make either Eddie or the wife feel any better. It didn't need any expert detectives to tell them exactly what had happened. There had been nothing accidental in the death.

He had stepped out from the curb and had tossed himself into the path of that machine. He had taken his own life—but his wife and his pal knew only too well that they stood convicted of his murder just as much as though they had plunged knives into his back.

You picture their feelings for yourself. I'm not in the mood to describe them at the moment . . .

George's suicide made wrecks of the two people who had caused it. Call it justice or fate or whatever you will, but that's what happened. George left practically no money, thereby proving himself an actor to the last. It wasn't two months after his death that his widow was compelled to sell all his effects in order to raise some cash. And she made a thorough job of it by selling everything her late husband had ever owned.

She's still around town, but she's in pitiful shape. We'll let her disappear from the story at this point as swiftly as possible.

The effect of the tragedy on Eddie was just as bad. He had shown a little promise on the stage, as his $100 salary will attest. But whatever talent he possessed disappeared in short order. He took to the drink route in expert fashion. And it wasn't long before his future was all in the past.

After a year or so, whenever he was in his cups, Eddie began to have hallucinations. He didn't see the customary red goats or pink elephants, this was something worse. He began to fancy that George, the dead man, was following him. He would be sitting in a speakeasy when he would suddenly give vent to a piercing shriek. He would cover his eyes, point to a shadow and rush into the night. Plenty of bartenders on the West Side sniffed their liquor suspiciously after Eddie had made such an exit. They didn't know the story.

The last job that Eddie held on Broadway was a pretty sad one. He straightened himself out for the moment with three cups of black coffee and applied for a job as an extra in a show that was opening the following night. The position would pay him but $2 a night.

On the opening night, Eddie and some 15 other derelicts were herded into a dressing room beneath the stage. They had been measured earlier in the day, and their suits had arrived from the costumers. The man in charge rattled off the names and tossed them each a bundle.

"Get ready as quickly as possible," he ordered. "You're all on very shortly after the curtain."

Some two minutes later, Eddie gave vent to one of those horrible screams. He placed his hands over his eyes and began to shake as though he had suddenly been seized with the palsy.

He raced from the room. He climbed the iron stairs, barking his shins as he went. Still screaming, he opened the stage door and raced away. From that day to this he has never been seen. He is unquestionably dead. Although where and how I do not know.

I do know, however, what caused him to flee. The suit that had been handed him was the one in which George had been killed! . . .

End of Canadian Trade Pacts Seen

OTTAWA, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—Abrogation by Canada of its trade treaty with France, announced from Paris, may result in the redrafting of treaties between Canada and a dozen other countries which also enjoyed the special concessions given France over and above the intermediate Canadian tariff.

The treaty with France was the basis of the other most favored nation agreement and abrogation of that treaty automatically removes broad concessions given by Canada on wines, knitted goods, perfumes, laces and a wide classification of chemical products.

Senate Asks Report Of Farm Loan Board

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—The Federal Farm Loan Board has been directed by the Senate to submit a statement showing the amount and number of its outstanding loans and what foreclosures it has ordered. This action was taken on a resolution offered by Senator McKellar, (Dem.), of Tennessee.

KIN OF POISONED WOMAN SOUGHT

GREENSBURG, Pa., Dec. 18.—Westmoreland County authorities today were seeking to locate relatives of Mrs. Lillian Martin, 50, formerly of 1119 West North avenue, Pittsburgh, whose body was found in a hotel room in Delmont, near here.

Physicians said that Mrs. Martin, who was injured in an automobile accident some weeks ago, had taken poison.

Two notes were found on her dresser. One was addressed to Thomas Martin, 2922 E. street, Philadelphia, and the other to her son, Frank Martin, 5014 Liberty avenue, Pittsburgh.

The son is unknown at the Pittsburgh address, police said.

Close Stock Exchange Plea Made to Hoover

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 18.—The Oil City Chamber of Commerce today telegraphed President Hoover, asking him to use his influence immediately to close the stock exchanges "until such time as the present hysteria subsides and the country returns to a true sense of values." The message added:

"We believe that this action is even more imperative than the existing war debt moratorium, and that the welfare and security of the American people should be your first consideration in this financial crisis."

Woman as Sleuth Tracks Swindle Suspect

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 18.—(INS.)—A story of a 61-year-old woman who acted as her own detective in tracking down a man she charges swindled her of $2,500 a year ago was revealed here with the arrest of Isaac Gross, 31, formerly of Cleveland, O.

Last December Mrs. Charles Konya, 61, Maple Heights, O., lost the money to Gross and two other men. Six months ago she learned from friends that Gross was living in Buffalo.

PRIEST SHOT BY BANDITS

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—The Rev. Raphael Ferrari, 48, curate of the Convent of St. Vincent of Ferrari, was shot and seriously wounded last night by one of five men, who made an unsuccessful attempt to hold up a steamship agency.

Father Ferrari was seated behind a desk with the proprietor, discussing details of a pilgrimage, planned for July, 1932, when the five men entered, displaying weapons.

Cruiser Pittsburgh Brings $53,588 Bid

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—The U. S. S. Pittsburgh, which cost the Navy approximately $5,500,000 in 1905, has been offered for sale as scrap iron. The highest bid was $53,588 by the Union Shipbuilding Company of Baltimore, Md.

GUILTY OF MILK BOOTLEGGING

Charged with bootlegging milk into Pittsburgh, Samuel Breakstone, of Clark street, was found guilty in Criminal Court of violating the state health laws. He immediately filed a motion for a new trial.

Jerome Smith, of Clark street, and Jerome Matthews, Negro, of Bedford avenue, tried with Breakstone, were acquitted.

The case was brought by Leicester Patton, assistant superintendent of food inspection for the city. It was alleged 250 gallons of cream had been shipped by Breakstone from Lima, O., to Rochester, Pa., and then brought from there to Pittsburgh on a truck by Smith and Matthews, who delivered it to Breakstone here. Breakstone is said to have been agent here for the Conestoga Milk and Cream Corporation, of Lima, O., which, it was charged, does not have a license to bring milk into Pittsburgh.

Texas Electrocutes Murderer, Attacker

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Will Fritts, 41, Haskell County farmer, convicted of two murders, and Barney Lee Ross, Negro, convicted of attacking a white woman, were electrocuted at the State Penitentiary here early today.

Fritts received the death sentence for the slaying of D. W. Hamilton, a farmer, who was slain with his son, Earl Hamilton, three years ago.

HITLER BUYING 'SCOUT' AUTOS

BERLIN, Dec. 18.—(Universal)—The wrath of Adolf Hitler's opponents mounted higher today as the capital learned that the Fascist chieftain, en route on his trip of defiance to Berlin, plans to further "militarize" his party. He was expected to arrive here tonight.

Hitler stopped at Stuttgart to order a fleet of swift "scouting" automobiles. Coming atop his recent orders for airplanes, Hitler's latest move served to throw fear and anger into conservative ranks.

While the Fascist chieftain was personally inspecting a sample car, Minister of the Interior and War General Groener upon whom will fall the responsibility of quelling any Fascist outbreak toured the Rhineland.

The Fascist explanation for the airplane purchases is that the planes are needed by members of the party who wish to retain their pilots' licenses by flying the designated hours yearly.

PSYCHIC SUICIDE IN PLAY LAID TO JACOBY

Fault Costing 1,000 Points Cited by Mrs. Culbertson; Lauds Skill of Substitute

The following description of last night's play in the bridge match between exponents of the approach-forcing and the "official" system of contract bidding was written expressly for International News Service by Mrs. Josephine Culbertson.

By MRS. JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON
World's Greatest Woman Bridge Player.
opyright, 1931, International News Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 18. — I ook a holiday from contract ridge by sitting at a table in he crowded press room and nalyzing the bidding and play f each hand as my husband nd his new "favorite part- er," Theodore A. Lightner, ssumed the battle of 1,001 bridge ands with Sidney S. Lenz and swald Jacoby last night.

The psychic suicide committed y Mr. Jacoby in which he took a on-vulnerable penalty of 1,000 oints was the outstanding feature f the evening's play. More spec- acular as an example of the fault f a system was the defeat of the rand slam bid in hearts.

OLD GOOD LEAD

A comfortable lead of nearly ,000 points which we have estab- shed is a pleasant reserve against ossible adversity in the days to ome.

The most spectacular gain made hus far throughout the match as recorded on the second deal f rubber No. 53 as a result of a -called psychic overcall by Mr. acoby after Mr. Lightner had pened the bidding. Although the ontract was only to take seven icks, Mr. Jacoby failed by five icks and thus was penalized ,000 points, not vulnerable.

The bidding:

South.	West.	North.	East.
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 Diamond
Heart	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

The only tricks made by Mr. acoby were two trump tricks. f course, Ely and Ted could ave made a game, but the sacri- e of game was richly compen- ted.

REATEST THRILL

The hand that furnished me e greatest thrill in my role of alyst was deal No. 6 of rubber . 50 in which Mr. Lenz bid a hall slam in no trump which uld have been made against any ening except a club, but which r. Jacoby carried to seven hearts hen Ely doubled the six no ump contract. The hand and dding follow:

NORTH
Mr. Lenz.
Spades—A-Q-10-3.

Heart	Pass	3 N. T.	Pass
Heart	Pass	4 N. T.	Pass
Heart	Pass	6 N. T.	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Heart	Double

This was the first grand slam in the match. Mr. Jacoby's escue" of his partner's doubled no trump contract was, no ubt, caused by the fact that opening bid was based on aying-tricks and did not have e honor-trick strength which partner had a right to expect.

This completed "Christmas Jingle" must be in the mail before midnight Saturday, December 19, addressed to CHRISTMAS JINGLES, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Write No. 37 on the lower left-hand corner of your envelope. Names of winners will be published in the Sun-Telegraph one week from the day this incomplete "jingle" appears.

VET IN HOSPITAL JINGLE WINNER

Have you noticed that the Prince of Wales is writing jingles? Perhaps he has been reading the Sun-Telegraph.

In the meantime Vance Wolf, at the United States Veterans' Hospital, Aspinwall, has been trying to brighten life by writing Sun-Telegraph Christmas jingles and kept at it until he won a first prize check for $5. "Buddy" Wolf submitted a last line for Jingle No. 30 that was different from all others, according to the judges. Here is the limerick as he completed it:

A kindly old chef was McPeat,
Who often found something to eat
For a man sick or old
Or a tramp in the cold.
Or a barefooted waif of the street

The five $1 winners were A. W. Ferren, North Market street, East Palestine, O.; Ray Gillespie, 807 Deely street, Squirrel Hill; Mrs. Harry Paine, California, Pa.; Miss M. Fitzpatrick, 1 Colera street, Hays, and Robert Birkel, 1324 Complete street, North Side.

Try your hand on No. 37, appearing on this page today. The "last line" judged the best will win $5 and the next five $1 each.

All readers of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, with the exception of employes, are invited to enter the "Christmas Jingle" contest. You can send in as many last lines as you like.

Beat Christmas Heat By Wearing Pajamas

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—Christmas heat beat down upon the Argentine capital today with such intensity that many of the male population appeared on the streets garbed with pajama tops in place of suit coats.

A municipal regulation bars the public appearance of men in shirtsleeves, and wearing of the night garments was an effort to at once defeat the heat and remain within the bounds of the law.

Judicial Reception Held By Hoovers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—President Hoover chatted last night with many of the highest upon the nation's bench and bar, gathered at his bidding at the annual White House judicial reception.

Nearly 2,000 people, many of them prominent in the legal profession in distant parts of the United States, were in the long line that filed past the President and Mrs. Hoover.

Truck Kills 2 Young Yule Play Actors

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—A boy and a girl, returning from rehearsal for a Christmas play, were killed and another boy critically injured last night when they were struck by a truck at Colloden, 20 miles from here on the Midland Trail.

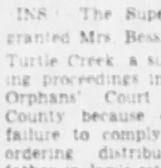
The dead were Artis Foster, 16, and Richard Leak, 15. The injured boy was Minor Turley, 14. They were returning home from the Colloden Baptist Church when hit by a truck driven by Hazel Jackson, 25, of Milton. Jackson and his companion, Clifford Swann, 23, of Milton, were held by police.

5 PASSENGERS HURT IN CRASH OF TROLLEY

Crowded Car Derailed in Oakland Crashes Against Pole During Rush Hour

Three women and two men were recovering today from injuries sustained late yesterday when a Negley avenue street car, crowded with passengers, left the tracks at Fifth and Meyran avenues, and crashed into an iron pole.

The injured, taken to Montefiore Hospital, were: Mrs. J. R. Barclay, of 613 Wilmot street; Mrs. Rose Oberman, 511 North St. Clair street; Joseph Trageser, 5439 Claybourne street; Miss Ruth Slynoff, 28, 1611 Mellon street, and Sam Port, 513 North St. Clair street.



Mrs. Oberman

They were treated for shock and abrasions of the arms and legs and discharged from the hospital. The injured were all riding in the rear of the car.

The accident occurred when the rear trucks of the car left the rails, causing the back of the car to swing around and crash into the pole. The accident happened in the rush hour, and many other passengers were badly shaken.

Mr. Trageser

The car was operated by James McKeever. Pittsburgh Railways Company will investigate the accident today.

WOMAN GAINS STAY IN SUIT

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—The Superior Court has granted Mrs. Bessie Yatkofsky, of Turtle Creek, a supersedeas staying proceedings instituted by the Orphans' Court of Allegheny County because of her alleged failure to comply with a ruling ordering distribution of her father-in-law's estate.

The higher court granted her bail of $2,500 on each appeal filed in the suit brought by her mother-in-law and her sister-in-law.

At the instance of the plaintiffs, Judge Thomas P. Trimble in Orphans' Court issued attachments in contempt for her failure to comply with his order of distribution.

Her counsel, Attorney J. I. Simon, caused a stir in Judge Harry Rowand's court when he declared the woman was being "persecuted" by certain influential attaches of the District Attorney's office. Charges of embezzlement were preferred by her sister-in-law, Rose Yatkofsky, alleging irregularities in the distribution of the estate of Rubin Yatkofsky, of which the defendant was administratrix.

Christmas in Jail Fall's Fate, U. S. Aide Declares

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—There'll be no release from prison in the Christmas stocking of Albert B. Fall.

He will spend the holiday—and probably many weeks of the new year—in the New Mexico State Penitentiary.

The Justice Department said action by the Parole Board could not be expected before January, and Attorney General Mitchell couldn't say when after that the board might dispose of Fall's application for parole.

We Now Present

By Darrell V. Martin, Radio Editor

JOY IS EVERYWHERE on the radio these days. . . . Leonard Joy, Alice Joy, Jimmie Joy and Billy Joy which reminds us, Billy Joy has been engaged to sing with Seymour Simons' Orchestra direct from Detroit on the Lucky Strike Dance Hour Christmas Eve, December 24. . . . Billy expects to be back in Pittsburgh about January 10. . . . Was somebody's face red the other day when Darrell V. Martin the name of a new feature, "The Bath Club," featuring social registerites, came out in a New York paper listed "The Bath Tub" . . . ho! ho! . . . it's new on CBS-WJAS Monday nights starting January 4. . . . Pat Barnes has not left the air . . . just vacationing with his family in Sharon, Pa., for three weeks.

Chimes of old Trinity in New York are to be rung from Bethlehem at midnight Christmas Eve over KDKA. . . . The Rev. Dr. Rennie MacInnes, bishop of Jerusalem, is to tap a telegraph key that will flash an electrical impulse from Jerusalem to Alexandria and over the Atlantic to the NBC short wave receiver in Riverhead, L. I., which in turn will set off the chimes.

It will be 3:30 on a cold Christmas morning in Rome when the Sistine Singers of the Vatican broadcast to NBC-WCAE listeners at 9:30 on Christmas eve. . . . difference in time between Rome and New York makes evening in New York so late by the Roman clock, that the Sistine Choir must actually get up in the middle of the night to be heard here six hours earlier.

Question a Day:

How old is Eddie Cantor, is he married and did he ever live in Pittsburgh?—Rose H., 2583 Hackney street, North Side.

Answer—Eddie is 38, but will be 39 on January 31, 1932. He is married and has five daughters. When he was virtually an unknown he stayed at Pittsburgh hotels along with Ted Lewis and other boys who were then getting a start, but we have no record that he ever made his home here.

Studio Lights

Three cheers for "Deak" Aylesworth, president of NBC . . . he has signed Metropolitan opera to a two-year contract . . . Humperdinck's gingerbread fantasy, "Hansel and Gretel," is first on the list Christmas afternoon . . .

Opera may sound highbrow right now but the day is not far off when people will stay at home to see it by television . . .

Count Felix Von Luckner returns to CBS-WJAS this Sunday night at 9:30 with thrilling sea stories . . .

Your requests for more of H. Warden (Hack) Wilson, the impersonator, have struck home . . . NBC is to offer the imitator of Rudy Vallee, Graham McNamee, Seth Parker, etc., in a series of his own—with orchestra—over NBC-WJZ each Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 6:30 starting January 1.

It's no one's fault but the broadcasters' that Ben Bernie (WABC at midnight) is not a bigger name on the air . . . maybe his talent is too prolific . . .

Gene and Glenn have reached the $8,500 mark in their Christmas Welfare Campaign at WTAM.

People who start out in life as lawyers have a fine chance of becoming famous radio entertainers . . . to wit, Lanny Ross, Bing Crosby, Art Jarrett, Milton Rettenberg, Scrappy Lambert, "Casey" Jones.

President von Hindenburg, of Germany, is to speak to an American audience for the first time on Thursday, January 31, in a coast to coast network of the National Broadcasting Company . . . the time is to be 3:30, eastern standard, but the subject has not been determined.

Five hundred voices are to sing Handel's "The Messiah" for an NBC-KDKA audience, Sunday morning at 9:30, direct from the Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Don't buy an OUT-OF-DATE tube!

If it isn't a quick heater it isn't the latest type

WHEN you go to your dealer for radio tubes tell him you want the new-type quick heaters, and make sure you get them. The market is flooded with old-style slow-heating tubes, sold under supposedly reputable brands. And if you buy them today, you're not getting your money's worth.

Seconds count, in radio. While you're waiting for old-style tubes to go into action, you may be missing an important announcement—the song of a favorite star—the thrilling climax of a sport event.

There's no reason why you should put up any longer with the delay and inconvenience of slow-heating tubes. Don't worry about prices . . . you pay no premium for modern quick-heating Eveready Raytheons. Note these new low prices:

TYPE	NEW LOW PRICE
ER 227	$1.00
ER 224	1.60
ER 235	1.60
ER 551	1.60
ER 245	1.10
ER 247	1.55
ER 280	1.00
ER 226	.80
ER 171-A	.90
ER 201-A	.75

When you buy a tube ask your dealer these three questions:

1. Is this a new-type tube?
2. Is it a quick heater?
3. How quick? (If a tube doesn't heat up in ten seconds or less, it isn't worthy of a modern radio.)

Have the dealer prove to you that you are getting quick-heater tubes. And time the test yourself. A quick start is your guarantee of getting up-to-date tubes.

All Eveready Raytheon Tubes have the rugged 4-pillar construction that gives you clear, true, natural tone, undisturbed by jolts, bumps or vibration. And remember—an Eveready Raytheon heats up in a bare 7 seconds. Get modern tubes for your radio, and get the best!

Notice the four strong pillars. With this solid foundation the fragile parts cannot move a hair's breadth from their fixed position. Ordinary tubes have only a two-pillar foundation. Two supports instead of four! Jolts, bumps and vibration often impair their vital accuracy.

EVEREADY RAYTHEON
4-PILLAR RADIO TUBES

The Loudspeaker

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Radio has appropriated the master of ceremonies, removed him from the hitherto exclusive possession of the stage and the party, glorified him into an American institution.

Not an important event takes place today that does not find the radio man on the job. No, not one. The event may be as dull as a ship's launching or a statue unveiling, it doesn't matter. It's a news event, and the broadcasters just have to be on hand running the show, bossing politicians and militia and cameramen and giving it, so far as the ears are concerned, the excitement it otherwise doesn't possess.

The result? More statues are being unveiled than ever before, more celebrations are being held. There's publicity to be had, a colossal ear-cupping. Today, special events have become a major industry, so deeply are the radio men in them. Right up to their glib tongues.

Once in a while something happens at these ceremonies, something unusual is on tap to make them of enormous interest to the listeners. Most the time, however, they are dull and drab. It's probably the unexpected, the unusual, that keeps luring the broadcasters to them. Nothing else would cause them to sacrifice their precious time.

Had it not been for the power of the microphone the thirtieth anniversary of Marconi's flash of the letter S across the Atlantic would not have caused much hullaballo. It would have been probably the occasion merely for some biographical chatter in the magazine sections of the Sunday papers.

Radio decided to celebrate, to celebrate in a manner that would eclipse all previous efforts at world-wide communication. And instead of biography in the magazine sections there was a story splashed across page one.

The whole world was hooked up. Nation after nation joined in paying tribute to Marconi, some of them personal, others stressing, as you'd expect, the force of radio in extending international friendship.

Poobahs of radio, as well as of politics, never lose sight of this force. They continually harp upon it. And while they're harping, the rat-a-tat of war drums sounds upon the ear.

Love Triumphs in Crosby Picture

In his first motion picture, "I Surrender, Dear," which opened today at the Stanley, Bing Crosby plays the role of a band leader. The mother of the girl he loves has little use for wielders of the baton and thus comes the plot—Bing must reconcile the mother to his profession before winning the hand of Marion Fayers. Although Bing has a reputation on the air for teasing feminine hearts with merely a minute of song, it takes him two reels to win this girl. Which may or may not explain why Christmas trees are selling cheaper this year. But it's a good picture, nevertheless.

Kills Widow, Ends Life in Seance Room

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 18.—(INS.)—Amid the paraphernalia of spiritualistic seances, Arthur S. Long, 52, today shot and critically wounded Mrs. Bernice Owens, 22, a widow, then killed himself.

The tragedy occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perkins, spiritualistic practitioners, where Mrs. Owens lived. The body of Long was found in a room containing trumpets, tables, charts and tracts of Spiritualist cult.

Imposes Sentence, Then Furnishes Bail

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Judge Harry S. McDevitt, who sentenced Orlando Spartaco to two years' imprisonment for inciting to riot during the visit here of Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, today furnished $1,000 bail for his temporary release, in order, as he explained, to "keep the issue in the hands of the courts instead of the soapbox orators."

Clintonville Store, Residence Burned

CLINTONVILLE, Pa., Dec. 18.—Fire swept the G. A. Blair & Son hardware store, their garage and two-story dwelling occupied by R. J. Eakin, this morning, causing members of the Eakin family to flee in their night-clothing. Loss was estimated at $25,000.

PINCHOT RAPS G. O. P. RELIEF AS 'FRAUD'

'Needy Given Stone Instead Of Bread,' Governor Says; Scores Martin

HARRISBURG, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Continuing his attack on the Republican state organization for its refusal to indorse his unemployment relief program, Gov. Pinchot today asserted it had given the unemployed a stone when they asked for bread. Pinchot said:

"They traded off relief for the needy for politics and political revenge.

"Gen. Martin, Republican state chairman, and his masters, the oil interests, the tobacco interests, and the big special interests, came to the extra session with the deliberate intention of scuttling any program that bore my name. 'Down with Pinchot,' they said among themselves, 'no matter what happens to the unemployed.' Working with these interests, the state organization and the Philadelphia organization wrecked unemployment relief because they preferred to use the extra session for hitting the Governor instead of helping the unemployed.

"FRAUD ON PEOPLE"

"The so-called relief program of the Legislature has been approved by Gen. Martin in a public statement. The program he approved is a fraud on the people of Pennsylvania. It is bad enough to refuse relief, but it is far worse for the organization, with its tongue in its cheek, to give the needy a stone when they ask for bread.

"The legislators appropriated more than $500 apiece for themselves and less than $15 apiece for the unemployed, less than $15 for each worker out of work, even if there were money enough in the treasury to pay every cent and even if every act were constitutional.

"ADVICE DISREGARDED

"In the face of repeated statements from the constitutional fiscal officers that there is no surplus in the treasury, the Legislature insisted on signing checks on a bank where it had no balance. It raised not a cent for relief, but instead appropriated money that is not in the treasury and that, if spent, will throw the state into debt.

"The Attorney General was invited by the Legislature to become its advisor on the constitutionality of measures before it. It then proceeded to throw his advice overboard and enact law after law which he declared to be unconstitutional.

"What the organization has left of my complete and well-balanced program is so little in comparison to the need of a million unemployed and their two million dependents that Pennsylvania is shamed by it. Callous disregard for the suffering of fellow Pennsylvanians could hardly go farther."

You pay little.. You know he'll like them

Genus Millions Of Years Old Student's Find

100,000,000-YEAR-OLD PRINT

The imprint of a genus found in shale near Montrose by Researcher William C. Darrah of Carnegie Museum. This is reckoned to be 100,000,000 years old.

WILLIAM C. DARRAH . . . RESEARCH STUDENT . . . HE FOUND IT

Pitt Graduate Scientist Seeking to Classify Rare Fossil Find

Just about 100,000,000 years ago, when Pittsburgh's climate was winterless—much warmer than it is now—and when man had not yet reached the North American continent, a four-and-a-half-inch amphibian, somewhat like a salamander, passed out of existence.

Today William C. Darrah, Pitt graduate student of paleo botany under Dr. O. E. Jennings, of Carnegie Museum, was seeking to further classify the amphibian, now a skeleton pressed into a piece of shale.

The fossil, small and barely perceptible, created a sensation in scientific circles. Of a genus hitherto unheard of on this continent, it is one of the few local paleolithic finds of the upper carboniferous age, which, as time is recorded by science, came not long after the dawn of time and the earth, and, comparatively, in the early days of life on this sphere.

Darrah came across the fossil accidentally. He was searching for plant fossils in the hillside behind the Montrose pumping station.

Darrah said:

"It closely resembles the branchiosaurus, amphibian found in Central Europe about the same period—the time when coal was being formed. Science doesn't talk in years, but in ages or periods. But generally speaking the latest estimates would have it farther back than 100 millions of years.

"It may be a new genus entirely, for it is undoubtedly of the stegocephalian family. There is no record of it being found anywhere except Europe before, and it indicates that Central Europe and Pittsburgh had about the same climate. At that time, it was much warmer, and more humid and the wide distribution of animal shows that there were no climate barriers.

"Montrose was probably marsh land. Then there were no birds, mammals, no common insects or flowers, nor was there an Allegheny River. In fact, all life of that time is now 100 per cent extinct.

"There is a possibility that the specimen may be some relative of the salamander, but it seems unlikely. The find opens up a new location."

The amphibian, which breathed through gills instead of lungs, was found along a hillside 80 feet below a vein of Pittsburgh coal. It was embedded in shale—in a section rich in plant and other botanical fossils.

Darrah and his associates plan to collect further in the vicinity.

CHAPTER II.

Fluff and Nevis and Mesdames Hunt and Carlyle were touring the living-room.

"You've enough silver for six families."

"I know. When I think of cleaning it!"

"But—you'll have to have a maid!" This was Fluff, in shrill astonishment. "You can't possibly do without one. I'll ask my Nora. She knows hundreds. Cook and serve and clean—about 80 a month. Sleep out."

Nevis said, slowly: "I don't think we'd better afford a maid at first . . . and this place is so tiny. Surely I can keep it up."

"And go out? And entertain?

Synopsis

It was taken for granted that Bill Lancaster would enter his father's lead pipe manufacturing business after he graduated from college. However, following his marriage to Nevis Hammond, he leaves the little Pennsylvania town where he was raised and goes to New York to sell bonds. The young couple give a house-warming. Among the guests are Sam Burton, Bill's college chum, Sam's sister, Fluff Waterford; Batch Dorgan, a classmate, and his stage-struck fiancee, Marise Norton.

Now Go On

Lamb, you're crazy! You'll be a wreck. You don't want Bill coming home to a wreck, do you—hands ruined, face burned, nose shiny, fallen arches! Of course, you don't! He's much too good looking. And good looking men in New York never lack for outside entertainment," warned Fluff.

"Even if they're married?"

"Angel, is that all you learned at college? Domestic science . . . and no sex psychology? Don't be provincial!"

Della Hunt said with a shriek of amusement: "Speaking of sex psychology — Olive Blanchard's back from abroad. She's got 18 trunks, a new Scotch terrier, a newer make-up and the weirdest haircut I ever saw. She's all over the place about numerology or something."

Della turned to Nevis, explanatory.

"That's a neighbor of ours, down at Westlynne. You'll meet her. By the way, we're throwing a party Saturday and expect you and Bill down."

"Isn't she married yet?" asked Frances Carlyle. "I've been away from home so long I haven't kept up. There was an Italian somewhere in the offing."

DESCRIBES FRIEND

"Well, he's still there. And the Englishman, too. And the Frenchman. She's just about gone through the League of Nations. She told me yesterday she was bored with foreigners. 'Only American men,' she told me, 'have that fresh, sweet, simple outlook on life and women—before business gets at it and spoils it.' Or words to that effect. Girls, gather up your husbands and keep 'em close to the home pasture, for there's dirty work at the cross-roads and a real menace on the prowl!"

"Who on earth is she?" asked Nevis, laughing.

"Oh," Della made a vague gesture, "ask Fluff, she went to school with her."

"Olive? She's a good looking girl with big ideas," said Fluff, her light voice rippling. "Lots of money. Her father is Blanchard—the automobile man, you know. Olive's all right. A little mad, that's all."

"You mean," said Frances Calryle, "that you're sure of Les!"

"Les," said Fluff, "is pretty

M'CREADYS FLY SOUTH, DODGE BUSINESS

Call Fails to Halt Trip of Newlyweds on Line's First Ship on Miami Route

Harrison R. McCready and his bride, the former Marguerite Helen Heasley, wed three days after McCready's first wife had obtained a divorce on allegations of cruelty, were passengers on Pittsburgh's first chartered Miami airline ship today. The line is being operated by "Joe" Dawson, former Pirate baseball player, who plans trips to the southern resort once a week.

The McCreadys, accompanied by their chauffeur, Harold E. Murphy, arrived at Rodgers Field to receive a telephone message from Pilot Dawson, who informed them:

"A Mr. Karouf is calling."

Said McCready:

"Don't seem to remember him—never mind, let's get going."

The fourth passenger, J. R. Pitcairn, of Lynn Haven road, arrived and the party prepared to leave. An automobile streaked into the airport and a man jumped out, waving a sheaf of papers.

Frowning, McCready met the business man and after a few words, shook his head negatively and climbed back into the ship. To Pilot Dawson, he ordered:

"Let's go—we'll miss half an hour's sunshine down in Miami and I have to get back by Monday."

HOME OF NEEDY FAMILY SWEPT BY FIRE

Man Twice Dares Blaze to Carry Out Children; Police Aid Destitute Mother.

Three small children were carried to safety by their father, and 12 other persons, including eight children, were made homeless in two fires in widely separated sections of Allegheny County early today.

Discovering his home on Camp Meeting road, near Sewickley, blazing, Peter J. Schwartz, 35, made two trips to rescue his three children as fire swept through the house with an estimated loss of $8,000.

BLAZE MYSTERIOUS

Fire of mysterious origin swept through a 12-room frame house in Nine Mile Hollow, at the foot of Commercial street, North Homestead, early today, making homeless Mrs. Alda Wallace and her six children and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Ogrodnik and their two children, and Mrs. Wallace's sister, Mrs. Audra Gaskill, 19. The Wallace home, with its furnishings, was destroyed, while smoke forced the Ogrodniks to flee.

The scantily clad victims of the fire were befriended at the East End Police Station. Social workers later took Mrs. Wallace, her 13-month-old daughter, Cecelia, and Mrs. Gaskill to the New Future Home and placed the other children in the Juvenile Detention Home.

Mrs. Wallace, who said practically all of the clothing of her family was destroyed, including a number of personal belongings, estimated her loss at $700.

FAMILY DESTITUTE

The Wallace family is destitute. Two of her six children, ranging in age from 13 months to 12 years, have shoes; a third was provided with galoshes by a policeman, and the others are barefoot. Mrs. Wallace told police her husband deserted her a year ago.

Mystery was attached to the fire by the story of Miss Gaskill, who told police that she was awakened early today by an automobile which stopped in front of the house. She heard footsteps on the stairway and a short time later, after the automobile was driven away, saw a "pump" house in the rear of the building burst into flames.

WOMAN INJURED BY AUTO DIES

An aged woman was dead today the result of an automobile accident two months ago and two persons were in Braddock Hospital from automobile accidents last night.

Mrss. Jane T. Lane, 75, died in her home in Ben Avon road.

Police today were seeking a hit and run driver, who is alleged to have sideswiped an auto in the Lincoln highway, near East McKeesport, causing it to overturn and injure a man and woman early today.

According to police, Edward Lewis, 54, and Geraldine Shumaker, 45, both of 445 Library street, Braddock, were in the Braddock General Hospital suffering severe body lacerations and shock.

Europe Might At Least Send A Rubber Check

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

We're still looking for the man who borrowed from Peter to pay Paul.

Paul is looking for him too. He never got paid.

We don't understand this trans-Atlantic finance but we think Europe might at least give us a rubber check as a sign of good faith.

Congress is finishing its second week on a subject that is as monotonous as a quail a day.

Speaker Garner broke three gavels on his desk. We were hoping he had a longer reach.

We don't agree with those financial nudists who want to call everything off.

There is only one issue to be decided. Can Europe pay or won't it pay? If it can't then it can't. If it can and won't then we will have to order a dozen more battleships from the Swiss toy makers.

MRS. CULBERTSON FREE ON BOND AWAITING MURDER TRIAL

MT. LEBANON WOMAN MUM ON CHARGES

'Party' Slaying of Husband Less Than First Degree Case, Bail Permit Shows

Mrs. Laverne Culbertson, Mt. Lebanon widow, will remain at liberty under $5,000 bond to await trial on a charge of murder following the shooting of her husband, Albert L. Culbertson, 37, November 15.

Despite a manslaughter verdict at the inquest into Culbertson's death, the grand jury yesterday found a true bill, charging murder.

I. Elmer Ecker, Mrs. Culbertson's attorney, however, declared this was expected, the indictment being the only one possible in any kind of a homicide case. The bill charges murder in first and second degrees, voluntary and involuntary manslaughter.

Mrs. Culbertson was at her home, 307 Jefferson drive, Mt. Lebanon, today. It was there the fatal shooting occurred, the aftermath of a Saturday night party. Mrs. Culbertson refused to comment on the grand jury's findings, referring interviewers to her attorney.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park presented the case to the grand jury.

Mrs. Culbertson's bail was not disturbed, Park saying it is a bailable case. This means he does not expect to ask for a verdict of murder in the first degree when the case comes to trial. Either second degree or voluntary manslaughter is expected to be sought.

Witnesses before the grand jury included Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Walker, who had come from Ohio to visit the Culbertsons and had attended the Pitt-Army football game with them the afternoon before the killing. They revealed all had been drinking, and the Culbertson's had quarreled because Culbertson refused to take his wife on a hunting trip the next day.

FRANCHISES BAR RATE FIGHT

Perpetual franchises granted gas companies serving Pittsburgh loomed today as an obstacle to this city's participation in the fight of the Western Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association for lower public utility rates.

Invited to participate in the movement spreading rapidly through Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh interests sought information as to the legality of the association's first objective—a reduction in gas rates.

From Charles P. Lang, special assistant city solicitor, an associate of Charles K. Robinson, a veteran of a number of public utility battles, it was learned that any steps to force companies to limit their charges by revoking of franchises would be doomed to failure in Pittsburgh. Legislation granting the perpetual franchise was enacted in 1882.

Interest in the movement, however, is increasing and many civic leaders were completing plans to attend the next scheduled meeting of the association on January 20. Albert B. Davidson, of Tarentum, is president.

Alleging he was shot in the abdomen by a revolver in the hands of one of two men wrestling on the floor of a speakeasy, John Simko filed suit in Common Pleas Court against John Chantufalsky and Andy Mitynik, all of Braddock, seeking $18,000 damages for injuries. JUDGE CONDEMNS HOLDING OF PRISONERS WITHOUT BAIL

EGAN DECLARES POLICE ACTION UNLAWFUL

City Legal Aide Admits Lack of Law Basis; Court Orders Bond for Youth

The police practice of holding persons accused of crimes without bail until their hearings was declared without authority of law by Judge John P. Egan in Common Pleas Court yesterday.

Assistant City Solicitor William M. Randolph declared it is the custom of police to hold prisoners in felony cases until the hearing, although a number of days may elapse, but he said he could not defend the custom legally.

Judge Egan questoned the practice during a hearing on a writ of habeas corpus procured by William H. Miltner, of 6802½ Bryant street, seeking the release of his son, Robert F. Miltner, 16, from police custody. Judge Egan ordered his release under $2,500 bail.

The boy, according to his father, was arrested Monday at his home without a warrant, held on a charge of being a suspicious person, and remanded to the custody of Police Inspector Bernard Kirley by Magistrate Thomas D. Jones after a hearing Tuesday, despite an offer of bail in any amount.

Randolph told Judge Egan three charges, each of entering a building and larceny, have been lodged against the youth, who, he said, is one of a group of boys in the neighborhood being investigated in connection with a number of robberies. He said a hearing was listed for today.

CANAL OPPOSED BY RAIL LEADER

Construction of the Lake Erie-Ohio River Canal would mean virtual reconstruction of paralleling railroads, Curtis M. Yohe, vice president of the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad, declared at a dinner meeting of the Railway Club of Pittsburgh in Fort Pitt Hotel last night.

Leading the opposition to the proposed river-canal route, Yohe said the companies he represents would be forced to raise 52 miles of trackage an average of five feet; erect five major bridges, varying in span from 280 to 580 feet. One major bridge would have to be raised, nine others rebuilt and eight heavy grade crossings raised, he said. The work involved, he declared, means an expenditure of many millions of dollars.

Matthew Christopher, 52, of Sunnyland street, Carrick, Gammon bakery foreman, on an inspection late last night, found a faulty batch of dough. He told Frank Gollinger, 52, of 207 Anderson street, North Side, a baker, about it.

Infuriated, police say, Gollinger seized an iron bar and struck Christopher over the head. Christopher was taken to Allegheny General Hospital. He was not seriously hurt. Gollinger was lodged in North Side police station on a suspicious person charge.

'Not Scared', Victim Of Cave-in Declares

DALLAS, Tex., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Professing he "wasn't scared," A. Lancaster, 30-year-old ditch digger, was rescued only slightly injured yesterday after being buried alive for 30 minutes under tons of sand and mud. He said:

"I wasn't scared, but waiting for them to uncover my head was the longest half hour I ever lived. There was a little place in front of my face so I could breathe."

DE ROSA SUIT COSTS ON CITY

Judge Frank P. Patterson in Quarter Sessions Court today amended his order dividing the $3,000 election contest cost over the Republican nomination for alderman of the Twelfth Ward between William A. Means and Mike DeRosa, Jr., and held that the city of Pittsburgh pay four-fifths and DeRosa one-fifth.

The court ruled that under an act of 1892 the city was obligated to pay the costs in those contests which resulted in victory for the contestant and that if he lost the contestant had to pay. He distributed the costs according to the outcome of the contests in the various districts.

City Solicitor C. A. Waldschmidt at once filed exceptions, contending that was no legal authority for placing the costs on the city.

DeRosa won the nomination through a decision by Judge Patterson, Judge James H. Gray dissenting, and was elected alderman at the November election.

HELD FOR COURT IN LOTTERY

Jesse Levy, alleged Beechview "numbers" promoter, was held for court on a charge of operating a lottery after he had been accused in Mt. Washington Police Court today of failing to pay a $1,500 "hit."

Levy, denying the charge, explained he had quit the numbers racket following a conviction last April, when Pearl Ida Ferguson, former teller, testified she played Levy's lottery with money from the Dormont Savings and Trust Company. Levy has not yet been sentenced on that conviction.

Joseph Conti, of 215 Southern avenue, testified Levy paid him only $600 on the $1,500 winnings.

A few days ago Levy was attacked by two men who accused him of refusing to pay winnings.

$30,000 More Voted For Airport Work

The money was appropriated by the County Commissioners at their meeting yesterday. Forcier also requested $88,000 for radio equipment, a gasoline system and refrigeration for the building, but the funds were not available.

The largest reductions are for road department appropriations. The maintenance department, under the new budget, is cut $1,152,683 and the asphalt division is cut $362,550.

Tallulah Bankhead Hikes In the Hills While Movies Wait

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 18.

While an expectant Hollywood waits to see her, Tallulah Bankhead is spending her time hiking in the hills and in dining at home or with a few close friends.

I have this from the lips of Tallulah herself, who gave this department the first interview she has granted in California.

Tallulah Bankhead

"If I lived up to advance publicity," she says, "I would be turning cart-wheels in public places.

"I find, though, by the time I've hiked or taken a motor ride I'm sleepy at 8 o'clock. I've dined only with a few friends. I've been ill, you know, and I am on a six-weeks vacation."

Southern California reminds Tallulah of Southern France.

"Only," she adds, "with the houses perched on the hill the way they are, I'm always afraid I'll wake up and find it a set."

The star thinks her screen vehicles to date are open to criticism, but says she intends to have more to say about her next story. Her chief difficulty in camera work, she reveals, is in retarding the rapid flow of speech for which she is noted on the stage.

One of the few stars she's met is Jackie Cooper. This came about when Joan Crawford and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., invited her over to meet "a very clever young man."

You've heard, of course, that Tallulah has taken Billy Haines' house for her stay in Hollywood.

HOLLYWOOD DOINGS

Carole Lombard couldn't wait until Christmas to open her present from Bill Powell: a specially designed mink coat. . . . The question of salary is holding up Billie Reid's contract at Universal. . . . Frank Fay wires to know if I am a strong saver or a paper bag putter-away. He says he's conducting a census. . . . George K. Arthur is about to leave on his seventh New York trip this year. He has a radio contract lined up. . . . Some incoming travelers are Norma Talmadge, who gets back the first of the week, and Estelle Taylor, who arrives today after a four-month vaudeville tour. She plans to resume her engagements after the holidays. . . . Edgar Wallace has a mystery case inscribed "from the Ringer to the author of The Squealer." It's a bit odd, he wrote both stories. . . . Peggy Shannon, Paramount's red-head, will be loaned to Tiffany for "Hotel Continental."

Norma Talmadge

"QUEEN KELLY" AGAIN

If you can believe the report, and it seems authentic this time, Gloria Swanson's ill-fated production, "Queen Kelly," is at last cut down to 8,500 feet and will be released in the near future.

Gloria now has between $600,000 and $700,000 tied up in this picture. She began it at the F. B. O. Studios in November, 1928, with Eric Von Stroheim directing. In December of the same year the company moved out to Pathe, where the film finally was completed. It ran into 30,000 feet.

Since then various attempts have been made to get it into shape for showing. Finally it was decided to cut the story in half and use only the first episode.

The job of synchronizing the film is now under way. Of course, it will be a silent picture, designed chiefly for foreign release.

The news that the picture is coming out should be good news to Walter Byron and Seena Owen, who were kept off the screen for months during its filming.

Plan Russian Story for Constance Bennett

An American girl involved in Russian intrigue is the plot for Constance Bennett's next picture. Edward H. Griffith, who directed the star in "The Lady With a Past," is responsible for the idea. He presented it to studio officials, who realized its possibilities for Miss Bennett, and the story is now in progress.

Communism and the Soviet movement will be dealt with. Cryptography, or the science of code sending and reading, is a vital element in the story. Mr. Griffith realizes that the entire world is interested in the result of the Russian experimental government, and intends to present the problem squarely to the public. Soviet commercial ambitions, religious beliefs, school systems and ideas of parenthood are some of the elements touched on in the development of the theme.

Quillan Gets The Girl in Fulton

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

"The Tip-Off" came to the Fulton screen yesterday. And we'll tip you off. It is light and average film entertainment.

Eddie Quillan, who used to live in Pittsburgh, is starred. Robert Armstrong and Ginger Rogers are prominent in the supporting cast. Ralph Harolde, another former Pittsburgher, is present also.

Quillan is seen as a young radio mechanic who gets mixed up with prize fighters and thugs. He crawls under a lady's bed. He walks off with a racketeer's girl. And a pet Pekingese takes a liking to him.

Harolde has the racketeer part. He's the same old menace. Armstrong again plays a pugilist. He bruises his opponents and murders the English language.

Quillan does Armstrong a favor early in the film and Armstrong is a friend who never forgets. He turns up near the finish and rescues Quillan from a tough spot. Fists and bullets fly. The police arrive.

As a comedy drama, the picture takes no medals for originality. Young Quillan, though, is a refreshing comedian.

The Twentieth Century Club fell in line with Christmas spirit and gave a program of carols with an original pantomime. The first half of the program was in the hands of Mrs. Thomas K. Cree, director of the club choral, who chose wisely from the vast repertory of Christmas music and gave us songs of distinct variety.

Mr. Lissfelt

Since last year the singing of these ladies has become far more musical, and if the quality of their music is not always consistent, in several of the carols it reached a very high degree of charm. Carolyn McKee Miller and Margaret Stoner Klingelhofer contributed solo fragments and Helen Machette played accompaniments.

Robert Bodycombe, boy soprano, also sang a group of Christmas songs. No matter what the shortcomings in a child's actual performance, the beauty and sexless purity of such singing is matchless. His best song was the old Welsh song. A tendency to hurry slightly mars this boy's singing, a fault easily remedied. Aneurin Bodycombe played accompaniments.

A pantomime, "The Doctor of Lonesome Folk," written by Louis Van Voorhis Armstrong, and played by ladies from the drama section, occupied the second part of the afternoon.

Pursued

Mae Clark is pursued by a human monster, created by her sweetheart-scientist, in "Frankenstein," which moves into the Davis today.

All Title Changes Not Hollywood-Made

The things that happen to motion picture titles sometimes make even screen executives gasp. Perhaps there were good reasons why "The Spirit of Notre Dame" should be changed to "Vigor of Youth" and "Susan Lenox" to "The Rise of Helga" for their London releases. But what to do about the fact that in Kansas City a theater ad billed "The Star Witness" as "The Star Waitress" and that in Cincinnati there appeared on a marquee a sign announcing the premiere of "The Squawk Man." Needless to say, corrections were made in a hurry.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"The Vinegar Tree," coming Christmas night to the Alvin with Mary Boland as the star, was staged and directed by Winchell Smith, who really ought to know something about his job. You see, he was an actor for about 12 years and since then has been a successful playwright as well as director. For 10 years he acted under the management of Charles Frohman. Tickets for seats under "The Vinegar Tree" may be had at the box-office next Monday.

Small Timer says he doesn't care if the legend about Santa Claus is a myth or if his corporeal body is mist just so long as he isn't missed.

Leslie Howard is a versatile chap. Star of last season's "Berkely Square," he has since acted in the movies, including one of the best of the year, opposite Norma Shearer in "A Free Soul." He is coming back in "The Animal Kingdom," next Nixon play, opening December 28. Also he has been a writer of stories published in "Vanity Fair" and other mags. After a week of nix the Nixon box-office will reopen Monday.

Sinclair Lewis Praises Film of His Book

Upsetting precedent in the reaction of a novelist to a motion picture version of his book, Sinclair Lewis has sent a highly laudatory letter of appreciation to the producers of "Arrowsmith."

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

(Copyright, 1931, by Daily Mirror.)

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Well, Rudy is going through that same routine nearly every renowned man or woman has to get gray hairs about . . . When Rudy and Fay were sealed they lost little time telling the reporters that they would soon be parted by distance, and they hoped the press would not imagine things . . . Then the bride went to the more comfortable climate and there was no to-do about it in the rags. . . . Now, it appears, because Mrs. Vallee made another trip, the back-fencers decided that the Vallees had soured, etc. . . . Rudy says he is all upset . . . He urged me to straighten the thing out. . . . Why I even try, I don't know, considering that I rarely mess around with controversies begun by others . . . I owe Vallee something after all those seasons of toying with him, at that . . . I'll try to clear up the sitch-ee-ay-shun—but I won't promise not to report his activities whatever they turn out to be . . . Maybe Rudy and his wife won't like it much when I try to explain to his public why Mrs. Vallee makes so many trips to warmer climates—but publishing the facts will certainly do more to make people understand than anything they may decide to announce . . . Fay is a pretty sick girl . . . I mean, Fay isn't as robust as she was—and when she married Rudy she was ailing plenty . . . New York and the routine that Rudy has to go through to keep his rivals and their cohorts from saying that he's "slipping" is too much for Fay . . . He has to keep grinding away at this and that to attract all that coin, and Fay isn't tough enough for it . . . I hope she gets back her rosy cheeks soon . . . And when I see Rudy I'm gonna tell him he's not looking so hot, and to get wise to himself and not take on too much work . . . Huh—look who's talking!

Well—maybe I'm being kidded again—but I saw it in the theatrical rags and it must be so . . . That an orchestra playing in Florida is now christened the Jerome Twinchell Orchestra . . . I've heard of a Twitchell, but never a Twinchell . . . The darn fool! . . . He'll surely get slugged one of these days calling himself that. . . . Some drunk will sum up enough of that spurious courage and imagine Jerome is Walter, and then boff! . . . However, if Jerome can hit—then, that's different . . . But if he can't—then he can use the gag most of us employ around town when the other fellow is heavier, or a bully . . . What a honey of a piece of business it is, too—taking hold of a mineral water bottle and bouncing it on the guy's conk! . . . Surefire knockout—lays him lower than any stock on the market . . . Better though, is the gag of grabbing a beer glass—breaking it on the bar in a hurry, and then slashing your initials in your tormentor's face! . . . It gives him something to remember you by—and if he has a bad lawyer then he'll never collect in court for alleged damages . . . I'm in a fine humor, I am. . . . Little wonder . . . Watching the counterfeiters Get Away With It All . . . When I get in contact with some of the Wrong Guys around this burg and I am reminded of what they will do to gain their ends—I wish all the more I were a Frankenstein! . . . Boooo!!!

Wonder if it's true? . . . I mean the talk that the World presses will run again in the old Pulitzer Building? . . . The Pulitzers won't have anything to do with the new enterprise—a new daily rag, which money interests of prohibition are plotting . . . Good thing . . . Whether or not it is for or against likker—it will promote some jobs for some people, at any rate . . . That letter from Mr. Canavan, chairman of Local 802 of the American Federation of Labor not only amused me, but made me feel better . . . The piano-player will be allowed to work—and that's all I'm interested in . . . Mr. Canavan is head man of the local for the musicians, and he says that my piece in the column was very unfair . . . Unfair to the union or the pianist . . . Mr. Canavan says I shouldn't have printed it until I had heard both sides . . . No time to hear both sides, Mr. Canavan—when a piano player, who couldn't afford to pay his $56 dues and who hadn't worked for a year, was jerked out of the vaude act, and the whole act was jerked out of work!

That doesn't sound right to me, at all . . . And now I'm glad I printed it . . . For it got action . . . The chap is being allowed to work—the local arranged in some way to let him pay his dues from time to time—and Mr. and Mrs. Public will have one less panhandler to give a coin to on the streets . . . As a matter of record the pianist had been ill and out of work and couldn't promote $56 all at once just because the rules say he must . . . That sort of hooey is what starts Revolutions, Mr. Canavan, and encourages Communism . . . If times are tough for all the musicians then Moratorium the dues gag for awhile . . . If Nations can—why not Unions?

Must get Ruth to thank the Theater Guild mag for the mention—but somebody over there must be plenty wide-awake, considering the caption which lists me on the staff of another paper! . . . Gosh—that was a million years ago! . . . That Anthony guy must have a lotta fun editing his humorag . . . He poses in most of the wild illustrations for the very amusing ad travesties, too . . . Len Traube's enclosure is comical—a clipping from a paper, which has at least one composing room printer with a sensayuma . . . He set it to read: "Prosperity Is Just Around the Coroner!" . . . Wonder what that new business is that Clarence Chamberlin, the N. Y.-to-Germany flier, is now in? . . . Clarence wants high-type women, he says, who own autos. If they do, he can show them how to make some dough . . . Probably is real estate . . . The former Mrs. Monta Bell still is Reno-Waiting . . . I hear he's a Dep't of Justice Man—but handsome . . . That Ex-Mrs. Scrappy Lambert-John Considine thing can't be serious—just two humans Making People Talk . . . Some gals are never satisfied . . . That Loretta Young, frinstance . . . Because she never looked so beautiful as she did in the costume and makeup she used in "The Honorable Mr. Wong"—Loretta dines daily in that outfit at the Brown Derby in Lorce-Ahng-Lay-Ece.

What's this about Dustin Farnum's widow not getting the $50 weekly from her husband's estate? . . . She was to rate that for the rest of her life . . . And why doesn't that multi-millionaire see to it? . . . I mean the m-m who took over the estate and agreed that he would carry out the agreement made between the D. F.'s when they parted before he passed on . . . It must be that too many people who listen to the airagraphers listen too fast—for nobody talks as fast as some listeners listen . . . Those people, frixample, who told me that Eddie panned me on his hookup . . . "Yeah?" I said, "what did he say?" . . . "Oh, he knocked you," was the reply, "but I don't remember exactly what he said"—"Well, try and think," I urged—but they couldn't . . . Later I learned what Cantor said and why he mentioned me . . . Eddie had told a gag I used and credited the source—so the dopes assumed Cantor had "knocked" me! . . . Peculiar thing—the racket in the studios—when you print something—it is always there in the files to inspect again if anyone hears you slammed them . . . But via the ether it is another thing, to hear the various broadcasters moan about it. . . . There are newspapermen, however, who don't know a yarn from a thread, too.

Ex-Convict Jailed On Slaying Charge

BEAVER, Pa., Dec. 18.—Domineck Crusone, Ellwood City, was committed to the county jail without bail by Justice of the Peace David Stewart, Beaver, late yesterday in connection with the killing of Andrew Carbone at Ellwood City, February 17, 1921.

Crusone, when arrested, had enjoyed less than a month of freedom, having been paroled recently from Western Penitentiary where he served 10 years of a sentence for the murder of a man in Washington County, officers said. Relatives of Crusone, fearing his further vengeance, caused his arrest, police reported.

Widow of Suicide Marries in Reno

RENO, Nev., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Dorothy Blount Winship, widow of the late former Lieut. Com. Emory Winship, U. S. N., who shot and killed himself in San Francisco several months ago, was married here Wednesday to Lemar Washington, Nevada dude ranch owner.

Washington was divorced in May, 1929. Both gave their ages as over 21 and Mrs. Washington gave her residence as Los Angeles.

Alaskan Drizzle Amazes Mrs. Biddle

KETCHIKAN, Alaska, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Mrs. Edward Biddle, Philadelphia society matron, touched Alaskan soil yesterday on her mission to find out what life is like in a frontier cabin.

Arriving here in a drizzling rainstorm, she was surprised, she said, at the mildness of the climate. Shortly after leaving the boat she was invited to be the dinner guest of Mayor and Mrs. Norman B. Walker. Mrs. Biddle said:

"Everybody in the East thinks when you go to Alaska, you go to some jumping-off place. The thing I find wrong is that you seem too civilized."

In the interior of Alaska, where she plans to spend several months in a cabin, she will find much colder weather.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 18.—(Universal.)—Gene Tunney, former heavyweight champion, has another fight on his hands. He wants a referee appointed by Supreme Court Justice Joseph Morchauser to arbitrate a $900 claim entered by Henry Bacon, Scarsdale yacht owner.

Bacon allegs Tunney rented the yacht last summer, but never used it and balked at paying the bill. He has refused a settlement for $300.

Clever Skit Presented At Press Club Dinner

That there is a Santa Claus was decided last night by the Women's Press Club when the annual Christmas dinner was held at the Roosevelt Hotel. A decidedly clever and humorous skit, written by Miss Helen Ryman, Helen Donnelly and Mrs. Pearl Drayne, was staged by the members. Miss Mary Hay, the president, was "Hizzona." Miss Adele Moyer was the inquiring reporter of the Pittsburgh Post Pressograph; Frances Walker was "Hizzona's" secretary; Miss Mary Shine was a staff photographer; Miss Bernice Shine was Mlle. Cut Lines; Mrs. Florence Fisher Parry acted Greta Valez who came to call on and be photographed with "Hizzona." Other members were other "notables" and some were cast as mere taxpayers.

Some original songs written by Miss Ryman, one of which was dedicated to Miss Suzanne Beatty, were also part of the clever program.

Each place was marked by an odd favor, suiting the character portrayed in the skit. The table was decorated with holly.

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 18.—Well, if you want to widen yourself when it comes to ordering your evening gown, you will find that it is permissable to do so. For Chanel is concentrating on ever so many evening frocks with wide skirts whose dimensions are aided and abetted by hoops of wire or whale-bone. Young women are, of course, the logical wearers of such feminine and old-time fashions and it is to be hoped that the more mature woman will concentrate on sophisticated, modern clothes that make her look young, but not girlish—two very different attributes.

THE NEW FROCKS with the widened, stiffened skirts and demure decolletages are really very lovely with an ethereal charm that is most captivating. Garlands of ruffles and beauty to lace frocks, while petticoats of taffeta stiff and starchy are used to give width to skirts on other frocks. Need it be said that only owners of figures of very slim proportions should be candidates for the wearing of such frocks for the hoop-wires and other artifices will not hide girth or ungainly proportions.

It is only the slim who can exaggerate the form and get away with it.

SKETCHED ARE TWO of Chanel's newest sorties in the direction of the frock with very wide skirts. First comes a ruffled frock in very delicate white lace. The off-shoulder bertha of [illegible] is a very becoming detail, a period note that is echoed in the bouffant skirt which is posed over [illegible] of white taffeta petticoat. The petticoat is stiffened with a whale-bone hoop two-thirds of the way down. The garland arrangements of the ruffles is exceedingly graceful and soft.

FINE NEW RECIPES :-: Prudence Penny Gives Many Suggestions :-: HOLIDAY DISHES :-: Hints for the Table During Yule Season

CHRISTMAS COOKIES — One cup butter, 2 cups light brown sugar, 4 tablespoons sour cream, 3 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup chopped dates, 1 cup chopped nuts, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 2-3 teaspoon salt, 4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda.

Cream the butter and sugar. Add rest of ingredients, mixing lightly. Chill dough. Break off bits and flatten down 3 inches apart on greased baking sheets. Bake 12 minutes in moderate oven.

PLUM PUDDING 1931 — One cup flour, 1½ tablespoons nutmeg, 1½ tablespoons cinnamon, ½ tablespoon salt, ½ pound seeded raisins, ¼ pound package citron, 1 package ¼ pound orange peel, ¼ pound chopped suet, 1 cup dry bread crumbs, 1 cup brown sugar, 4 eggs, ½ cup milk or fruit juice.

Sift flour, spices and salt. Wash raisins and drain thoroughly; add to flour with citron and orange peel, mixing the peel through flour with the finger tips. Separate suet from its surrounding membranes and chop finely. Add bread crumbs, sugar and beaten eggs. Add dry ingredients to suet mixture, alternately with the liquids. Fill a well-oiled mold two-thirds full of the mixture. Cover by tying several thicknesses of oiled paper over the tops of the molds. Steam 3 hours. Yield: One large or 2 small puddings. Twelve servings.

YULETIDE LOGS—One package pasteurized dates, 1½ cups shredded cocoanut, ¼ lb. figs, ¾ cup dried apricots, 4 tablespoons orange juice, 1 teaspoon orange rind.

Chop dates, cocoanut and nut meats, chop apricots and figs or run all through food chopper. Knead in orange juice. Divide fruit paste in halves. Roll into long strips 1 inch in diameter. Roll in toasted cocoanut or nuts and cut into logs 1 inch or more in length. Tie each log with red ribbon or wrap in waxed paper. 1¼ lbs.

SUGARED NUTS—Two-thirds cup meats, ½ cup confectioner's sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon allspice, 2 tablespoons cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon ginger, ¼ teaspoon nutmeg, 1 egg white, 2 tablespoons cold water.

You may use one kind of nut or a combination of two or three or a mixture. Sift dry ingredients 3 times and then into a shallow pan. Beat egg white slightly with cold water. Dip nut meats into the liquid mixture and roll one at a time in spiced sugar mixture. Place the pan containing both the nuts and spice mixture in a slow oven, 250 degrees F., and leave for two hours. Remove from oven and sift sugar from the nuts.

CAULIFLOWER WITH CHEESE SAUCE—One medium head of cauliflower, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 2 cups milk, 1 teaspoon salt, corn flake crumbs, ½ cup grated cheese.

Wash cauliflower. Steam or cook in boiling salted water until tender, 20-25 minutes.

Melt butter, blend with flour. Add the milk gradually and stir constantly until thickened. Add salt and cheese and continue to stir until cheese is melted. Place head of cauliflower in casserole and pour cheese sauce over it. Sprinkle with buttered corn flake crumbs and bake in moderate oven until slightly browned.

DATE BARS—Three eggs, 1 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped dates, 1 cup nuts, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder.

Beat eggs and add sugar and beat 2 minutes. Add rest of ingredients. Blend well and pour into shallow pan lined with waxed papers. Bake 25 minutes in moderate oven. While warm, cut in bars and roll in confectioner's sugar. Raisins, figs or currants can be used in place of dates. Black walnuts or peacans give delicious flavor when combined with dates.

CHICKEN WITH GOLDEN SAUCE—One chicken (3½ to 4 lbs.), 3 cups boiling water, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg yolk, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons flour, 1 cup cream.

Singe, clean and disjoint chicken. Put in kettle. Add water, salt and pepper. Cover tightly and simmer slowly until tender, about 2 hours. Mix flour with the cream and stir until smooth. Add beaten yolk and mix thoroughly. Add 1 cup hot chicken broth and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Place pieces of chicken on a hot platter. Cover with the sauce and garnish with toast points. Use a deep colored egg yolk in the sauce. If the sauce is too light in color add another egg yolk or a little yellow coloring.

SUGAR COOKIES—One cup butter, 2 cups sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon lemon extract, 1 teaspoon almond extract, ½ teaspoon salt, 3 eggs, 4 tablespoons cream, 4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon cream of tartar.

Cream the butter and sugar. Add extracts, salt, eggs and cream. Beat 3 minutes. Add rest of ingredients. Chill dough. Roll out on floured board and cut out with cutters of different shapes and sizes. Bake 10 minutes on greased baking sheets. For variety chopped nuts, colored sugars, raisins or cocoanut can be sprinkled on top the cookies before they are baked.

SHRIMP RAREBIT ON TOAST—Eight pieces hot buttered toast, 6 tablespoons butter, 8 tablespoons flour, 4 cups milk, 1¼ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1½ cups shrimps, 4 tablespoons chopped cooked green peppers, 3 tablespoons chopped cooked celery, 2 tablespoons pimentos, chopped; ½ cup cheese, cut fine; 2 eggs, well beaten.

Apples Help to Keep Mouth And Teeth Clean

This fruit, containing vitamins A, B, and C, is excellent health food, says Dr. Copeland, urging that it have a prominent place in the diet.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City,
United States Senator From New York.

Whenever I see someone peeling an apple, I am reminded of my grandfather. As a boy I was fascinated by his skill in peeling an apple, leaving the entire skin in one piece. I tried hard but never approached his skill.

In a recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association it was said that "in the good old days" people munched at apples without paying any attention to the skin of the fruit. They were not afraid they would eat germs if they ate the peeling of the apple. Indeed they hadn't learned about germs as yet.

Pretty soon we will be imitating our ancestors. The scientists have discovered that the skin of the apple is as important as the pulp. Vitamin C is found in this part of the apple. That is too important a food element to waste.

The old saying, "an apple a day keeps the doctor away," is known to apply to the dentist as well. Apples help to keep the mouth clean. They possess certain cleansing properties. When an apple is eaten after a meal it serves as a toothbrush. The eating of an apple, too, causes a flow of saliva which is beneficial to the teeth.

Apples contain vitamins A, B and C. They do not carry as much vitamin C as oranges or tomatoes, but because they are eaten in larger quantities their importance to the body welfare must not be overlooked.

Apples contain organic salts and iron. The organic salts are alkaline in reaction and help to prevent disease. The iron aids in the formation of red blood cells and of the hemoglobin, which is the coloring material of the blood.

Apples contain sugar and carbohydrates. They are easily digested and supply energy because of the sugar content. When extra nourishment is needed they are excellent food between meals.

Apples can be served in a variety of ways. They can be eaten raw or baked. They can be prepared with other foods.

Apple sauce, a delicious dish, can be given to every member of the family, from the baby to grandpa. Many physicians prescribe apple sauce for the baby when it is but six months old. If it is important to the health of the baby, it certainly should be included in the diet of the whole family.

Brownsville Merger Movement Launched

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—A movement for the consolidation of Brownsville and South Brownsville, was launched by the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs yesterday.

Eugene C. Sloan was named chairman of the committee in charge of the campaign. Petitions will be presented to the councils of the boroughs next month.

Prudence Penny's Recipes

schino cherries cut in halves and maraschino syrup from bottle. Peel oranges, removing all enveloping membrane. Hold so that escaping juice falls on marshmallows. Slice fruit and cut slices in pieces to make two cups. Whip cream until stiff and fold in marshmallows and fruit. Place in sherbet or parfait glasses. Let stand in refrigerator for an hour or so until thoroughly chilled.

LEMON PIE—One package of lemon pudding, 2 tablespoons sugar or more to suit taste, 2½ cups water, 1 egg.

Put 2 cups of water into double boiler to heat. Place the contents of package in mixing bowl. Add 2 tablespoons of granulated sugar, or more to suit taste, and mix thoroughly. Beat the yolk of 1 egg and add to it ½ cup water. Stir this slowly into the dry mixture. Add this mixture slowly to the water heated in the double boiler, stirring as you do so. Cook for about 5 minutes, stirring occasionally until it thickens. Pour filling into pie crust baked in advance. Let cool, then cover with meringue and brown in oven.

CRANBERRY SALAD DRESSING—9 tablespoons of salad oil, 3 tablespoons lemond juice, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon of white pepper, dash of paprika, 6 tablespoons cranberry sauce, sugar.

Beat oil, lemon juice and seasonings together well. Add cranberry sauce and mix thoroughly. Sweeten to taste with two or more tablespoons of sugar.

This dressing goes very nicely with a cold turkey salad, made of left-over turkey meat, chopped celery and hard cooked egg. It is also an excellent dressing for a fruit salad.

CHOCOLATE FRUIT AND NUT CAKE—1-3 cup butter, 1 cup sugar, ¼ cup cocoa, 3 egg yolks, ½ cup cold water, 1¼ cups bread flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 3 egg whites, 1-3 cup candied cherries, 1-3 cup seeded raisins, 1-3 cup nut meats chopped, 1 teaspoonful vanilla.

Blend the ingredients in the order given. Bake for 50 minutes in a deep loaf pan. When cool cover with a white boiled frosting, and when this is set pour over it a thin layer of melted cooking chocolate.

EGGS HUNTINGTON—Six hard cooked eggs, sliced, 2 cups thick white sauce, 1 cup diced American cheese, ½ cup buttered crumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon white pepper.

In buttered baking dish arrange layers of sliced eggs, cheese, seasonings and white sauce. Sprinkle top generously with crumbs and cheese and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until brown. Serves 6.

'Goat' of the Family Seldom Deserves Sympathy

Are you—or have you—A Family Goat? Is there someone in your family who you take it for granted should carry all the burdens, give up all the plums—while the rest of you live to suit yourselves, or wait to be taken care of?

Or are you maybe that someone?

Then listen while Bonnie broadcasts. She's not broadcasting for herself, but for the Boy Friend. She loves him and he loves her. But mamma says "Nix" whenever they talk of marriage.

And why? Well, mamma and Little Sister have to be supported, don't they? And what right has Ted to expect to live any life of his own, so long as that is true?

MARRIAGE DISAPPROVED

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I have been going with Ted now for almost a year, and we love each other. We wish to be married, but there is something holding us back, and we don't know what to do about it.

"When he was just a child his father died, leaving a family of two girls and two boys. Shortly afterward the oldest girl was married, and a few years later the oldest son married, too. Then the family at home consisted of a girl, who is now 16, and Ted, who is now 21.

"Now Ted has worked and supported his mother and this sister for years, handing over all his pay to do it. He has never had a car, or a real chance to play. He never paid much attention to girls until he met me. But when we had gone together about seven months we became engaged. In the meantime, he had taken me to his home many times, and his mother seemed to like me, and so did his brother and sisters.

"But the trouble started when he bought me a diamond. He was asked to give me up. He was too young to marry, they said. His mother wouldn't let me share her home, and he isn't able to keep up two.

WANTS OWN HOME

"She even came and told me I ought to give him up. She claimed she didn't want to keep me from meeting other men, and that I would surely forget him. She insisted that he must at least wait until his sister was married before he married.

Ted has always done all he could for his mother, and never complained, but now that he wants a little life of his own she asks him what will become of her.

What should we do to straighten up this mess? We are so anxious for our own little home, but it seems hopeless.

BONNIE

How familiar that all sounds! And what a Big Heart of sympathy will go up from all the other Goats when they read Ted's story.

But the brutal truth is that a Goat seldom deserves sympathy.

BOY'S OWN FAULT

Why is a Goat a Goat? Because he or she allows himself to be made a Goat.

Here, for instance, is Ted's case. Ted has given loyal years to his family. Now Little Sister is able to work for herself. Big Brother is able to contribute something. And there's no reason given why Dear Mama herself should not get out and do a little hustling. Yet they hang it all on Ted.

Of course they do! And they'll continue to hang it as long as they live if Ted permits them to do so.

That doesn't prove that they are Malicious Monsters. It simply proves that they are a bunch of normal humans with the ordinary amount of normal human selfishness. They're looking out for themselves and Ted isn't. That's all. And whose fault is it? It's Ted's.

It is not only necessary but it is also our sacred duty to protect our own fundamental rights in this world. It is up to each of us to make the most of the life given us. And if we don't do it, no one will do it for us.

Even Biggest Popularity Wave Lasts but a Short Time, Fay King Warns

By FAY KING

"When you're on the mountain top the whole world's there to spy you! But when you're in the ditch below, the whole world passes by you!"

That is the gist of an old-fashioned poem, but the sense of it is true today.

It is so easy to become a law unto one's self in that isolated place of power and ignore the opinions of the people looking up at you. So easy to forget that it was their appreciation and applause that put you there.

We say of those who are enjoying great popularity that they are riding on the crest of the wave.

Even the biggest wave lasts but a comparatively short while.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Nose Growth May Lead to Ills

Recently an old friend spent a few days with me in the country. As we walked about the garden, I noticed he was unusually enthusiastic about the fragrance of the flowers. I inquired about it.

Dr. Copeland

It seems that for many months he had been without any sense of smell. Becoming alarmed, he had consulted a physician. A small polyp, or growth, was found in his nose. Its presence had almost destroyed his ability to smell.

No wonder my friend was delighted with the fragrance of the flowers. The polyp had been removed and his sense of smell was completely restored.

A nasal polyp is a growth found within the nose. It is caused by a chronic inflammation of the lining of the nose, or of one of the associated cavities. The tumor develops slowly, but may become sufficiently large to obstruct the nasal passage.

Many persons who are mouth breathers suffer from this condition. They are unaware of the actual cause, and sometimes regard the difficulty as due to adenoids. This belief is unfounded because adenoids are rarely found in adults. It is unusual, too, for nasal polyps to be found in children.

Many an individual who has been susceptible to colds and sore throats has found relief when the polyp was removed. In every case the growth should be removed. It is detrimental to the general health.

In olden times all polyps of the nose were looked upon as a form of cancer. This is not the case, but like all other abnormal growths, it may develop into something serious.

There is just one way to get rid of the polypus. This is by an operation. Fortunately this is a simple matter. It can be performed under local anaesthesia in the doctor's office.

If you have a nasal polyp, place yourself under the care of a physician. It is unwise to postpone the treatment of this condition. Future danger will be avoided and your general health will be improved by the removal of this growth.

Please remember that the removal of the growth is only the first step toward bringing about a cure of the nasal disease. After the removal, it may be necessary to treat the inflamed mucous membrane.

Every effort should be made to cure the chronic inflammation of the nose. The growth rarely if ever, recurs when these precautions are taken.

Heart of a Wife -:- Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Studies Miss Avis Arlen

I had two motives in calling Hank the more obstreperous of Mary's brothers, and sending him to tell her that the Veritzens had arrived. The errand was but a pretense, for she already knew of their arrival, but necessary, because I didn't want anyone to know that she had made any especial preparations for seeing them. With loyalty to my husband's winsome niece warming my heart, I did not wish to leave Noel's vicinity for a single instant until Mary should have come downstairs.

Avis Arlen's intention to monopolize him publicly was only too apparent. And I also wished to whisper a word of warning to Hank.

It was but a few seconds before he reached me, and I murmured my directions in a tone which could be heard only by himself.

"Tell Mary that the Veritzens are here and that I want her to come down. And, Hank, if you ever want me to do anything for you again, don't make any comment upon Mary's dress or appearance when she comes down. And tell Bill that, too, without anyone's hearing you, as soon as you get back downstairs."

"Okey," he said. "What about Marion?"

"You won't have to say anything to her," I replied confidently. "She won't say anything."

"Because she's a girl, I suppose," Hank muttered a bit rebelliously, as he departed, and I mentally amended his comment. "Because she's the right kind of girl," I said to myself, knowing that Marion's loyalty to Mary and her innate good taste would keep her from any comment which would furnish ammunition to Avis Arlen.

For deep within me stirred the intuitive knowledge that Philip Veritzen had an able and determined ally in Avis Arlen, for his scheme to alienate Mary from Noel, which I suspected. While I kept up a perfunctory exchange of banalities with Noel, who I knew was paying little attention to what I was saying, I watched the girl at the other end of the room, mentally noting her points of attraction as the second of a duelist might go over the advantages of his friend's opponent.

"A tall, slender blonde," I said to myself, then flushed as I remembered that the same appellation frequently had been given me. But mine is a different sort of fairness, the kind that goes with the dark, red-gold hair which Dicky is pleased to call "Titian." This girl's skin was so white that I felt instinctively if it were not enhanced with cosmetics put on with a practiced hand it would betray the blush-white pallor which goes with ill health. But it was so artfully aided that one had the impression of "apple blossom time in Normandy," "wild roses in June" and all the rest of the similies.

Her features were anything but beautiful, the contour of her face too long and angular, her cheek bones too high, but her hair was lovely, a mass of blonde curls which she had arranged in apparently careless ringlets blowing about her face in patent imitation of a noted cinema star. The whole was an alluring setting for her eyes, big, blue and with curiously heavy, dark eyelashes and eyebrows contrasting most effectively with the blondness of her skin and hair.

Her hands, beautifully kept, were too large and bony, and I was sure that her feet, though encased in modish and expensive shoes which would make any feet look attractive, were even less beautiful than her hands. Her traveling costume, evidently a Parisian importation, was unusually long, and I surmised that she was one of the women to whom the banishment of knee-length dresses was a Godsend.

But I saw that she was infinitely clever in making the most of every point she had, which is so much more valuable to a woman than beauty, and though I knew that every woman and many experienced men would see through her at a glance, yet there were enough inexperienced boys and fatuous older men in her ever-widening social acquaintance to give her a priority of attentions over girls infinitely more attractive.

I shot a furtive glance at Noel. Yes, he also was sending an occasional glance in her direction, although he for the most part was watching the staircase down which he knew Mary would probably come.

And then, Noel stirred abruptly, and took a step toward the hall.

"There she is, now!" he said, as Mary came rapidly down the stairs.

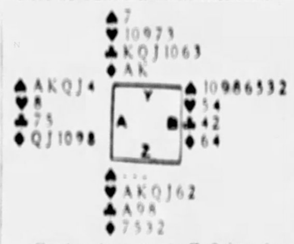
By E. V. SHEPARD

Relative Values of Games and Penalties

An important feature of the game is knowing the relative values of games and penalties; when to overbid to save game; when scoring penalties will pay better then going game or rubber. For practical purposes consider an average rubber worth 1,000 points. A game is half a rubber, or approximately worth 500 points, whether first, second or rubber game. When you start a rubber you have 2 in 4 chances of winning the rubber; that is your equity in the rubber is 500 points. If you win the first game your chances to win the rubber have increased to 3 in 4; your equity has increased by 250 points, and you have assured yourself of saving 200 points, because a three-game rubber awards the winner only 500 points premium, instead of the 700 points premium of winning a love rubber.

At almost any stage of the rubber you can better afford being penalized 400 points than allow opponents to win a game. You had better accept 600 points penalty than win either the first or second game, but I prefer winning the rubber to penalizing opponents anything short of 1,000 points.

In case opponents are a game-in and have a part score of the last game, while you have no score, it will probably be better to give them a cheap rubber than to overbid more than two tricks. But as the next hand shows, sometimes it may pay a pair not vulnerable to overbid a hand several tricks to save the rubber against a vulnerable pair able to fulfill a slam contract.



Contracting west: Z, 2-hearts; A, 2-spades; Y, 3-clubs (to show his strong side suit before supporting hearts); B, 3-spades; Z, 4-clubs; A, 4-diamonds (announcing possession of a two-suiter); Y, 4-hearts; B, pass; Z, 4-spades (a bid of opponent's suit shows lack of losers in the suit); A, 5-diamonds; Y, 6-diamonds (no losers); B, scenting the opposing slam, 6-spades; Z, 7-hearts; A, 7-spades; Y, double, ending contracting. The contract was defeated five tricks, costing A-B 1,000 points, less 100 honors, or 900 points net. But the grand slam for Y-Z would have yielded 15,000 points, plus 100 honor points, 210 game points and 700 love rubber points; a total of 2,510 points, or 1,610 points more than accrued from doubling A-B. The latter pair won game on the next deal, saving them 120 game points and 200 points off opponents' rubber bonus, 1,930 points less than giving up on the previous hand. When Y-Z won three-odd at no-trump on the next hand they were still short 1,326 points of what the slam rubber would have yielded.

Household Hints

Bread which has become stale can be freshened by steaming over a saucepan of boiling water for a few minutes. Or it may be wrapped for a few moments in a cloth wrung out of boiling water, then baked in a slow oven.

Warm milk in which a little shredded soap has been dissolved cleans kid gloves and feeds the leather. Apply with a piece of flannel while the gloves are on the hands, paying particular attention to the parts between the fingers.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

The blonde darling who has been sticking faithfully to blue eye-shadows may get a happy thrill by changing to faint green. In the evening, especially, green affords a mysterious and fascinating frame for the eyes. Whatever color is used, it must be applied carefully, stingily.

The fresh bloom of youth is what every woman is after. That means that eye shadows must be used with caution, and that the lip sticking process has become a work of art. Smile broadly when putting on the rosy ointment, so that the lips won't look crepe-like, with up and down creases into which the coloring has not penetrated. The last layer of powder should be toned down with a camel's hair brush.

Inscription

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I want to tell you first how much I appreciate your column. It has answered so many questions I have asked myself a dozen times. I am really disappointed when you have nothing in the paper.

1. I am giving my husband a watch for an anniversary present. I want to have it engraved inside. Just what could I have engraved in it?

2. Would it be all right to have his monogram put on the outside? A. K.

Thank you . . . and I am so happy that you find the column helpful. Come often, if I may help in answering any of your questions.

1. It is difficult for a mere third person to suggest so intimate a message as this, if you want to have something special engraved inside. But to my way of thinking, nothing could be more charming, and more significant (since each reads the sacred message in the names and the date) than the engraving of the names and the date of the marriage. To John, from Mary, November 23, 1931. Isn't that really what you want to say, and doesn't it really say everything? Or, To John, with my love, Mary, November 23, 1931.

2. Yes. If the watch has a plain back, it is very effective to have a large scroll monogram or initials plainer, say in block letters. This monogram or these initials are not only decorative, but also serve the practical purpose of protecting the back of the watch from being scratched.

Greeting Fellow Workers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last July I started to work in an office (my first job) where there are five men. I should like to know whether or not I should send each one of them a Christmas card, and if so, should I address it to their home addresses? M. M.

Since, in such a small office, you probably know each other very well, it would be gracious and friendly of you to send greeting cards to your co-workers, if you wish to make this gesture. Choose dignified cards, simple and goodlooking. Send them to the home address. And, if the men are married, be sure to address the cards to the wife as well as the husband.

HIGH SPEED GIRL — By May Christie

It was midnight. Laurel and her mother faced each other in the living room of the Park avenue apartment, with the lights of New York glinting far below them.

No longer were those lights like kind and sympathetic eyes. They held a menace in them.

Undercurrents in this lovely city! Diaz . . . the stolen necklace . . . BLACKMAIL!

"Mother, it's quite obvious that HE took it!"

"I—I don't know anything, Laurel."

"But you say he was begging you for money to cover his plunges on the stock market?"

"I've done that twice before for him. This time I—well, I hadn't the cash."

Shame and regret were on her mother's face, and intense worry.

"If I put the matter in the hands of the police they—they'll ferret out everything!"

"That—and—and other things as well—"

"Then you do think it was Diaz who stole it?"

"Oh, Laurel, let's not speak about it."

"But Connie, darling, you can't dismiss a $7,000 loss like that so easily?"

Her mother burst into tears. She sobbed: "Do you want your father to divorce me?"

Connie—and Michael, her father—divorced?

And Connie's husband (unknown to his wife, of course) had been supping and wining a chorus girl in the Club Lido . . .

Tit-for-tat. Both pulling in different directions, and double-crossing each other . . . which appeared to be the theme-song of Modern Marriage!

"The police musn't be called in—"

"Not till we've tried other means," said Laurel.

"But how?"

"Leave it to me."

"And not a word to your father!"

CONNIE FEARFUL

"He's nothing of the sort. He knows every scrap of jewelry that I possess. He says I'm careless, so at least once a week he counts all the pieces in my jewel case. He'd be furious—he'll miss them right away, you'll see!—and the moment he tells the police, Diaz will be arrested! Then Diaz will tell all kinds of lies—he's terribly unscrupulous, Laurel—"

"It won't come to that. Listen. Weren't you going tomorrow night to the Fine Arts ball?"

"Yes. I was going with Diaz. But he's put me off."

"H'm? What excuse?"

"That he's in the Pageant, and he wouldn't be able to give me proper attention."

"Is THAT so? Then we'll go on our own. I can rake up a couple of men."

"Whatever for? I tell you I'm terribly upset, Laurel."

"Well, maybe you won't be so much upset after the ball."

"If you intend to tackle HIM, he—he'll only insult you."

"Never you mind what I intend to do. But be sure that between now and then little Laurel's wits will be working!"

Comforted a little, her mother went to bed. But she had horrid dreams. She knew she'd been a fool, and her "sub-conscious" mind made her suffer for it.

FACES FATHER

Furious rebuke awaited her. He had the morning paper in his hand. He pointed an accusing finger at an item headed: "Notorious Speakeasy Raided."

"So YOU were there! Your name—MY honorable name, that is to say—published among the law-breakers and degenerates!"

"Yes, I was there," said Laurel quietly, "and I'm sorry about it."

"After the expensive education I've given you, and the high social advantages!" He banged his first on the breakfast-table. "Is that all you can find to say, after you've DISGRACED me!"

"No—since you insist, I can say something else," said Laurel, with her chin held up. "Later in the evening I saw YOU, having a champagne supper with a chorus-girl — Ruby Somebody-or-other—in the Lido club!"

They were in costumes of the Italian Renaissance period. Accompanied by Freddie deFarge and Roger.

Well, she'd learned her lesson. If only the precious string of pearls could be recovered!

The Pageant would start in a few moments now. Would she see Diaz?

Laurel was in a black chiffon velvet, with a voluminous skirt, and gold sleeves and a towering headdress.

It had been hired, at a cost of $30, for the evening.

It didn't in the least do justice to Laurel's slim, young beauty.

How kind the child had been! for once, how gentle to her mother!

Freddie wore a white satin suit, which was supposed to represent the Duke of Buckingham.

Suddenly Connie's heart missed a beat. Her breath caught. Clad in a magnificent costume of sapphire velvet, she saw Diaz approaching . . .

The night previous to the Fine Arts ball, Laurel slept soundly, despite her mother's confession.

She MUST sleep well, so that she would have her wits about her for the recovery of the necklace!

Those pearls MUST be got back, at once. And the best thing to do—she had decided—was to go early tomorrow morning to the firm with whom the pearls were insured.

In doing so, in a sense she must break her promise to Connie, about not mentioning her loss.

But the insurance people would keep her visit quiet. There would be no publicity attendant on that, as in a visit to the police.

Not, anyhow, in the meantime.

She was up early, while poor Connie, who had slept badly, was belating slumbering.

At breakfast she had a disagreeable crossing-of-the-swords with Dad, over her name being printed in the morning paper among the list of "visitors" at Cleo's raided speakeasy.

And she had come right back at Dad, rather cruelly. She had let him know that she had seen him with a chorus-girl at the Lido Club the previous evening . . .

Following that bombshell, they had eaten breakfast—he and she—in a frozen silence.

Then she had put on her coat and hat and taken a taxi straight to the Providence Insurance Co.

She was the first client in. She got quick attention.

"We have a photo of your mother's necklace, taken when she brought it here to be insured some years ago. Now, tell me, what were the names of the friends she was with when she lost it last evening?" inquired one of the principals.

Laurel stammered: "There was just one person."

"The name and address, please, and the particulars."

Reluctantly she complied:

The firm's detective was then called in.

"Now repeat to him exactly what you've told me—"

"My mother was dining at Farini's, 172B East Thirty-sixth street, last night, with a South American man called Diaz. He was a dance instructor all last summer out on Long Island at the Country Club."

The detective, who had been chewing on his cigar, took it out of his mouth to exclaim—"Ha! Diaz?" His face lighted up.

"Yes. D'you know anything of him?" asked Laurel quickly and hopefully.

"What's he look like?"

"Rather like an elongated eel, with a shiny black head and the kind of eyes that keep darting about . . . ."

"Listens like the same bird to me! Has he got a kind of little scar running from the corner of the left eye about an inch down his cheek?"

She thought a moment. "Yes, I believe he has."

"And—say, let me remember a minute—hasn't he got a flower or a girl's head or something tattooed above the elbow on one of his arms?"

"Why, yes, he has," cried Laurel excitedly, "I noticed it one night when he was doing an exhibition dance with me at the country club. He only had a leopard skin on . . ."

"Had he, indeed! Well, he's a cagey fellow, and I shouldn't be surprised if we soon have our leopard in the pen!"

"Oh, no!" She remembered Connie's fears and admonitions. "My mother only wants her necklace back! She—she doesn't want to prosecute anyone—"

Then the detective said slowly: "Well, I guess the main thing is to get those poils back . . ."

He asked Laurel some more leading questions about Diaz.

"It's the same guy, I'll swear. If I remember right, he's been three times in the 'jug' already."

Laurel's pretty eyes widened in horror.

"But—but—he seemed so charming—so good-natured—"

"Those jewel thieves very often are, else how can they ingratiate themselves with those they intend to rob?" volunteered the insurance agent.

Laurel looked helplessly at the detective.

He was chewing on his cigar again. He said, from one corner of his mouth: "This bird has a whole lot of aliases. Taylor . . . Rodriguez . . . and the lord knows what else!" He clapped his hat on the back of his head. "Well, boss, I'm on my way. And you can expect some quick action."

"You'll keep it as private as possible? You understand how my mother—I mean she couldn't BEAR anything in the papers—" implored Laurel, reddening.

"You can rely on me, miss, to put this thing through with as little inconvenience to your mother as possible."

Laurel had given him her 'phone number. "And we'll be at the Fine Arts ball tonight, and unless Diaz is off hiding somewhere, I've reason to believe HE'LL be there, too," she told the detective.

Never were people more magnificently arrayed. Some of the New York women were literally clothed in diamonds!

"There's Christopher Columbus arriving at the Court of Spain after his return from his voyage of discovery," explained Roger.

But it was no Doge or Dogess that Connie's anxious eyes were seeking . . . it was DIAZ!

She hated him now. But she MUST speak to him tonight. Must implore him to give her back her necklace.

For Michael—her husband—would soon discover her loss and would immediatery take action.

In more ways than one! For, finding out her relationship with Diaz (as inevitably he would do if he put the matter in the hands of the police) he would take steps to divorce her.

There would be very little alimony, too! The law would back him up in that.

And at HER age (going on for 47!) WHAT would she do? Without money, brains or youth, or reputation who would WANT her? . . .

DEMOCRATS RAP SCANDAL BOOKS

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—Hot and vigorous denial was made today by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic National Executive Committee, that the Democratic organization had anything to do with the publication of recent "scandal books" reflecting upon the career of President Hoover.

Shouse said:

"It has remained for Col. Robert K. Lucas, executive director of the Republican National Committee, to do President Hoover the disservice of calling public attention to a number of books recently published that deal with the non-political phases of Mr. Hoover's career in a manner that is palpably libelous if the statements are untrue.

"The Democratic National Committee has scrupulously avoided any personal aspersions of the President, such as are implied in the recital of the alleged details of his exploits as a promoter of mining companies, which make up so large a part of the more recent of these books."

Sister of Man Lost 3 Years Disappears

MOUNT CARMEL, Pa., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Cecilia Lubeski, 27, left home last night to go to a church social, three blocks away, and has not been heard from since.

Policeman Halts Boulevard Rush To Save Dog

A policeman's whistle shrilled, traffic stopped.

Policeman Edward Walters' hand reached for the scruff of the dog's neck, carried him across the road and he trotted on his way.

MOTHER OF 14 UNDER DRY BAN

Mrs. Josephine Bosco, of 1604 Cliff street, mother of 14 children; her husband, Salvatore, and her son, Carl, were named in a temporary liquor injunction against their premises by Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court today. Most of the children are grown up.

Their dwelling and garage have been raided 12 times since May 18, 1927, and on six occasions stills and liquor were seized, according to the bill of complaint filed by Prohibition Administrator Robert S. Krause. A final hearing was set for March 1.

Oklahoma Votes On Murray Reforms

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Gov. William H. Murray's administration came to a crossroads today as Oklahomans voted on his "firebells" reform program, which opponents say will drive business from the state's borders and set up a virtual dictatorship.

"Alfalfa Bill" wound up his campaign last night in support of proposals for tax revision, free textbooks, escheat of certain corporate lands, and budget revision.

JUDGE ASSISTS HOME DRIVE

An appeal to residents of Allegheny County to enroll in the membership campaign of the Parting of the Ways Home, 216 East Stockton avenue, was made in a statement yesterday by Federal Judge W. H. S. Thomson, vice president and a member of the board. He said in part:

"This work of assisting men from prison in changing their lives from criminality to respectable and respected citizenship deals with probably the most precious thing known.

"Surely such a dividend is one that should satisfy the most exacting investor. When it is considered that the investment is not one of thousands of dollars per man but rather one of a few dollars—approximately 10—then the return on the investment is indeed amazing."

Einstein Explains Change in Theory

COLON, Canal Zone, Dec. 18.—(Universal.)—Prof. Einstein's original theory has undergone radical change since his visit to Mount Wilson Observatory, Cal., last year. He is on his way back to California to "clarify his new conclusions."

Prof. Einstein revealed this much on his arrival here aboard the Hamburg-American liner Portland, accompanied by Mrs. Einstein, en route for a nine-weeks' stay at Pasadena, during which he will be the guest of the Institute of Technology and make astronomical studies at Mount Wilson Observatory. Of his theories he said:

"My field theory, which was evolved before my visit to California last year, has been entirely changed. Since my observations at Mount Wilson I have worked out a theory with Dr. Mayer, my assistant, and what I have now developed is entirely different in prospect.

"The theory now is based on relativity and the unification of electrifying gravity. In my new observations from Mount Wilson Observatory, from a theoretical point of view, I hope to be able to arrive at successful conclusions."

Fatal P. R. R. Wreck Blamed on Speed

The accident resulted in the death of two railroad employes and the injury of 11 passengers and three employes.

PITT WINS 84 OF LAST 96 ON FLOOR

REGARDLESS OF WHAT may be the outcome of their present invasion of the Middle West and the Pacific Coast, the basketeers of the University of Pittsburgh have at least demonstrated the superiority of the basketball played by the colleges of this sector and the mid-West over that played by the Eastern quintets. Indeed, there are some who believe that the Pitt brand of basketball is superior to that played in any other part of the country.

Doc Kowallis

In the last four years, and up to date on the present trip, the Panthers have won no fewer than 84 out of 96 games, averaging a little better than 20 wins per season against only three defeats. Of the 12 games lost, eight have been dropped to mid-Western teams. Notre Dame took a game in 1929, the same year that saw the Carlsons lose the first three games of their mid-Western invasion to Butler, Wisconsin and Northwestern. Last year Western Reserve, Creighton and Indiana won decisions over the Panthers, and this week a defeat was suffered at the hands of Wisconsin.

IN THE MEANTIME, however, Notre Dame has been defeated five times, Ohio State four times, Iowa and Indiana three times each, Northwestern and Nebraska twice each, and Michigan, Chicago, Purdue, Marquette, Montana State and Muskingum once each.

Against the East, the Panthers have been even more successful. Out of a total of 20 games played with teams representing that part of the country, only two have been lost. The only eastern quintets to win verdicts over the Carlsons were Syracuse and College of the City of New York.

ON THE PITT side of the ledger, in contrast to those two wins or eastern opponents, are four victories over Army, three over Temple, two each over Syracuse, Fordham and Dartmouth, and one each over New York U., Penn, Colgate, Georgetown and Rensselaer.

In competition with teams of their home district, the Carlsons in four years have met defeat only twice in 42 starts. West Virginia administered both of those reverses, the first in 1929 and the other in 1930. Eleven games were won from Carnegie Tech, eight from Penn State, eight from W. & J., six from West Virginia, three from Grove City, and one each from Allegheny, St. Vincent and Waynesburg.

BECAUSE THE CUBS will be the sixth National League club for which he has pitched, Burleigh Grimes is being called the champion circuit rider. But in the matter of frequent shifts he has nothing on Sad Sam Jones, recently traded to the White Sox by the Senators. For Chicago will also be the sixth stop for Jones in one major league, as he pitched previously for the Indians, Red Sox, Yankees, Browns and Senators. Moreover, Jones spent at least three years with each of those clubs except the Browns, whereas Brooklyn was the only club on which Grimes remained more than two seasons.

Paul Reider

IN PITT'S RETURN to the system of choosing football captains by vote of the players, it was a happy selection the Panther gridders made last night in electing Paul Reider, brilliant halfback, leader of the varsity eleven for next season.

Reider is not only one of the greatest players developed here in recent years, but when given an opportunity to run the team he showed rare qualities of leadership, combining splendid judgment with an ability to instill a spirit of fire and fight into his mates. The New Castle boy is a natural leader and the choice of the players will be heartily approved by the fan community.

A SPORT FIGURE not only outstanding in Pittsburgh, but of national prominence, passed on in the death of James S. Jiles, of Mt. Lebanon, twice champion of the United States in archery and five times runner-up for the title.

Though national tournaments were started in 1879, archery has enjoyed its most remarkable growth throughout the United States in the last decade, and the influence and activity of Mr. Jiles were huge factors in the advance. No man in the country did more to promote the comeback of the ancient sport that dates back to the early Egyptians.

DUQUESNE UNIVERSITY will take good care of the home football fans next season, the schedule announced today assures. Not counting the Pitt-Carnegie and Pitt-Duke contests, which will be home games in a sense for all three of the teams involved, the Panthers will have four games here, and Carnegie, after the November 8 date is filled, will have three. Against that total of seven local engagements by the Panthers and Shibes combined, the Dukes will offer eight home attractions if the plan to arrange a game for September 16 is carried out, playing only one game abroad out of 10 scheduled. So the district fans will not have to go hungry at any stage of the campaign.

AND IT'S A palatable menu, too, that the Bluffites will serve at Forbes Field. Apart from the Pitt game, there are three new attractions on the list as compared with the 1931 slate, these being W. & J., Grove City and South Dakota State, with one more possible in the opener.

West Virginia, Oglethorpe, Georgetown and West Virginia Wesleyan round out an appealing home program, which includes six of the night games that have become so popular here. Starting September 16 and ending November 19, the Saturday before Thanksgiving Day, the season will have the earliest opening and closing in Duke history.

THE BOOKING OF W. & J. for November 5 will mean conflicting attractions here, as Carnegie is negotiating for a game for that date at the Stadium. It also means W. & J. will appear here twice, the Presidents being carded to play the Tartans at the Stadium on October 15.

However, such a popular attraction as Wash-Jeff will bear repetition, with the games three weeks apart. The meetings with the Presidents, West Virginia, Grove City and West Virginia Wesleyan make the slate rich in sectional color and appeal. All around it's the best and hardest schedule ever arranged for the Dukes.

King Levinsky

INSTEAD OF GETTING the chance he has fairly earned to take a shot at somebody near the championship row in the heavyweight fistic division, Tommy Loughran evidently is being forced to go through the qualifying process all over again. Thirteen months ago he gave King Levinsky a pasting in Chicago, and in the meantime he has beaten practically all of the other heavies outside the title circle, yet tonight will find him meeting Levinsky again, this time in New York. The match doesn't mean a thing and no good reason for putting it on is apparent. Unless he should happen to land a wild haymaker, and few punches, wild or otherwise, ever land on Loughran, Levinsky won't have a chance to escape another beating. It looks like just another boxing lesson for the Kingfish, with the public paying for the tuition.

By CARL W. SHATTO

The dawn of the year 1932 is likely to find the Yellow Jackets in the second division in the International League hockey race, but the finish of the campaign probably will see the local skaters up among the elite.

This may appear to be a contradictory statement, but because of the nature of the Pittsburgh schedule and because of what transpired as the Jackets lost to the Syracuse Stars 5-3, in an overtime battle at Duquesne Garden last night, both opinions appear justified.

The first reason why the Reidmen figure to be in the real guard as 1931 passes out is because they are to engage in only three more games this year, and the second is because Earl Miller was added to the injury list in last night's wild battle, and Gordy Fraser was put right back on the hospital squad.

MILLER CRIPPLED

Miller, pivot star recently shifted to the starting lineup because of a hip injury sustained by Eddie Rodden about a fortnight ago, suffered a torn ligament in his hip early in the first period. This left Coach Charley Reid with only one able-bodied center (Whitey Fields) and one slightly crippled pivot (Rodden) available for service. Furthermore, it left the Jackets with only a 12-man squad for the night, and only a sensational third-period rally kept this handicap from sinking the locals in defeat in regulation playing time.

The handicap grew to formidable proportions late in the third period, and it was Fraser, the hero of the Reidmen's gallant comeback, who unwillingly promoted its growth. Out last week with a knee injury, Gordy returned to the lineup only to have the injured member severely twisted late in the last 20-minute stanza, and he had to be assisted off the ice.

Fraser's departure from the fray paved the way for the Syracuse victory goal, early in the extra period, for Pete Pelangio knifed right through the Jackets' substitute defense to notch the deciding tally.

LIKELY TO LOSE GROUND

Neither Fraser nor Miller will be in action when the Reidmen invade Cleveland tomorrow, and without these stars the locals figure to lose. This defeat, if it materializes, will drop Pittsburgh into the second division, but the fight and skill displayed by the overworked forwards last night should carry the Reidmen back up near the top before the campaign's close.

The game with Syracuse was slightly more than seven minutes old before the scoring ice was broken, and it was broken by the Stars when they least expected to break it. The visitors had one man in the penalty box and the Jackets had five men milling around the Syracuse cage when Drouillard broke free and swooped down on Abbie Cox, Pittsburgh goalie, left without protection. Howe tallied on a pass from Downie after 57 seconds of action in the second stanza to boost the Stars' edge to two goals. He broke in on Cox after apparently being checked out of the play by the local defense.

JACKETS STAGE RALLY

The Pittsburgh victory hopes were at about zero at 7:22 in the third period when Palangio put

W.-J. Gridders Elect Port; D.-E. Picks Local Lad

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 18.—Phil Port, of Rutherford, N. J., quarterback for the past two years, was elected captain on the first ballot at a meeting of 26 lettermen last night.

Port is one of the most popular members of the squad. Failing to reach a decision last year, a three-fourths majority being necessary for election, three players acted as captains during the season.

ELKINS, W. Va., Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Robert Markowitz, Munhall, Pa., has been appointed captain of the Davis and Elkins College basketball team, Markowitz, a senior playing his fourth year, was selected by Coach Cam Henderson. He is a guard.

The CURIOUS MAGIC-SQUARE MONEY OF GERMANY — 1630
DUE TO THE LACK OF SILVER IN THEIR COINS THE GOVERNMENT PUT THIS PUZZLE ON THEM TO MAKE THEM MORE DESIRABLE

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: D'ANNUNZIO'S BATTLESHIP — Gabriele D'Annunzio, Italian poet, soldier and recluse, after his unsuccessful raid on Fiume, withdrew to a villa on Lake Garda to lead the life of a sybaritic hermit. Dressed in the habit of a Franciscan friar, he surrounded himself with a pack of savage dogs and costly scents. In the garden of the "castle" he placed the Italian cruiser Puglia, sunk during the war. The cruiser was salvaged and presented to D'Annunzio as a gift from the Italian government. It is manned by former sailors of the Italian Navy. Its guns on the turrets and broadsides are fired from the vessel on patriotic occasions. The castle was the property of Richard Wagner's widow, whom the Italian government dispossessed without any compensation.

TARTANS BEAT KY. WESLEYAN IN OPENER

By H. C. Carlson

Pitt Basketball Coach.

Written Exclusively for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Dr. H. C. Carlson

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Dec. 18.—Probably no other team in the country would be permitted to attempt Pitt's heralded 'suicide' schedule, but beyond the provincial idea of projecting the prestige of the Pittsburgh district, there is a desire to demonstrate the spirit of youth. Boys will tackle the impossible and win, in spite of difficulties and disappointments. To me these Pitt boys personify the spirit that will lift America out of any depression.

Tonight our Panthers tackle the strong Purdue team. We are ready to go!

The Pitt team seems to be adapting itself to the more rugged type of midwestern basketball. Since the Wisconsin game, we have learned that an initial impulse is allowed to an offensive pivot man backing into his guard and that an equal and opposite impulse is allowed the defensive man.

PITT TEAM PRAISED

Also we have learned that two seconds is the time for a real sprint man to run 20 yards and that football officials count six to a second. Smith and Ochsenhirt have played full time in both contests. Lawry and Wilis Kowallis have played their usual dazzling game, and the work of Wrobleski and Steve Kowallis has been a revelation. Hughes and McCamant have reached expectation, with chances for Bogda and Forsberg coming soon.

Pops Harrison, Iowa scout, says Pitt is the greatest conpetitive team in the country and local scribes emphasize the youth and passing. We hope the boys continue to merit this praise in face of Purdue and Butler, probably two of the toughest teams playing.

If we beat Purdue tonight, there will be 15,000 Hoosiers sit in on the Butler game at Indianapolis tomorrow. Here's hoping.

TECH COPS OPENER

WINCHESTER, Ky., Dec. 18.—Carnegie Tech's tossers swept through Kentucky Wesleyan College, 67 to 27, here last night. Coach Ralph Hogan used every man on the squad in what appeared to be a practice game for the Pittsburghers.

Jagnow led the scoring with 14 points. The visitors missed only eight shots during the first half, which ended, 28-16. The Kentucky team showed a burst of speed four minutes before the half ended.

Young, Wesleyan star, was removed on personal fouls in the last half. Freedel was outstanding for the Tartans both on the offense and defense. He scored 10 points.

Coach Hogan three times substituted five men at once. Coach Walter Rip Vanwinkle, of Wesleyan, sent in a new team in the final minute. The lineup:

Amateurs in Two Shows Tonight

Local amateur boxers are busy tonight. A flock of them will perform in a show in Homestead Turner Hall under the auspices of the Homestead A. A., and another team is in Cleveland for a match at the Cleveland A. C.

Father Cox and Honus Wagner are scheduled for talks at the Homestead show.

PITT GRIDDERS ELECT REIDER

Paul Reider, of New Castle, right halfback, was unanimously elected captain of the 1932 Panther grid team at a banquet tendered the 1931 eleven last night by Chancellor John G. Bowman, of the University of Pittsburgh, in the University Club. Reider is a junior in the school of physical education and went to Pitt from Bellefonte Academy.

Reider's election is the first in three years, Coach Jock Sutherland having appointed Panther leaders for the last two seasons.

Elmer Rosenbloom, of New Haven, Conn., and Jack McParland, local boy, were named student managers. Reider succeeds Eddie Hirshberg. Twenty-three letters were awarded as follows:

Seniors—Capt. Eddie Hirshberg, Jess Quatse, Mike Milligan, Ralph Daugherty, Hart Morris, Jim MacMurdo, Paul Collins, Jim Clark and Robert Morris.

Phils Trade Buzz Arlett for Scarritt

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—Big Buzz Arlett today was slipped out of the major baseball leagues, probably never to return. He was traded by the Phillies to the Baltimore Club of the International League for Russell Scarritt, another diamond veteran, who collected pay from the Boston Red Sox and Washington Senators.

Built along the lines of a heavyweight wrestler or a dreadnaught fighter, Arlett came to the Phillies last winter after being passed up year after year by big league scouts who watched him slug the ball in Ruthian fashion for the Oakland Club, of the Pacific Coast League.

Curtain Call—The Story Of a Good Tackle

By JESS CARVER

I am not one given to breaking out in emotional outbursts. There are very few things that make the goose pimples or the chills race up and down my spine. Once in a while a full house will cause me to emote a bit, or a good hand of spades or no-trump, and now and then I get a funny feeling under the scalp when I hear Ted Lewis sob "Everybody Happy?" But I do respond to the sight of football players leaving the field of battle after their last game, and, somehow or other, catch some of the choked-up emotion that is their as their coach grasps their hand for the last time.

This is the story of a tackle, and a good tackle, too. He was one of those doomed to toil unsung, a good, hard-working, fighting lineman, who carried on against all odds and carried on well. His term has been served, his toil for his alma mater is over, and he deserves even this poor attempt at a curtain call.

A SON IS BORN

January 20, 1907, was a proud day for Pat O'Donnell, of Altoona. Pat went about his work that day with a smile on his face and a song in his heart. His vest pockets bulged with cigars . . . when he beamingly gave out to friends and acquaintances to celebrate the arrival of a son, a son whom he named James Joseph, and a son in which he has taken great pride and found great joy ever since.

James Joseph, nurtured in a fine home and brought up in the right path by excellent parents, went through grade school like a cyclone through Kansas and entered Altoona Catholic High School. By this time, Jimmy was weighing about 168 pounds, stood close to six feet in height and boasted a pair of powerful shoulders and two long, sturdy legs. When Jim walked on the field for the first time, his coach turned to an assistant with this remark:

"Well, here comes our right tackle. Find out his name."

Big Jim played two seasons of sterling tackle for Catholic High School and then enrolled at Duquesne University. That was in 1928. The freshman rule had not been put in force on the Bluff at that time and Jim immediately became a contender for a varsity berth. He was played at a tackle, his natural position, on the right side of the line, and he continued at that spot for four long years.

As I mentioned before, Jim was in there on the line where it's tough to gain recognition. As the irresponsible Babe Kelleher has been known to crack:

"A guy ought to have his head examined if he goes out for a line job. They ought to cut him open and see what's in his conk—if anything."

TELLS OF TOUGHEST GAME

But Jim kept plugging along, playing hard, clean football and a sight better football than he was getting credit for. In his spare time, he was knocking out good grades, serving as president of the Student Senate, president of the Monogram Club and representing the student body on the athletic council. He also had time to break a few co-ed hearts (which are notoriously easily broken and just as easily mended) and to put on a good show at bridge.

TECH BATTLES KENTUCKY U.

GAMES TONIGHT

Pitt vs. Purdue at Lafayette, Ind.
Slippery Rock vs. Grove City at Grove City.
Geneva vs. I. K. S. at Pittsburgh.
Bloomsburg vs. Indiana Teachers at Indiana.

While Pitt and Carnegie Tech are continuing to show action on the road, and the Dukes are lying back awaiting their inaugural college clash with Grove City January 5, a college varsity puts in an exhibition appearance in town this evening as Geneva meets the I. K. S. first team at the Settlement House on Center avenue.

The Covenanters have been slow in getting started in their road games, having broken even in the district tussles this week. They defeated the Pennzips, of Oil City, Monday night and then were laced by the Akron Goodyears Tuesday.

Pitt's Panthers, who took an extra period tussle from Indiana in Bloomington Wednesday evening after having lost to Wisconsin Tuesday, get back into action tonight against Purdue's powerful Boilermakers at Lafayette. Purdue, with a star of the caliber of clever Johnny Wooden, figures to test the Panthers to a greater extent than Indiana.

Meanwhile Carnegie's Tartans, having inaugurated their campaign at Winchester, Ky., last night against Kentucky Wesleyan, meet the strong Kentucky University quintet in Lexington tonight. The Kaintuckians wound up in the runner-up notch in the Southern Conference basketball chase last winter.

Other games on the program tonight bring Slippery Rock and Grove City together at Grove City and the Bloomsburg and Indiana Teachers at Indiana.

JACKETS FACE UPHILL CLIMB

Syracuse three goals to the good by converting a pass from McBride into a tally, but it was immediately after this Palangio effort that the Jackets started to click, and they kept right on licking until Fraser was removed from the picture.

Fraser took a pass from Frank Ingram near the Syracuse goal mouth to beat Goalie Joe Miller, former Pittsburgher, and give local fans their first opportunity for a thorough cheer. The time was 1:30, and at 16:45 Ingram flashed some magnificent stick-handling after taking a pass from Matte to boost the Reidmen's total to two. Fraser, many times the "man of the hour" in past duels, scored on a lone thrust through the Syracuse defense when only one minute and 20 seconds of regulation playing time remained, and the third-period gong found the capacity crowd wildly cheering the Jackets' climb into a 3-3 deadlock.

And then came the relapse. At 2:45 in the overtime Palangio unified through Pittsburgh's patched-up defense to beat Cox from close in, and 20 seconds before the finish Markle scored on a pass from Waite after Goalie Cox had quit his cage and joined his five mates on the attack.

ARGUMENTS PLENTIFUL

Referees Flozdale and Traub were handed more hoots and hisses than the villain in an old-time melodrama ever received after they ruled out, on the grounds of interference with the goalie, a goal scored by Tory Gregg early in the first period. The Syracuse contingent joined in the hissing when they lost an argument regarding whether or not a shot by Cliff McBride had slipped past Cox late in the second stanza. Paper showers were frequent, and at one time play was halted while the ice was cleared. The lineup:

Syracuse—5.		Pittsburgh—3.
Miller	G.	Cox
Jones	L.D.	Berlett
Hughes	L.D.	Fraser
Waite	C.	E. Miller
Howe	R.W.	Ingram
Markle	L.W.	Arbour

Scores by periods:

Pittsburgh	0	0	3	0—3

Scoring—First period—Drouillard, 2:32. Second period—Howe (Downie), :37. Third period—Palangio (McBride), 5:22; Fraser (Ingram), 13:30; Ingram (Matte), 16:45; Fraser, 17:40. Overtime period: Palangio, 2:45; Markle (Waite), 3:40.

VETERANS PLAY WINTER GOLF

WINTER GOLFING POPULAR HERE

The decision of the city officials to keep open the Schenley Park golf links is roundly applauded these midwinter days. The pretty public layout was alive with golfers yesterday, women being among the sports lovers who enjoyed a round or two.

Up to this year it had been the policy of the city dads to close the Schenley Park course about the last of November, but pressure was brought to bear regarding an all-year schedule, and now the golfers are happy in the knowledge they can have their fun any time.

Among those noted on the Schenley layout yesterday were Grant Siverd and J. A. Botsford, two well-known Pittsburghers, who have been having their fun there for almost 20 years. The two veterans are delighted over the new rule which allows play in the cold months. Siverd is a famous tennis and squash player of the Pittsburgh district and Botsford, in his boyhood days, played football at Dartmouth college.

The city and county-owned courses showed a profit of $48,000 during the past season. Of this amount, $32,000 represented greens fees. The Schenley Park course was used by 3,000 permit holders.

As the result of this win, Gilligan was signed to box Petey Roberts in the main go here on Christmas afternoon.

Chairman E. T. Whiter has appointed the following sub-committee to make the necessary arrangements: William S. Haddock, chairman; William A. Coyle, Philadelphia Company, and Sherman Massingnam.

The tentative program calls for the attendance of Chancellor Bowman, Coach Jock Sutherland and the entire Pitt team, also Principal Harry S. Winner, Coach Mazeski and the South Hills team, local scholastic champions.

This year the Chamber will award new trophies, as Pitt was awarded the previous trophy, having won it three times while Westinghouse High also was awarded the high school trophy, on account of three victories.

An additional feature will be the awards of the handsome City of Pittsburgh trophy to the Pitt team, John S. Herron, president of City Council, will represent the city.

DUQUESNE SETS '32 SCHEDULE

Elmer F. Layden, head football coach and director of athletics at Duquesne University, has announced the football schedule for 1932. Outstanding games on the Duke card for next season include renewed relations with Washington and Jefferson College, games with Pitt, West Virginia University, and West Virginia Wesleyan. One is pending with Georgetown University.

The Dukes probably will card a September 16 attraction as the Forbes Field season opener, under the floodlights, but nothing definite is available yet.

Present plans call for five night games, but a game September 16 will make six out of a probable 10 games nocturnal affairs. If scheduled, Georgetown probably will come here October 28. The 1932 schedule:

September 16—Open. September 23—West Virginia University (night), Forbes Field. September 30—Grove City College (night), Forbes Field. October 8—University of Pittsburgh, Pitt Stadium. October 14—Open. October 21—Detroit (night), Forbes Field. October 21—West Virginia Wesleyan (night), Forbes Field. October 28—Georgetown University (pending—night), Forbes Field. November 5—Washington and Jefferson, Forbes Field. November 11—South Dakota State (Armistice Day), Forbes Field. November 16—Catholic University at Washington, D. C.

The battle was marked by spirited fighting, especially in the second and ninth sessions when McHale was floored for counts of eight. In the ninth, Marty went down after taking a terrific right to the stomach, but the eight-second rest gave him a chance to recover sufficiently to finish the bout in good shape.

TEDDY WELCH LOSES

Teddy Welch, McKeesport veteran, lost the decision to Jimmy Vaughn, of St. Michaels, Pa., in the eight-round semi-final, after taking an early lead and allowing it to slip away from him in the late rounds. In the sixth, Teddy went down for a count of eight after Vaughn had backed him into a corner with a two-fisted attack to the head. Welch weighed 149¾, against 150 for Vaughn.

Joey Bazzone, McKeesport Italian, knocked out Joe Stucky, of St. Michaels, after one minute of fighting in the second round. He weighed 140½ against 142 for Stucky.

LOSTETTER STOPPED

Andy Kosel, of Turtle Creek, weighing 121, knocked out Young Lostetter, of McKeesport, 122, after two minutes and 10 seconds of fighting in the fifth round.

Jock Simco and Freddie Lux, of McKeesport, acted as judges, while Jack Henderson was the referee. Max Zeugschmidt was timer and Harry Klaas the announcer.

JILES, NOTED ARCHER, DIES

Funeral services for James S. Jiles, former National archery champion, who died Wednesday in his home in 316 McCully street, Mt. Lebanon, are to be held from his late residence tonight at 8 o'clock. Interment is to be private, tomorrow morning.

Aside from copping the National crown in 1924, he was runner-up in the same competition five times, in 1916, 1919, 1920, 1921, 1922 and 1923.

Jiles also was interested in golf and baseball, and in a unique match several years ago, over the Brackenridge Heights Country Club links, Jiles, the archer, defeated Ben Loeffler, professional golfer, and Honus Wagner, batting a baseball. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Nellie Vetter Jiles.

McKeesport and Washington High schools, two of the schools which finished among the leaders in the Class A division of the W. P. I. A. L. football championship during the season recently concluded, boast two of the most active alumni bodies in Western Pennsylvania scholastic circles.

Bill Sullivan

The Monogram Club, composed of lettermen of McKeesport High School teams of the past and present, formed a permanent organization following the banquet it tendered Bill Sullivan's football team in the Penn-McKee Hotel in McKeesport Wednesday evening.

E. P. Junker, Jr., was elected president; Bill Falkstein, vice president; Bernard Friedman, treasurer; Dr. A. H. Hartman, financial secretary, and Cornelius Sibley, recording secretary.

HONOR ATHLETES

It is the intention of the Monogram Club to honor all McKeesport High School teams in the future.

This organization has started a movement to have Bill Sullivan retained as head football coach. Sullivan's contract at McKeesport expired on December 1 and the school board will not take any action until May. Sullivan enjoyed unusual success with the Tubers during the past season, the team winning its first eight games, losing the final one to Clairton, which won the W. P. I. A. L. title.

SCHEDULE ARRANGED

September 23—Open.
October 1—Homestead, home.
October 8—Braddock, away.
October 15—New Kensington, away.
October 29—Uniontown, home.
November 12—Open.
November 19—Open.
November 24—Clairton, home.

Washington, like McKeesport, has a wide-awake alumni body which keeps in accurate touch with all activities of the Little Presidents in the sports realm. Every social function tendered the Day-coached team invariably finds a number of the old Washington athletes among the guests. The old grads were among the staunchest supporters of the undefeated football team during the past season.

Oliver High beat its faculty, 29 to 26; Homestead downed Braddock, 26 to 23; Leetsdale won from Ben Avon, 35-10; Arnold tripped Oakmont, 35-21, and Elizabeth bumped Monongahela, 20-10, in yesterday's games.

School Notes

Owing to the fact that all Class AA members must play at least four opponents in their own division, Jeannette has been forced to drop four games from the football card. West Newton, Hurst, Mt. Lebanon and Ford City have been displaced. Wilkinsburg and Scottdale will be met by Coach Art Dahl's gridders next fall.

George Woodman, whose Clairton High team won the Class A football championship of the W. P. I. A. L., takes his floor machine to Franklin tonight. Tomorrow night, Oil City will be next in that city. Woodman formerly coached at Oil City. Mike Kalcevich has been elected captain of the 1932 football team.

Scott High, state interscholastic basketball champion, begins a two-day tour tonight when it opposes Phil Bridenbaugh's New Castle team at New Castle. Tomorrow night the Scott passers meet Erie Academy in Erie.

Greensburg High, a member of the Class AA Conference, has booked five opponents playing under this rating. They are Norwin, Clairton, Wilkinsburg, Monessen and Jeannette.

CURTAIN CALL FOR A TACKLE

of all the games in which he took part he figured the toughest.

"That's easy," Jim replied. "It was the Wash-Jeff game of 1928, which we won 12-6. Wow! I played half of that ball game, against McMunn and Walter Levine, with Jap Douds in the backfield and hitting me first on all their tackle plays. That was the toughest afternoon I ever put in."

Then I asked him who, in his opinion, was the greatest all-around player he ever saw. His answer was without hesitation:

"Cliff Battles, and how!"

GETS THRILL OUT OF INDIANS

O'Donnell got his big thrill out of beating the Haskell Indians here in 1929, when Sammy Pratt stole a forward pass out of the very hands of a Haskell halfback and raced over for a touchdown in the closing minutes of the game. He thinks the 1930 team was the best Duke team in his four years on the Bluff, that Babe Kelleher was the most valuable lineman and Kass Kovalcheck the best backfield man.

Jim can graduate in February if he desires, but may stay on until June and take some extra work. He's a very popular man at Duquesne, is Jim O'Donnell, and the school loses a swell feller when he goes.

Thanks, Jimmy, ol' boy, for the bow. You had it coming a long time.

AKRON BUMPS Y.M.H.A. FIVE

Akron bumped the Y. M. H. A., 43 to 25, in a National Industrial League court encounter on the Y. M. H. A. floor last night. In a preliminary, Y. M. H. A. Reserves won from the Monessen Eagles, 35 to 24.

Jeanette defeated Uniontown, 38 to 28, in the Tri-County League; B. and O. bested St. John's, 11 to 10, in the Metropolitan loop; the Goslins whipped the Foresters, 40 to 17, and the Morrys won from the Schneiders, 29 to 27, in West Penn circuit contests; and Cleaning topped Ferris, 27 to 24, in the Schneider League.

Equitable tripped Union, the Kibbies beat the Crescents, Downtown Y. B. toppled the Rynaes, Holy Trinity won from the Goslin Reserves, and Question Mark topped Sheridan, in independent games.

Rotarians Banquet Carnegie High Team

The Carnegie High School football team was honored at a joint father-son and high school banquet given by the Rotary Club of that town in the Carnegie Presbyterian Church last night. Mike Medwig, fullback, was elected captain of the team for 1932.

Dr. Howard H. Wilson, chairman of the boys' work committee of the Rotary Club, was toastmaster. Among the speakers were J. M. Scott, president of the Rotary Club; Chester L. Smith, Fred Landucci, George Stewart, Charles Neber, Clarence B. Nickson, who presented the Edward Cole trophy to Carnegie as winner of the annual game with Crafton; the most valuable player trophy to Homer Fry, Abe Perilman, Mike Ferrare, Paul Abele and Joe Bach, of Duquesne University; Arthur Adams, athletic director; Coach Dick Schumaker, Bob Chidlow, assistant coach; Frank Pierkarski, former all-America star at Penn; Principal R. E. Kannar, Superintendent of Schools Norman L. Glasser, and Julius Levin, of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

LOCAL BOY HONORED

WAYNE, Pa., Dec. 18.—Cadet Lieut. James M. Swaney, senior son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Swaney of 811 Main street, Pittsburgh, has been unanimously elected captain of the 1932 Valley Forge Military Academy football team. He also is catcher on the varsity baseball team, plays guard on the basketball squad, and is a member of the light-heavyweight division of the boxing team. It is Swaney's second year at Valley Forge.

The Morrys meet the Ray E. Schneiders in the preliminary contest. The last-named game is a West Penn League contest.

JOHNNY SIGNS TO PLAY FOR SHANNON

By TOM BIRKS

After an absence of 10 years, playing in the American Professional League, Johnny Jaap, the greatest soccer star ever developed in Western Pennsylvania, has returned again. Jaap signed a professional form with the Castle Shannon Morrys, and will play with that club in its Keystone League games through the balance of the season. It has been announced by Manager Nick Peckovitch, of Castle Shannon.

Ten years ago Bill Lewis, business manager of the Bethlehem Steel team of the American League, came here seeking a center forward to fill the shoes of Harold Britten, classed at that time as the greatest center forward in the country, who had been signed at a record salary by an English club.

RETURNS TO SCOTLAND

The Bethlehem scout came to look over a Homestead Steel player. The writer of this column told Lewis Jaap was the best-lookii ; prospect in America, and finally Jaap went to Bethlehem. Britten later returned to the club, and Jaap was played at outside right, and probably was the greatest in the professional loop.

When the steel team disbanded Jaap, who is Scotch by birth, returned to his native land, but came back to these shores last season and signed with the Newark, N. J., team. However, salary troubles developed and Jaap headed for Pittsburgh last week. Manager Peckovitch made a smart move in signing the popular little player. He will be a member of the foreign-born team in an international game against the American-born soccer team on Christmas Day at South Park.

The West Penn Football Association cup committee last night set the draw for the semi-final rounds of the senior and junior cup. In the senior, Morgan meets the Morrys, of Castle Shannon, at South Park on Sunday, January 3. On New Year's Day, Union Switch and Signal meets Clan Douglas, with Oliver High School Field as the probable venue for the game.

TEAMS SELECTED

In the junior, Primrose meets the winner of the Castle Shannon-Shannon Owls game, and the other semi-final brings together Moon Run and Heidelberg, January 17 and 31 are the dates for these battles, both to be played at South Park.

The West Penn Football Association has selected the teams for the international match Christmas Day. The American team follows:

Henderson, Calvin, J. Brown, Union Switch; Paton, Morrys; Dunn, Union Switch; Heasman, German Sport; Williamson, Clan Douglas; Kira, Curry; McNair, Morgan; Fairley, Owls; Jaap, Morrys; Clough, Union Switch; Fisher, Union Switch; Singer, Bridgeville.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

STOCK MARKET MAKES BRISK UPSWING

Rail Securities Assume Leading Role in Rally; Many Gain 2 to 5 Points

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—A sudden reversal in the securities markets gave Wall street a foretaste of holiday cheer today.

A report that important banking interests had placed bids in the bond market to prevent further wide breaks it fears which they have sponsored and that formation of a pool had been considered, generated a brisk recovery in the investment market which quickly spread to stocks.

Railroad securities were prominent in the upturn. In stocks Delaware and Hudson shot up more than 10 points. Auburn gained about as much. Miscellaneous issues up 2 to 5 included United States Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Woolworth, National Biscuit, Corn Products, Allied Chemical, New York Central, Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, American Tobacco B, Union Pacific and many others. Bank stocks and other issues traded over the counter also turned upward.

Wall street was watching intently the meeting of railroad executives at the Biltmore Hotel to discuss the appointment of a committee empowered to negotiate to a conclusion" the wage controversy. Railroad quarters have been increasingly hopeful of late that a 10 per cent temporary wage reduction might be agreed upon. Some important banking interests understood to be considering taking a stand in the bond market were said to be withholding a definite decision pending the outcome of the railway negotiations.

The recent action of the bond market had been particularly unsettling to Wall street. Bankers pointed out that the mechanics of the market had failed to function normally in view of the large volume of liquidation reflecting tax selling, selling out of loan collateral and year-end reduction of investment accounts at a time when the investing public was definitely on the sidelines. As a result offerings found virtually no bids under the market in many issues, and resulted in extraordinary price declines.

Of particular interest in the day's news was the testimony of Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co. before the Senate Finance Committee, in which he scotched exaggerated reports concerning the German credits extended by large banks. He pointed to the wide distribution of these credits, and the fact that they constitute but a small fraction of the businesses of the participating institutions.

COPPER SCARCE AT 7¼ CENTS

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Copper buying is good on foreign account. Export sales yesterday were 11,000,000 pounds and in the forenoon today amounted to 5,000,000 pounds at the new price.

A fair amount of inquiry is making the rounds in the domestic market. Producers are willing to sell at 7¼c delivered, but custom smelters, due to the large size of foreign sales, are not anxious to sell at 7¼c here. Various finished products have advanced also.

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Copper Exporters, Inc., has advanced the price of copper abroad to the equivalent of 7½ cents c. i. f. Hamburg, Havre and London from 7 cents a pound to the equivalent of 7¾ cents delivered in the domestic market.

MARKET GIVES NEW VALUE TO INDUSTRY

Recapitalizing Directed By Spirit of Pessimism; Scientific Methods Needed

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—In a sense, the stock market, directed by the spirit of pessimism, has been recapitalizing American industry.

Not only has the water been squeezed out of numerous situations, but doubtless in many cases the true assets and reasonable prospects of companies have been undervalued. The ease and speed of the decline must bear some relationship to the celerity and nonchalance with which stock prices were bid up during the bull market.

Mr. Rukeyser

The hit or miss system of valuation at the market place lays a heavy toll on the small investors and speculators. Under more ideal conditions, there ought to be a more scientific technique for evaluating securities. Unfortunately, during the boom all too many investment bankers were guided by the criterion of what was salable rather than by standards of intrinsic value.

OVERCAPITALIZATION

Overcapitalization of companies through pyramiding or through unwarranted split ups contributed to the lack of economic balance which the depression entails. Accordingly there are some who think that laissez faire or complete freedom has been overdone in the security issuing field. Regulation by states has been aimed in the past primarily at the lunatic fringe—at the issuers of fraudulent securities.

The real problem is the proper capitalization of legitimate companies. At best there can be agreement on proper canons for valuation. There can be no mechanical formula which will always prove correct, inasmuch as valuation of assets presupposes some viewpoint concerning future conditions and probabilities. If discretion is not left solely with the investment bankers, as at present, some public agency must nevertheless recognize the difference between what is provable and what is problematical.

BOARD SUGGESTED

One suggestion has been that a federal agency, similar to the war time Capital Issues Committee, be set up to pass on proposed new security offerings. A. A. Berle, Jr., associate professor of law at Columbia University, participating in a forum on the anti-trust laws, suggested that the Federal Trade Commission should be authorized to regulate industrial capital just as the Interstate Commerce Commission must pass upon railroad financing.

Even with this reform, the average investor will not be adequately protected until a program for sane capitalization is coupled with a broader platform for economic planning. The railroad investor, though protected against over-capitalization, has nevertheless suffered losses as a result of a declining net income, which is one of the effects of a chaotic and unplanned economy.

Youngstown Brokers Planning Merger

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 18.—Consolidation of the New York Stock Exchange firms of Wick & Co. and Butler, Beadling & Co. is under discussion, and an official announcement may be forthcoming shortly. Merger of the two firms would leave Youngstown with only one brokerage firm trading through memberships on the New York Stock Exchange.

Paris Unemployment Higher During Week

PARIS, Dec. 18.—Unemployment in France increased 5,864 last week to 156,970, and there were 116,176 persons on the national dole and 40,794 on the municipal dole.

Forbes

Bankers Eager to Tell About Foreign Loans

By B. C. FORBES

NEITHER THOMAS W. LAMONT, of J. P. Morgan & Co., nor Charles E. Mitchell, head of the National City Bank of New York, resents being summoned to give a Senate committee all facts concerning foreign loans handled by them here. Both told me this week:

"I think it is a good thing to have the facts—the facts—presented to the public."

Mr. Lamont is the best-qualified Morgan partner to give testimony. He has had ripe experience. Long ago he headed the Chinese consortium; he was drafted for duty by President Wilson during peace and reparations negotiations in Paris; he played a part in arranging the financing necessary to get first the Dawes Plan, and later, the Young Plan going.

Mr. Forbes

He has gained first-hand knowledge of the Orient he knows Europe almost as well as he knows his own country; for years he has represented all American bankers and bondholders in measures to effect a settlement of Mexican international debt problems.

The public probably will be sorely disappointed if they expect sensational disclosures from Lamont, Morgan & Co. as I understand it, sponsored two German loans on behalf of the German government and all other governments interested in German debt payments. They are described as equivalent to first mortgages bonds on Germany. Although, like everything else, they have dropped badly in market value, Morgan & Co. call these bonds "perfectly good."

CHARLIE MITCHELL'S bank and its security affiliate have participated in various foreign flotations. He resents implications that loans were granted Germany principally to enable her to build theaters, stadiums, public parks and other non-essentials.

He told me not long ago, before he was summoned to appear at Washington—that the bulk of their German financing was for strictly productive purposes and that a large part of the obligations was designed to be self-liquidating.

WALL STREET takes the attitude that, if there was a lot of unwise lending through bond issues to Europeans, Washington was jointly responsible, because no foreign issues, it is explained, have been floated here without being first submitted to Washington for an O. K.

THESE FACTS are refreshing at this time when so many people are wallowing—many seem to be reveling—in gloom.

More people have been attracted to Chevrolet dealers by the new models this year than ever, in 1929, when the six was first introduced. The crowds not only looked but bought. Demand was especially notable from Atlantic seaboard and North Central states, orders being ahead of last year's.

In certain sections current demand cannot be met. Full production, I am authoritatively informed, will be required throughout not only this month but January to take care of the banked-up orders plus the additional ones booked from day to day.

VARIOUS MOTOR plants are taking on additional men. Apparently the lowest-priced makes are not the only ones selling, for Cadillac announces an increase in its force and, says one dispatch, "Is now operating on a normal payroll of approximately 6,000 employes, which probably will be maintained throughout the winter months, according to President L. P. Fisher."

IF 70 PER CENT of the total shares of a company can be sold short under "restricted" short-selling, what might the percentage be were short-selling not "restricted?" How the dumping of 30,000 or 50,000 shares of one stock in one day by people not owning these shares can be construed as a "stabilizing" influence during these depressed days, is beyond the reasoning powers of ordinary mortals.

Minimum prices were fixed once before by the New York Stock Exchange. Is it not about time to do so again? Too many people are in danger of being wiped out.

Golf Using Cash to Buy Additional Properties

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

GULF OIL CORPORATION is using its cash resources to buy up oil properties at bargain prices. This explanation of the omission of the dividend was given by one official yesterday. He declared that the omission of the dividend was a difficult step to take but predicted that it was the most desirable policy for the stockholders from a long range view point.

On Saturday this column pointed out that Gulf's large surplus, accumulated through years of big profits and small dividends, was represented by new oil wells, new pipe lines, new refineries and new distributing units and not by cash. It is now shown that Gulf is not merely completing expansion started in the past year. It is taking advantage of the demoralized condition of the industry and is picking up distress properties which will be shown to be of immense value in the future when oil comes to the end of its condition of over production.

The purchases being made by Gulf are not confined to any particular phase of the oil industry. They are in the distributing as well as the producing end of the business. Every acquisition is being made from the consideration, not of immediate return, but of the future.

Annual Dividends $6,787,831

THE ANNUAL DIVIDEND requirements on 4,525,221 shares of Gulf Oil capital stock outstanding amounted to $6,787,831 at the rate of $1.50 a share which was discontinued at the last meeting of the directors.

The directors felt that it would be more advantageous to take advantage of the bargains in properties available at present than to pay this money out to stockholders during 1932. The policy of Gulf Oil during its entire existence has been to consider the development of the organization as a matter of greater importance than current dividend payments.

Earnings Uncertain

NO ESTIMATE OF THE RESULTS of Gulf Oil for the present year can be made at this time. Gulf's activities extend to many parts of the world. Individual reports must be secured from Mexico, Venezuela, various parts of Europe and the Far East. Until results of these distant points are known, earnings cannot be predicted with any degree of accuracy. It is generally believed, however, that profits will be smaller than dividends paid for the year.

The possibility that year-end write offs may also be necessary injects another element of doubt into the picture. If these should be large they might entirely offset the operating profits.

Gulf earned $10,649,334 in 1930. This was equivalent to $2.35 a share. In the previous year net profit was $44,524,796 or $9.83 a share, the high record point in the organization's history.

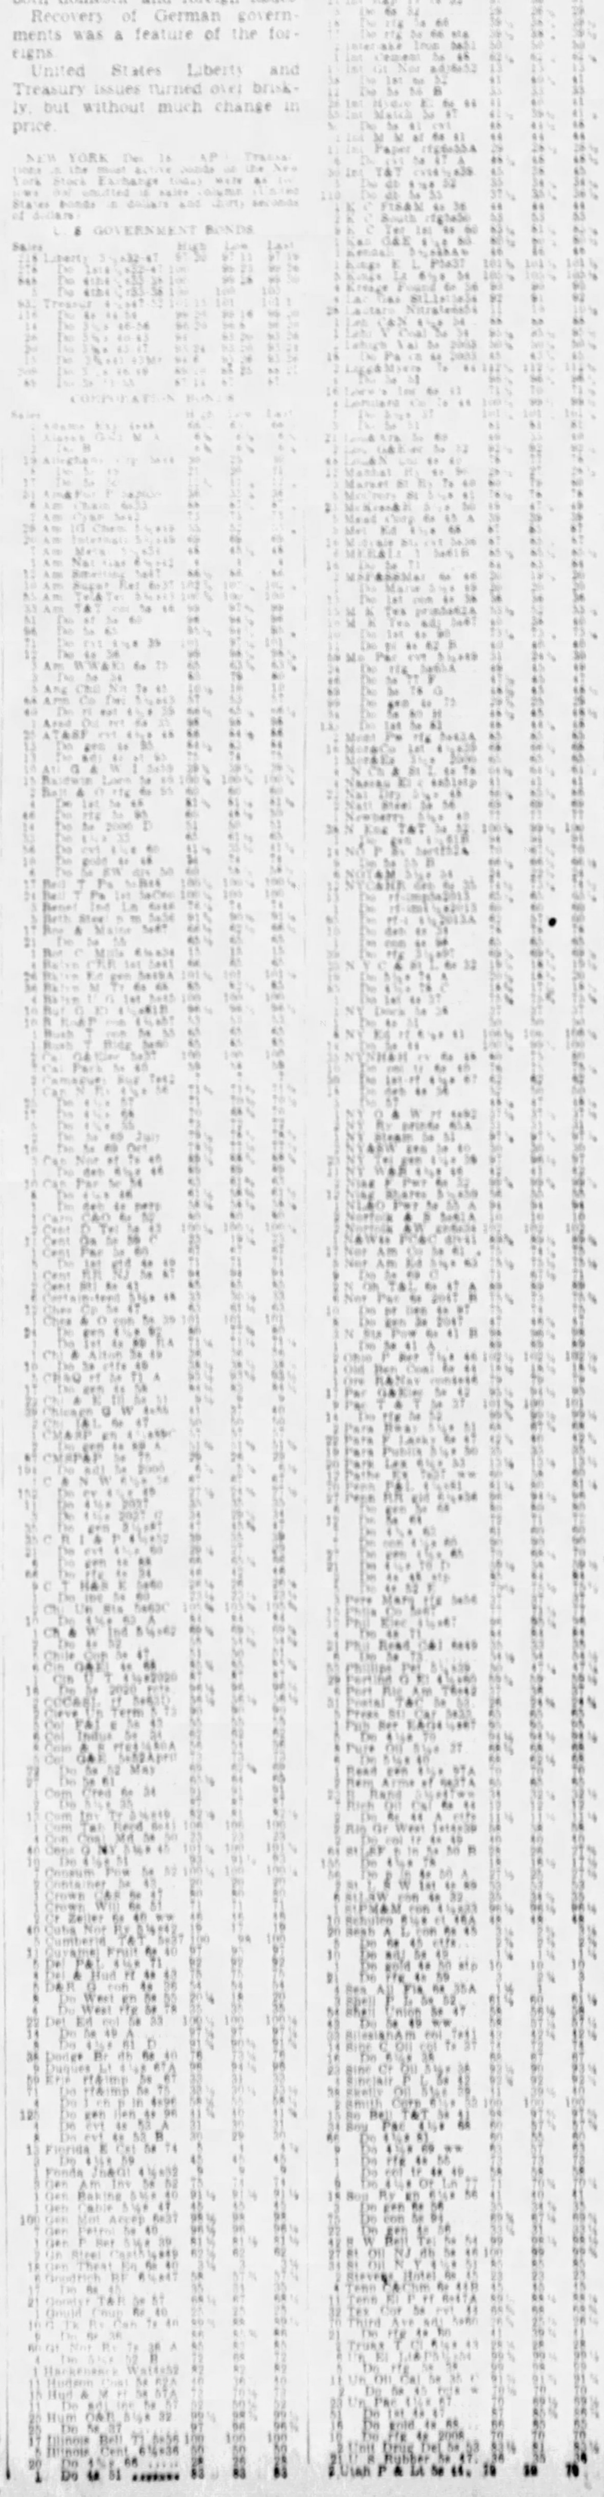
Earnings in the six years ended with 1930 averaged $6.54 a share while the company paid annual dividends of only $1.50 a share during this period.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—A considerably better tone appeared in the bond market today, affecting both domestic and foreign issues.

Recovery of German governments was a feature of the foreigns.

United States Liberty and Treasury issues turned over briskly, but without much change in price.



Holders to Vote On Triplex Sale

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Stockholders of the Triplex Safety Glass Company will vote on January 16, on a proposed sale to the Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company of its entire flat glass and laminated glass business, together with all land, buildings, machinery, patents, etc., for which it will receive 29,490 shares of Libbey common stock and cash to cover inventory. Triplex will retire 90 per cent of its preferred stock with the proceeds.

Youngstown Steel Operations Higher

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 18.—District steel plant operations now are estimated at 31 per cent of rated capacity, a gain of 5 per cent from the rate in effect at the current week's opening, and three points above the schedule in effect a week ago.

CROP VALUES OFF IN PENNA.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania farm products dropped nearly $40,000,000 in value this year to $123,795,000.

Department of Agriculture estimates based on crop reports placed that worth on 75 crops in the 1931 harvest. A year ago the value was $162,557,000, which was a reduction from the 1929 figure of $184,702,000.

Its 1931 value placed Pennsylvania twelfth in rank of the farming states, gaining one place in the general depressed price condition of the country.

RAILROAD BOND LIST RALLIES

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—The bond market continued to pick up quiet strength today, and while advances were moderate, they extended generally throughout the domestic list. Railroads staged a rally. Bonds of the St. Paul, Baltimore and Ohio, Missouri, Pacific and Frisco showed rising tendencies.

Bonds of communication companies showed strong rallying power. Investment issues of the American Telephone picked up a little strength.

POUND LOWER IN LONDON

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(INS.)—The pound sterling slumped to $3.36¾ on the London Exchange today simultaneously with a general downward movement of stocks. The price of gold rose 2 shillings 8 pence to 122 shillings, 2 pence.

The general weakness was said by market observers to be due mainly to opposition by the United States Congress to the moratorium.

Dow-Jones Steel Average Declines

The Dow-Jones average price of eight important iron and steel products, based on Iron Age quotations, declined to a new low during the past week at $43.19 a ton, Pittsburgh base, compared with $43.25 in the preceding week. A 50-cent decline in Bessemer pig iron brought about the decline.

WORLD FACING BOOM—PAISH

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(AP.)—The world is standing on the threshold of the greatest prosperity it ever has experienced—if only the necessary steps are taken—Sir George Paish, noted British economist and member of the British official mission to the United States in 1914, said today in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press.

Three of the chief recommendations made by the noted economist, are:

1. Federal and state temporary bank guaranty acts?
2. An international conference at which every nation would be ready to make contributions to world recovery.
3. Revision of reparations payments to insure eventual repayment of Germany's commercial debt, which he estimates $2,250,000,000.

It is possible, he said, to revive trade immediately to a marked degree and to banish the fear complex now besetting the nations.

Sir George recently affirmed his belief that a world breakdown is approaching, not more than two months away, and he made today's statements while reiterating this warning. If the necessary revival measures are not taken, he said, the breakdown will force them upon the world.

Merry Christmas, OFFICER!

WILL he smile when you drive up, beckon him over and hand him a box of Marsh? We'll say so. Because he sees hundreds of prominent men—big guns, he calls them—drive past each day puffing Marsh Stogies. That proves to him they're good.

And the New Christmas Packages of 25 and 50 stogies surely make them look the part.

Young Pair Spends Lavishly To Keep Pace With Richer Friends

safe. I keep him too busy. He's so occupied wondering what I'm going to do next that he doesn't know another woman exists."

"How nice" remarked Della lightly, "for you. Wish I could say as much for Mort."

There was a little silence. Fluff rose and drifted away, small and rounded in her painted chiffons. Frances commented across Nevis' head to Della: "So you've heard it, too?"

"What?" asked Della, cautiously.

"Don't be so innocent, dear. It isn't your type." Brown eyes smiled into gray. Frances said: "I haven't been home long but I've heard. She's in the Follies, isn't she?"

RADIO MISSING

"She was. Well, as long as it doesn't get to Fluff."

"I won't enlighten her," said Frances, "that's not my business. If it were—enlightening, I mean—I wouldn't have time to do anything else. I'd be running around from tea table to tea table yapping. 'My dear, don't tell me you haven't heard about your husband!' No, thanks! By the way, Della, I've heard of a miraculous woman here in town, takes pounds off you. Two hundred and fifty for a course of treatments, but it's worth it. She's made a fortune in Hollywood, now she's come to New York to make another."

Bill wandered in with Les Waterford, Sam and the other men.

Someone said something about a radio.

"What, no radio?" asked Peter Waterford. "This will never do. Now, our radio——"

There was a discussion of radios.

"I'll get one tomorrow," promised Bill gayly.

He called to Nevis: "Nevis, did you realize no one gave us a radio? Darned oversight. I call it. We'll have to get married again or something."

Someone put a record on the phonograph. Someone kicked aside the new rugs. Waterford asked: "How about it, Nevis?"

Presently they were all dancing, stumbling over one another, bumping, laughing. Someone said, "Lord, I'm ruined," and fell on the couch clasping a masculine black silk ankle marked with the print of a French heel.

"Let's go out," suggested Dirk Carlyle, "where there's more room and no wedding presents to worry about."

At 5 o'clock, Monday morning, Bill and Nevis re-entered their apartment. Bill was yawning. He was very sleepy. He had had too much to drink but it had worn off, leaving him flat and drowsy. Nevis said in consternation: "What a mess!"

Her young prettiness triumphed over fatigue. She was pale, but bravely buoyant, dark eyes heavy lidded but bright, red mouth curving. She had been humming under her breath as she came in. Now she stopped and shook her curly head.

Glasses all over the place. A smell of stale smoke and claret butts. Rim marks on the new furniture. The rugs kicked aside just as they had left them when after a wild scramble for wraps and belongings they had streamed out of the apartment, laughing, talking. "I know an all-night place." "You can dance at the Catty-Corner Club." "Let's go to Louis'."

In the end they had gone to all three.

Nevis said, wandering out into the wild confusion of the kitchenette: "I'll never get it cleaned up."

"Come on to bed," urged Bill, bulking largely in the doorway. "Get a woman in in the morning. I'm half dead and Sam and I are having lunch with Crab and his father. I'm to put over the well-known personality and sell a flock of bonds. I must have my sleep," said Bill, yawning widely. "Step on it, Infant."

SPENDING NECESSARY

He didn't sell his bonds that day. But he did the next and the next. Sam's father said: "He's a comer," and Sam who had been his roommate at college, grinning, remarked: "I told you so. He's got a smile like Maurice Chevalier. I tell you the lad's good."

Easy work, thought Bill, coming home nights. Lunches, golf games, dinners give and take and then: "By the way, Mr. Morris, have you heard about the new issue our house is offering?"

He explained his method to Nevis.

"But isn't it awfully expensive?" she wanted to know.

"Well, no, not really. I've an expense account. Of course, I have to join the clubs. Sam's getting me into the golf club down at Westlynne next week. But it all comes back to you in the end. You have to feed 'em and set up the regular, but that's good business."

Good business, too, to go everywhere, to see everyone, to entertain and be entertained.

The Saturday following the housewarming they went down to the Hunt's Queen Anne "cottage" at Westlynne for the party. It started Saturday afternoon. Sam motored them in after breakfast Sunday morning. Bill said, sprawling back against the upholstery, his arm about Nevis as they sat in the front seat: "I'll have to get a car, I suppose."

CHATS WITH OLIVE

It had been a good party. Plenty to eat, plenty to drink, dancing, a table for poker, several for bridge. Olive Blanchard had been there: a tall, slim girl, with a very severe hair cut. Great pink pearls in her ears; a casual gown, worth its weight in gold; a pointed chin and great pansy-colored eyes under the sleek rusty red hair. "It used to be mouse brown, my dear, and one year she had it canary color. But I must say she's turned the trick this time."

Olive was 26. She said to Bill in her deep, slow voice: "Old enough to be your grandmother. By the way, where have you been——?"

He said: "For goodness sake don't say 'all my life'."

"I wasn't going to. I was about to ask, where have you been for the last couple of years?"

"Getting an education, of sorts."

"Does that include marriage?" inquired Olive. . . .

Now he remembered, driving home through a pearl-pure morning. He laughed, remembering.

"That Blanchard woman——" he said, chuckling.

"Where do you get that baby stuff?" demanded Bill, in an outraging roar.

"She's about a thousand years old," said Sam. "Bill, do you remember our Junior, the time I wanted to commit suicide and ordered you to permit me to throw myself under a milk train one very early morning?"

"I'll say I do, you old fool."

That was Olive. It was right after the Christmas holidays, and, laugh this one off, I had asked her to wait for me! She said, 'Certainly, Sam darling, but you don't mind what I do while I'm waiting, do you?' And then she wandered away. It was at a dance down at the Carlyles', by the way, and told every blasted soul in the room. 'Sam asked me to wait for him,' she told 'em. 'Isn't that too quaint?' I wanted to murder her. She's been engaged," he added chuckling, while Bill and Nevis laughed, "to every eligible man she ever met, over thirty, in New York, Chicago, San Francisco and on the Continent, with, I think, Atlanta and Philadelphia thrown in. To three at a time. How she got away with it, God knows. I don't. But she's a liberal education. Correspondence course.

"Why hasn't she married one or two of 'em?" asked Nevis.

"Don't ask me. Ask her. She's looking for her mate or something. She's very keen on the mate business just now. She has fits and starts. Once, she did welfare work. Then she went in for polo and tailored effects. That caused something of a riot. Then she tried to get into the movies but she doesn't photograph well. Then she had a spell of being grande dame, whatever that is. Some people call her something less complimentary," said Sam. "Ooops," he warned as they went over a bad piece of road, "hold everything!"

During that autumn Bill and Nevis went often to the Hunts' and to the Carlyle's. Les and Fluff Waterford were building a "little place" in Westlynne also, six acres of ground and the stables which were Lester's latest public fancy and a "French peasant" house which, Bill remarked, no French peasant would ever recognize without a guide book. They met others of the small colony, and Bill, joining the golf club, played there late into the fall. Someone would motor Nevis down to join him, and they'd go to somebody else's house for supper and to dance. Nevis had given up her domestic ambitions. The [illegible], a part-time person, efficient and slightly disapproving, was installed. There wasn't time, Nevis explained in a letter home, to do the housework and keep up with Bill!

What worried her most was entertaining. You couldn't go on indefinitely accepting things from people. She tried, in November, to count up all the meals she'd eaten. "If laid end to end——" she remarked to Bill.

You couldn't entertain in the flat, except small groups now and then. She and Bill gave one inclusive dinner dance at the club before it closed. It had cost them plenty. In New York, of course, there remained the speakeasies. There was one on Park avenue which didn't call itself that. They tried getting the crowd together there. "Holy jumping Joseph!" said Bill, regarding the check. But he said it silently.

He was making money—was taking a flier on the market now and then on tips from Waterford and others. As yet he hadn't lost. But their expenses kept pace in an alarming fashion.

They motored, 14 of them, to New Haven for one of the games that fall. Bill and Sam were the hosts. Joining the party, in New Haven, were half a dozen undergraduates and their girls. Les and Fluff, the Hunts, the Carlyles, Olive Blanchard, an odd man or two and some girls constituted the rest. They had a perfectly stupendous time. But Bill said, as they followed the crowd out of the Bowl: "Funny how quickly you get away from it, isn't it? I feel about 18 years older than these kids."

Nevis said, her eyes shining: "I don't. But it was funny—not seeing you down there—in the mud."

Bill answered, grinning, a little rueful, more than a little nostalgic: "It would be funnier if you had seen me. I'm getting fat and the old wind isn't what it used to be."

"Chick Maynard," commented Nevis, speaking of the quarterback. "Is he meeting us afterward? He played a marvelous game, Bill."

"Hey, don't go falling for a football hero!" warned Bill, in mock anxiety.

"I did it once," she reminded him, laughing.

He squeezed her arm. The field they were leaving was still a riot of noise, color, music, howling maniacs. The crowd pressed thick about them, they held one another closely. Sam, looking over his shoulder, yelled: "Hey, step on it, you two, we'll never get to the cars."

Bill hurried Nevis along, thinking. He was remembering . . . freshman days . . . the grand, disorderly, idiotic good times . . . the night they had wrecked a Boston theater after a Yale-Harvard game, played at Cambridge. He was remembering the feel of the dirt under his feet . . . the grunt, when the wind was knocked out of him . . . the very set of his own jaw . . . remembering the frantic shrieks from the onlookers, the voices of the coaches . . . the white figures of the referees. Remembering Tap Day and the Fence and his own empty, almost panicky sensation when a hand touched him on the shoulder.

Pretty far off, somehow, all that.

The winter went by very quickly. Lots to do and see. Theaters, shops, bridge parties. Nevis was a good deal with Fluff Waterford and even more with Della, square faced, brown haired, careless about her clothes, healthy, vital and entertaining. "Why not move out here?" Della would say. "It will save you all the wear and tear of getting home again after a party."

Bill was contemplating just such an action. He discussed it with Nevis: "We could save something by entertaining at home if we had a bigger place and, after all, most of the crowd lives out there, that way. If not in Westlynne then in Glen Cove or Oyster Bay. I think it's a hot scheme. I was talking to the agent here the other day. He says we'd have no trouble sub-letting. Half of the apartments in this building are owned, cooperative, you know. There's a premium on the other half. Everyone's looking for places just this size."

"They're crazy!" commented Nevis. She looked discontentedly about the little apartment which had seemed so exactly right not many months before.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Tomorrow is the day set for the Christmas meetings of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club chapters. The children of Lawrenceville will go to the Arsenal Theater; members in Homewood will attend the meeting at the Belmar; East Liberty boys and girls, at the Cameraphone or Enright; members who live in Etna will go to the Etna Harris; West End, South Side and Hill district children will meet at the Harris Theater (Diamond street); the meeting for the North Side will be held at the Kenyon Theater; for Squirrel Hill at the Manor; Mt. Oliver at the Mt. Oliver Harris; Dormont at the South Hills Theater; Bloomfield at the Plaza Wilkinsburg at the Rowland, Oakland at the Schenley.

Out-of-town meetings will be held at the Prince Theater, Ambridge; the Memorial Theater, McKeesport, and the State Theater, Washington. Special Christmas programs have been arranged at all meetings.

HARRIS (DIAMOND STREET)

There will be great fun at the Harris (Diamond street) Chapter meeting tomorrow. One of the big features of the day will be a harmonica contest. Any boy or girl in the club may enter the contest and, from the number of applications received, it looks as if half the members are practicing their numbers. The prizes are worth working for, so don't be backward.

As a special Christmas treat, Manager Pearce has arranged, through the courtesy of the Sportolari Ice Cream Company, to give every boy and girl who comes to the meeting a big ice cream bar. There will be other surprises so, if you belong to Harris Chapter, be on hand early. If you don't belong, come anyway. You can join tomorrow, get your membership card and button and enjoy all the privileges of the club.

HARRIS (ETNA)

As a special holiday attraction, Manager Henderson, of the Harris Theater, Etna, has arranged for the appearance at the Junior Komic Club meeting tomorrow of Vero, the magician. Vero is said to be a most sensational novelty act. Not only does this wonder-worker keep his audiences spellbound with his tricks, but he keeps them laughing all the time. Christmas is a time to laugh—and tomorrow will be the Christmas party. There will also be a Barrel of Fun and contests with prizes for the winners.

There is not room to give you the attractions at all the theaters tomorrow, but, take it from the supreme grand jester, it's going to be a great day for the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club!

MR. STONEHURST, I'M AFRAID I HAVE DECEIVED YOU! WHEN I ASKED YOU TO SHOW ME HOW YOU COULD CONTROL A CERTAIN STOCK, IT WASN'T BECAUSE I DIDN'T KNOW HOW IT WAS DONE!
WHY, WHAT DO YOU MEAN, MISS CINDERS?
I ASKED YOU TO SEND ALASKA FISHERIES SKY HIGH NOT BECAUSE I WANTED TO WATCH IT CLIMB BUT BECAUSE I WANTED TO HELP A FRIEND WHO HAD SOME OF THE STOCK!
YOU SEE, HIS MOTHER IS AN INVALID, AND HE'S BEEN TRYING TO RAISE MONEY TO PAY FOR AN OPERATION! HE HAD PLUNGED HEAVILY ON ALASKA FISHERIES --- EVERYTHING HE HAD WAS IN THAT STOCK! I COULDN'T BEAR TO HAVE HIM LOSE, SO I TRICKED YOU INTO SENDING THE STOCK TO A NEW HIGH!
CAN YOU EVER FORGIVE ME?
WELL, I DON'T KNOW! BUT PERHAPS THE MILLION AND A HALF THAT I MADE BY SENDING THAT STOCK UP CAN PARTIALLY SOOTHE MY PAINS!

MY STARS GEORGE, WHY ARE YOU SO IN THE DUMPS THIS EVENING? I'D SUPPOSE ANYONE GETTING A TREMENDOUS AMOUNT LIKE $1000 A MONTH JUST TO LOOK OUT THE WINDOW OF A BIG OFFICE BUILDING WOULD BE ALL SMILES.
WELL I'VE BEEN THINKING, ABOUT THAT SALARY. LETS NOT FORGET THERE'S TWO SIDES TO EVERYTHING
WHY GEORGE BUNGLE, DON'T TELL ME YOU'D EVEN DREAM OF SAYING THAT WASN'T TOO MUCH SALARY FOR YOU ABOVE ALL OTHERS TO GET!
I'LL ANSWER THAT QUESTION WHEN I FIND OUT WHAT THE OTHER MAN ON MY JOB GOT. WHAT A FINE FIX I'D BE IN IF I'M WORKING FOR SAY HALF—OR MAYBE ONE THIRD, OF THE REGULAR PRICE.
IMAGINE! WHAT DO YOU CARE WHAT THE OTHER MAN GOT? YOU KNOW VERY WELL YOU'RE GETTING MUCH TOO MUCH AND—
I'M NO PRICE-CUTTER, ESPECIALLY IN WAGES. I DON'T SAY I'VE BEEN HOOKED, BUT ON THE OTHER HAND I'M FORCED TO ADMIT THAT I GRABBED THEIR FIRST OFFER, WHICH MAY HAVE BEEN JUST A TICKLER.
WHAT A LIFE! $1000! NO ONE ELSE IN THIS WIDE WORLD UNDERSTANDS HOW YOU GOT THAT MUCH, AND YOU CAN'T UNDERSTAND WHY YOU DIDN'T GET MORE. IMAGINE!
I'M NOT COMPLAINING. I'M MERELY LOOKING FACTS IN THE FACE. WELL ANYHOW I'M NOT TIED UP WITH A CONTRACT. THEY OVERLOOKED THAT. THEY WERE PROBABLY MORE EXCITED THAN I WAS WHEN I ACCEPTED THAT $1000 OFFER IN SUCH AN OFF-HAND WAY.

WITH MISTER FRISBY IN FAR OFF CHINA

MANCHURIA.—Today I send greetings! and a word of advice to the dear ladies of this and other countries. I have a painful duty to perform—a chore I would rather postpone until after the Christmas holidays. But, heartbreak or no heartbreak, I must ask the women of all nations not to congregate in front of my headquarters to render homage to the Personality Congressman who is here to study and rest. I realize that your White Cousin must expect these tributes. But picture to yourself, using India ink and a good grade of white paper, how hard it is for me to work with these interruptions, pleasant as they may be. I am often forced to hide in the front yard where no prying eye may find me. Ladies—use discretion here in Far Off China where East is West.

10,000 Election Frauds

There Is Need for Exemplary Punishment to Save Democratic Government From Destruction.

Judge James H. Gray told the Minor Judiciary Association of Western Pennsylvania that there were 10,000 cases of cheating in the recent elections in Allegheny County. Because they are so numerous, he added, it will be possible to prosecute none but the most flagrant cases.

It is doubtful if there is anything else in the criminal situation that is more serious than this. We have many grave problems in racketeering, bombings, gang murders and grafting by public officials; but the harm that such crimes inflict on the body politic is rather superficial as compared with the evil wrought by election cheating, which strikes at the very heart of democratic government.

It is too bad that all the 10,000 cases of election cheating cannot be prosecuted. There is need for widespread and severe punishment to warn the crooks that cheating must stop. Nothing else will impress them.

The grand jury, under the able guidance of District Attorney Andrew T. Park, has already returned hundreds of indictments for election fraud. Let this work continue at least until all the "higher ups" have been caught.

Ability Scores

Retention of Congressman Edmund F. Erk on Foreign Affairs Committee Is a Compliment.

There are some employes in the city and county government who are so valuable because of their experience and knowledge that even under the spoils system they are kept from one administration to another. Their places are coveted for party workers or other friends of the administration in power, but it would not do to replace them because nobody else could be found to do the work properly.

Something of the same sort is disclosed in the announcement that the Democrats have retained Representative Edmund F. Erk, of Pittsburgh, a Republican and a comparatively new Congressman, as a member of the important Foreign Affairs Committee. Mr. Erk stays on the committee because of his knowledge of its duties and problems gained through his 12 years of experience as its clerk under the chairmanship of the late Representative Stephen G. Porter.

Agriculture Does Not Seem Such an Unattractive Business When Industrial Depression Sets In.

The State Department of Agriculture reports that 17,000 young people representing all sections of Pennsylvania are taking agricultural courses under the auspices of the Pennsylvania State College or the State Department of Public Instruction.

The economic situation no doubt has much to do with this great increase of interest in agriculture.

Farming does not seem such an unattractive business when industrial depression sets in and the mills shut down and it becomes difficult to get a job.

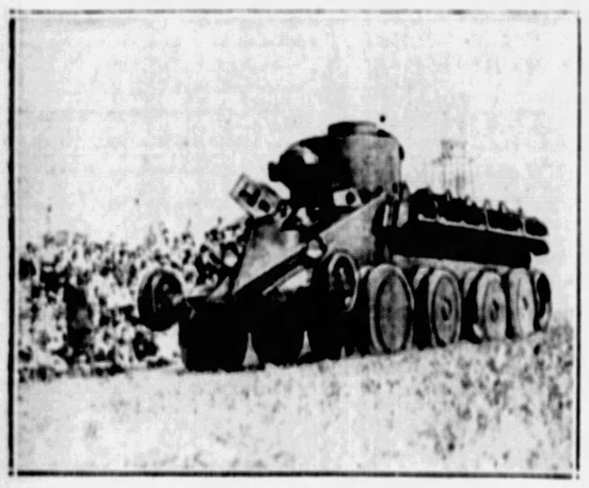
The farmer has to work hard, but his is rather an independent life, and he can at least provide his family with milk and eggs, vegetables and fruit.

Moreover, the radio and good roads have taken away much of the loneliness of country life.

It would not be surprising if hard times would drive back to the rural regions many of those who came to the cities when the mills were booming and prosperity was at its peak.

Meant for Business

One of Uncle Sam's Speed Tanks.



IT GOES 50 MILES PER HOUR.

If you are tired of everlasting peace talk, the League of Nations foolishness, the parading of Uncle Sam as a timid old pacifist, afraid of his shadow, this picture may give you a moment's comfort.

It shows that if the worst comes to the worst, this country intends to have something in the way of preparation.

This is the latest in the way of American fighting "tanks," recently tested at the proving grounds of Aberdeen, Maryland.

It is a rolling giant of steel, with heavy wheels, turret for cannon, and machine guns, and it reached a speed of 50 miles per hour over rough land.

Can you imagine how this "Christie speed tank" with its sharp point of steel, and its gigantic weight, would roll at 50 miles per hour through 10,000 cavalry or 100,000 infantry? It would plow through the horses hardly knowing they were there, and thunder at express train speed through regiments of men, and safe behind armor plate, paying no attention to the patter of their bullets, or the futile points of their sharp bayonets.

This picture shows what war will be, when airplanes drive inhabitants of cities out into the country to escape bombs and gas, and monsters of this kind hunt down the enemy foolish enough to show himself above ground.

Spreading Them Over the Land

For every corner saloon there now bloom a score or more of speakeasies.

Youth sees so-called Respectability wink at the law and does likewise. Bootleggers collect $1,100,000,000 a year, more than the people used to pay for alcoholic drinks before Prohibition.

We spend $40,000,000 yearly attempting to enforce an unenforceable law, lose $911,000,000 more in excise taxes, and in return get what—widespread crime and lawlessness, official corruption, hypocrisy in high places and low, growing contempt for all laws and steadily increasing intemperance.

Isn't it time to call a halt?

Marry-Go-Round

Love's Price-Tag

You never know how much a woman values her husband's love, until she starts to sue for alienation of his affections. Neither does she! Then it runs up like the thermometer in August.

* * *

Don't count! It makes me dizzy! At that rate, most of us who possess non-skidding husbands should be listed in Bradstreets'.

It always seems to be the erring husband whose love has the greatest cash-value. Honest, devoted love is the kind that neither a man nor a woman seems to consider worth 2 cents—until it is time to sue for alimony.

* * *

Many a man's shining and unselfish love has been used by a light and greedy woman as a means of extracting furs, diamonds and automobiles from him. Such love comes "so easy," that a woman thinks it can't be worth much. It takes the kind of man, who keeps her wondering and worrying, to make a stupid woman see the "value" of love.

* * *

Many a splendid woman's radiant devotion has been used by a thoughtless and selfish man merely as a sop to his vanity or a convenient door-mat to be trodden all over until it is crushed out.

Yet, a woman will sob her heart out (all over the judge's desk and the witness chair) for the love of a playboy or an egoist, who never loved anybody on earth, except HIMSELF.

Strange, how little we value the love that causes us no gray hairs—the love that we are SURE of. And how highly we value the love that makes us nervous wrecks and keeps us in a miserable fever of doubt.

It is never until a man sees a woman's love disappearing around the corner, that he realizes what he is losing—and tries to snatch it back again. And it's not until a foolish woman has worn a patient man's love threadbare, that she discovers that she has been using cloth-of-gold for a dishrag.

* * *

Too bad that we should measure love, by its power to make us suffer. Because the one thing on earth that love should bring you is happiness and peace-of-heart.

* * *

There is no such thing as "alienation of the affections." Love is like a tooth or your top-hair. Either you've got it, and it's PRICELESS. Or you haven't got it—and it isn't worth a bad penny.

* * *

The love that you have to fight for isn't worth the price of a pair of boxing-gloves. A man's love—or a woman's either—isn't worth a last year's calendar, unless it's ALL yours!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Thoughts while strolling. What happened to that phrase, "men of large affairs?" Charles Dana Gibson looks more the United States Senator than an artist. I get Cole Porter and Coles Phillips mixed. H. L. Phillips is another glum humorist.

George Gray Barnard, a Bellefonte, Pa., boy, who made good in the city. Daschunds in high favor again. Would Dietrich be a good name for one? When they gave out eyebrows Jim Corbett was around. No ad today beats Hunter's Rye—First Over the Bars! Remember?

My idea of a loafing spot is a dog shop. Helen and Pete Kyne leaving the Marguery. Those well-bred count types with monocles and a dash of lavender. Dandy for parties. Lots of European royalty around the Savoy Plaza.

No actresses featuring backs today like Kitty Gordon and Lotta Faust. Al Smith always sits at a back table at Dinty Moore's and in a box at the theater. Ted Lewis has a swell crop of hair. After all no hat beats a smartly fitting derby on the well dressed.

What became of the American comedian who made King George titter? Harlan Dixon's floppy hat. That evening fog sweeping up from the harbor like a low flying swamp mist. Sigmund Spaeth grows stout, too. Those hideous baby blue taxis. Frank Bruen and Sam Harris.

One of my favorite people—George Buckley. Description of Helen Menken in one word—wraithy. Peter Arno dresses sedately anyway. The haughty gloom of winter in Central Park. Nothing so clean as sunlight on running water. Norman Anthony and Lee Trask look alike.

Sadie Murray's apartment house. What became of the superb monoclish—de Sergurola? That spire where the old Century squatted. The odd glint of Francine Larrimore's hair. Like a toss of burnished foam. Set faces of horseback riders on the bridle path. Cloppity-clop, cloppity-clop!

It's a Broadway tale of the light lady who jockeyed a married admirer into a jewelry atelier on the avenue. She "perfectly adored" a $5,000 diamond ring. At a dinner that night he said he would pay $3,500. She went to the store next day, paid $1,500 and asked them to sell it to the boy friend at his price. He called later, bought it for $3,500 but on his way home suddenly decided to give it to his wife. And did.

George Jean Nathan is the only dramatic critic who foliates in formal dress for first nights upon almost every occasion. The others "dress" for auspicious openings such as Mrs. Fiske, the Follies, etc. Alan Dale in that day was dean of the Death Watch and one of ablest critics of all—"Stuffy" Davis—appeared frequently wearing a faded old sweater.

Broadway's "Coney Island front" these evenings gives a carnival flair to the street so long a byway of surprise. Nearly all cinema temples and burlesque houses, as well as photo parlors, dance halls and cabarets, resort to outside ballyhoo. Barkers appear on stilts, as clowns, as Amos 'n' Andy, Charlie Chaplin and, of course, Gandhi. The babble is as pronounced as that at Luna in mid-summer. It steams up business even if it gives the street a tawdriness it does not deserve.

* * *

The most gorgeous gasp in so-called "clubs" is the "Park Avenue," the site of Belle Livingston's ill-fated hospice on East Fifty-eighth. It has the vaulted magnificence of the Grand Central. Side walls hang with circular modernistic mirrors 25 feet in circumference. And there is a blinding dazzle of red, black and crystal, efflorescing in an octagonal background of mirrors in 50-foot-high strips. These enclose the largest drinking counter the town has yet produced.

* * *

Formal attire is obligatory at The Park Avenue Saturday nights and on other evenings those in evening clothes are given choice tables "to dress the room. Altogether it "out-continentals" the continent. And plenty dear! Plain orange juice, par example, a dollar a clip.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Sea Gull

One brave, white bird, wide-winged, aloft
In blue immensity;
One bird that pits its puny strength
Against the sky and sea!

Would break and fling aside
This feathered WILL that ventures far

The sea would grasp and drag it down—
This lovely, shining thing
That mocks the spirit of the storm
With tireless, fearless wing.

One brave, white bird; Ah, spirit, soar
Beat up and up above each force
That threatens, cold, unkind!

Only a WILL that dares to face
The fury of the world;
Oh, brave, white bird, so may I keep
My being's wings unfurled!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

You've always wanted to be "different."

People who are different fascinate you. Sometimes they irritate you but there's something about them that holds you. They're colorful . . . the strange, unexpected things they say and do . . . the impression they give of being strong and free and quite independent of other people's opinions—

You wonder how they get that way. What is their inside life like? Are they born that way? You suppose they are. And you envy them their luck. It must be wonderful to be able to be different. To live a distinct, dramatic life of one's own—

You'd like to say and do unexpected things like that. But you don't have a chance—

And the exasperating thing is that you're sure that you, too, could be different if you had a chance. You've never really felt like everybody else—not deep inside. If you could have YOUR way . . . if you could say what you really want to say . . . and do what you really want to do . . . you'd show 'em!

AND YOU'RE RIGHT!

Are YOU different inside.

No one else feels about things as you feel about them.

You were made in your own peculiar pattern—

And if you had developed that pattern your life could have been infinitely more colorful and powerful, adventurous and mysterious, than it has been . . . you could have been as "different" as any of these powerful, dramatic people you envy.

Then why haven't you developed your pattern . . . your unique pattern?

"I haven't had a chance," you say. "I've had to do what other people wanted me to do. They'd have been hurt if I hadn't . . . or mad at me . . . or maybe they would have laughed at me. That's why I haven't been different—"

You're wrong. Fate hasn't been holding you back. You've had as much chance as the next chap.

You haven't developed your own pattern because you were AFRAID and because you were LAZY.

Those "different" people you envy—they weren't given free scope to develop their personalities. The difficulties were not removed for their path, any more than from yours. They ran risks by being different. People got mad at them and laughed at them. People muddled them with their tears. But they went on BEING THEMSELVES in spite of everything. They insisted on thinking their own thoughts. They insisted on planning their own lives.

It meant loneliness and misunderstanding . . . sometimes it meant malicious persecution—BUT THEY FELT IT WAS WORTH THE PRICE.

You could have had—you can still have all these precious qualities and privileges in your life—IF YOU'RE WILLING TO PAY THE PRICE.

Want to try?

Then start now.

Stop thinking certain things just because other people think them.

Stop doing certain things just because other people do them.

DO ONLY, THINK ONLY, SAY ONLY THOSE THINGS THAT REALLY EXPRESS YOU YOURSELF.

Use sense. Don't say ALL you think. Don't do EVERYTHING you want to do. Remember you are living in a crowded world and show due regard for the rest of the inhabitants. But do not be a sheep. Do not follow wherever the flock leads.

BE HONEST . . . BE BRAVE . . . BE YOURSELF IN EVERY ACT AND WORD AND THOUGHT OF YOUR LIFE. Start doing that and from the hour you start, life will become an amazing and fascinating adventure. And you will become an INDIVIDUAL instead of an "also ran."

The Impudent Attacks On Congress

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The disposition of administration organs to criticise Congress because it refuses to be the rubber stamp of the Executive, whose repudiation by the American people brought this Congress into being, impresses us as supreme impudence.

If Congress did not act on the one-year moratorium by the fifteenth, it is little better than insolence to denounce Congress on that account. It was not summoned to act on the moratorium when the President proposed it. The attitude of the debtor nations in the interval has not been such as to create American confidence in the efficiency of that remedy for world depression.

There has been no disposition to reduce the cost of armament among them, and some of them have manifested the keenest glee in the expression of their hate for the American people, with the gold drain and the attack on the dollar. Meanwhile the European press, almost without exception, has been assuring the people of the debtor nations that the moratorium means an understanding with the administration here for the transfer of the billions in debts from the nations that borrowed the money out of the pockets of our people, to the backs of our people, who made the loan.

There is enough in the changed situation to justify Congress in making its position plain on this transfer—not cancellation—of the debts, and to inquire into the character of the secret conversations at the White House on which the European press predicates its assurance that Americans will pay the bill.

Responsibility Rests On Herbert Hoover

The utter impudence in the criticism of Congress is in this well known fact: Three months ago the President was urged repeatedly to call Congress in extra session if only a month before the regular sessions.

It was pointed out at the time that Congress would be expected to act on the moratorium by the fifteenth, and that, with the time always required in the mere organization of a new Congress, this would be practically impossible. That was the common sense view and there was no common sense answer.

But the President is among those who have little use for the mechanism of government by the people, or, in other words, for representative government in a democracy; he manifestly prefers autocracies, beyond the interference of popular sentiment; and he is notoriously unhappy always when he has "Congress on his hands."

Thus he refused to do his manifest duty—to summon Congress in extra session to deal with the one-year moratorium and with other matters relating to the distress of millions of Americans who are eating the bread of charity.

If there is a delay in the one-year moratorium the responsibility rests on Herbert Hoover—and on no one else.

Perhaps Congress Can Do Better

Our form of government, under our sometimes praised Constitution, is either right or wrong. The critics of Congress cannot eat their cake and have it too. There is a large element, confined mostly to people of large interests and the lunatic fringe of the intelligentsia, who have no use for our form of government. They want to put the "people in their place," and from some autocratic eminence impose the will of a man or a clique upon the masses. That is the reason we hear so much jeering and sneering at Congress—Congress which comes directly from the people.

And yet there is no little impudence in this; for few have observed during the nine months that the President had Congress "off his hands" that he achieved greatly in the interest of the American people. Perhaps Congress can do better; it can do no worse.

Some of the more precocious of the critics of Congress are shocked to tears that we should be "impolite" to the debtor nations. Impolite! We who spent $26,645,000,000 on a war that would have been lost to the debtor nations otherwise. We who then took not a cent in reparations and not an inch of German territory that the debtor nations might take it all. We who have since scaled the debt down by billions. Impolite? What impudence!

Within the last few days the press of England has been assuring the English people that the moratorium means the transfer of billions in debt from their shoulders and those of the other debtor nations to the backs of the American taxpayers; and they are manfully standing by the President.

Well, that is something on which the American people will pass; and the American Congress—which will not be reduced to an echoing station of an Executive who has been repudiated by the American people at the polls—will discuss and consider American interests.

Surely, Mr. Beck Has Not Forgotten

We have always admired the brilliance of James M. Beck, the most brilliant Republican in the House; but when he seeks to create the impression that the disposition to investigate a foreign policy which foreign nations understand to mean the transfer of billions of debts of other nations to American taxpayers, is inspired by mere partisanship, we must take issue.

Are we to understand that when Mr. Beck insists that the President's foreign policy must be accepted without a peek that the President's party, including Mr. Beck, stands for the transfer of the debts to us?

The brilliant Philadelphian is the last man in the world to tell the Democrats they must stand by the President's foreign policy, whatever it may be and without even an inquiry—because he is the President. It has been such a little while ago that Mr. Beck's party refused to stand for the foreign policy of a Democratic President though he, too, was the American President.

They said it was not partisanship then; instead it was patriotism; warmly asserted that they opposed the President's foreign policy because they thought it detrimental to American interests, and said it was their patriotic duty under their oaths to oppose it—in the interest of America.

Surely Mr. Beck has not forgotten, for he was one of the most brilliant and conspicuous in refusing to "stand by the President."

Not Ready to Accept Hoover's Foreign Policies

No, we cannot subscribe to the theory that because Mr. Hoover is President we should blindly accept his foreign policies without even an inquiry into what they signify. There are many who feel that these policies should be carefully scrutinized, since the President spent the major part of his mature life under the Union Jack and out of touch with American interests or sentiment.

Many ascribe his amazing ineptitude in office to the conviction that he does not divine American policies for Americans; any more than the policies of the international bankers who have no country in their business. The world's their oyster, but American interests are in the keeping of the American Congress.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

As a dog owner and dog lover you are unable to understand the person who does not like such animals.

But you shouldn't be.

Even though a visitor feels kindly toward dogs it does not follow that he or she wishes to hold the brute.

Usually those who call on you are well dressed and don't want to hold a dog under such conditions.

You should remember that none feels toward your dog as you do.

They are bound to shed hairs which stick to the clothing of those who sit in places where dogs have been.
